ABD-EL-KRIM OFFERS TO NEGOTIATE PEACE; PETAIN TO RETURN

Marshal Expected Back in Paris to Confer on Deal With Moors.

RIFF CHIEF ASKS PLEDGE

Wants Assurance of His Country's Independence as Condition of Conference.

PARIS, July 26.—The most significant development of the Moroccan situation today is an announcement of Marshal Pétain's intention of return to Paris within the next ten days. Entire direction of the operations in the field was given him only a few days ago and it is generally believed here that he would not be leaving the scene of action unless he felt the crisis had been resolved and the end of the war was definitely in sight.

In well-informed quarters the conviction even prevails that Marshal Pétain is not to present the Government with a plan of campaign when he returns, but with a peace plan which he has been able to develop as the result of his personal contact with the situation.

Abd-el-Krim Offers to Parley.

TANGIER, July 26.—Abd-el-Krim informs me that he has replied to the Franco-Spanish note which stated that the terms of peace which the French and Spanish Governments were prepared to offer him were at his disposal if he wished to consult them.

Abd-el-Krim has replied that he is prepared to negotiate peace with France and Spain on condition that before the negotiations are opened he shall receive solemn assurance that the Riff will enjoy independence. In a separate communication he demands that the negotiations shall take place at Tangier.

I am informed that if France and Spain agree to these two stipulations Abd-el-Krim is prepared to cease hostilities and enter upon immediate negotiations for permanent peace.

The French and Spanish Governments will probably receive Abd-el-Krim's reply tomorrow.

It is not difficult to surmise the main lines of the peace terms which Spain and France are willing to offer Obd-el-Krim. These main lines are in a measure independence for the Riff under the sovereignty of the Sultan and under the authority of the Khalifa of the Spanish zone, with the proposed title of Emir for Abd-el-Krim; rectification of the French protectorate frontier by granting the Riffs facilities for procuring and growing grain and other foodstuffs, assistance in introducing home rule in the Riff and a semblance of disarmament of the tribes.

What Riff Chief Hopes For.

The press of Europe and Morocco has lately published very diverse accounts of what Abd-el-Krim himself demands, but as a matter of fact Abd-el-Krim has never stated any definite terms. He has from time to time as a measure of propaganda told journalists who visited him and has announced to the tribes that he will insist upon the cession of Tetuan Laraiche and Arseila, and only intends to leave in possession of the Spaniards Ceuta, Melilla and the smaller presidios.

At times his successes have almost made such demands possible, but that day has passed and even his most enthusiastic followers realize that all that today is beyond his reach. For some months it has been an open secret that Abd-el-Krim has abandoned all claim to Tetuan and other towns, the capture of which he had promised the Jabala as a means of procuring their assistance.

In return for the abandonment of Tetuan he speaks of demanding an indemnity of 25,000,000 Spanish pesetas. He bases his claim on the ground that when after the Spanish War in Morocco in 1859 the Spaniards consented to evacuate Tetuan they received an indemnity of that amount from the Sultan. The Riff leader argues that as the Spanish Government agreed by treaty to abandon Tetuan in perpetuity and since has reoccupied it he can justly demand the return of the sum extorted from his country on that occasion.

The difficult point in the peace negotiations must turn upon the measure of independence which Abd-el-Krim is to enjoy. It is not only difficult from his personal point of view, but still more so because it is the only subject on which he made definite promises to the Riff tribes. All other subjects of negotiation are for him and him alone to settle, but this question of independence is shared by all. He has definitely promised the tribesmen not to negotiate peace except on the understanding that independence of the Riff is assured. It was the only price by which he could obtain their full-hearted cooperation.

Realizes His Limitations.

Complete independence, however, is impossible, partly because of existing treaties but more from the fact that Abd-el-Krim and his Riffians are not

Treviso Statue Declared To Be by Michelangelo

TREVISO, Italy, July 26 (AP).—Officials of the Venetian Art Academy have announced that a terra cotta statue found some time ago by Eugenio Loschi, a public employe, is the work of Michaelangelo.

The statue is about 24 inches high. Loschi will present it to the Vatican through the local Bishop.

The recent discovery in the Vatican of seven terra cotta statuettes by Michelangelo led Loschi to request art experts to come to Treviso and examine the object he had found.

INQUIRY THREATENS PUBLIC LAND SCANDAL

Senate Committee Will Begin Delving Soon Into Alleged Maladministration.

WIDESPREAD CHARGES MADE

Allegations Against Park Service and Forestry Bureau to Have Full Airing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—The Senate Committee on Public Lands, the committee which exposed the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills Naval Reserve Oil leases, is going hunting again. This time it is going to investigate the administration of the public domain, the Forestry Bureau and the national parks. According to some members of the committee the investigation is expected to develop a situation which will parallel in interest the sensational developments of the naval oil hearings. The committee will act under a Senate resolution passed near the close of the last Congress and its authority is virtually unlimited.

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, a former Chief Forester of the Government, a few days ago gave out a statement warning the "friends of the forest service" that an assault against that Government bureau is about to start. The Governor did not mention the Senate, but it is known that he had the Public Lands Committee in mind. And the national forest question is going to be thoroughly investigated. For instance, Senator Cameron of Arizona is authority for the statement that of the more than 136,000,000 acres of public land in the Federal forest reserve more than 90,000,000 acres are treeless. There is one forest in Arizona, it is charged, 13,000,000 acres in extent, that never has had a tree on it since the beginning of the world.

The administration of the forest reserve, as well as the public domain, the latter 186,000,000 acres in extent, has, it is alleged by certain Western Senators, worked great injury to the stock raising business.

The cattle industry, it is asserted, has almost touched bottom, and one of the main subjects of the inquiry will be to find a way, if possible, to resuscitate this business.

In one Western town, it was pointed out, bank failures, due mainly to the crisis in the cattle industry, involved bank losses exceeding $10,000,000. There are scores of other towns, it is asserted, which have been proportionately hard hit for the same reason.

Cattlemen who a few years ago were reputed wealthy, some of them millionaires, are now poverty stricken, according to stories current in legislative circles. A case cited is that of a man who six years ago was said to be worth more than $1,000,000. Recently this man accepted a job as an assistant sergeant-at-arms of a Western State Legislature.

One other case is that of a cattleman who had been listed as among the wealthiest men in his community. He is now running a little adobe hotel in a town of less than 500 population.

Questions Midwest Company's Deals.

It is asserted that these are but samples of thousands of other cases involving men who were mainstays of the great cattle business a few years back.

The homesteading features of the public domain administration will be another phase of the inquiry, as well as also the disposition of mineral and oil lands, other than those included in the naval reserves.

One feature of the oil part of the investigation is expected to involve the Salt Creek (Wyo.) holdings of the Midwest Refining Company, a subsidiary of the Standard of Indiana. Salt Creek adjoins Teapot Dome, but it is a vastly richer field than the Sinclair lease.

Senator Walsh of Montana, a member of the committee, said recently that there is no more important duty facing

Lawyer Says Libel Actions Will Be Brought Against Craig, Kerrigan and Newspapers.

SEES "VENOM" IN CHARGES

WON'T HALT INVESTIGATION

"Let Them Go Ahead," Is Controller's Comment—Wants Chance to Get Hylan on the Stand.

Announcement that the bonding and insurance firm of Sinnott & Canty would bring libel actions against Controller Charles L. Craig, Deputy Controller Charles F. Kerrigan, and those newspapers which have published statements from either of them regarding the investigation of alleged relations between the firm and the Mayor's office, was made yesterday by Max D. Steuer, attorney for the members of the firm.

Mr. Steuer said that he had at first advised the members of the firm, the head of which, J. Paul Sinnott, is a brother of John F. Sinnott, Mayor Hylan's secretary and son-in-law, not to bring suit because he sought to keep them out of a political controversy into which he believed Mr. Craig and Mr. Kerrigan were seeking to force them. Mr. Steuer added that recent published statements by Mr. Craig and Mr. Kerrigan were "so much more veromous" that he had determined that the best interests of Sinnott & Canty required that an action be brought and that the facts be developed in court.

Mr. Craig and Mr. Kerrigan, neither of whom had been served with notice of any action yesterday, declared that no libel action would be permitted to interrupt their investigation. Mr. Craig declared that he would welcome the opportunity to have the members of the Sinnott & Canty firm and Mayor Hylan examined on the witness stand.

Steuer Issues Statement.

Mr. Steuer's statement, announcing the determination to bring libel actions, follows:

"When the articles instigated by Controller Craig and his deputy, Charles Kerrigan, first began to appear in the press, the firm of Sinnott & Canty conferred with me concerning their rights against the individuals who instigated them and the press that continued to publish them. I advised Messrs. Sinnott & Canty then that upon the facts as submitted by them, the articles were clearly libelous and that for the damage by them sustained each of the defendants could be compelled to answer.

"Nevertheless, I suggested that they abstain from commencing any actions because of the fact that the claim would immediately be put up that the suits were brought solely to aid the present City Administration in anticipation of the coming primaries and election.

"Solely because of my insistence, they abstained not only from commencing suits, but from demanding that criminal prosecutions be instituted. With each separate publication they submitted to me a statement of the facts as they claimed them to be and as investigation actually indicates they are. On each occasion, however, I adhered to the view that I first expressed and although they became more and more desirous of putting their version before the public, I advised against it, seeking to keep them out of a political controversy that seemingly Mr. Craig, Mr. Kerrigan and others were attempting to force Sinnott & Canty into.

"The recent publications, however, are so much more venomous, encouraged very likely by the previous silence of these men, that I have finally determined that the best interests of Sinnott & Canty make necessary the immediate commencement of actions against Mr. Craig, Mr. Kerrigan and the various newspapers that have seen fit to publish these articles maliciously calculated to deceive the public and to grievously injure the firm as well as the individuals whose names figure therein.

"In consequence thereof, I have advised my assistants to immediately cause process to be served upon Mr. Craig, Mr. Kerrigan and each of the newspapers in which these articles appeared, and such process is now out for service.

"The only place, in my opinion, where the real facts can be developed satisfactorily is the courts, and at the earliest moment the plaintiffs will seek a

BUCKNER TO BARGAIN WITH DRY VIOLATORS

Prosecutor Will Ask for Fines for Small Offenders Who Plead Guilty.

JAIL FOR THOSE WHO FIGHT

United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner will open his second drive on the overcrowded liquor calendar before Judge Edwin L. Garvin in the Federal Court today. This campaign, he said, would be in the nature of a bargain sale and those of the 2,000 petty offenders who pleaded guilty would be fined and those who stood trial and were convicted would be recommended for a jail term. He said he expected to clear up the 2,000 cases in the coming week, after which he would take up the fifty padlocking cases which were ready for presentation.

To accommodate the expected crowd of owners and employes of speakeasies Mr. Buckner cut departmental red tape and has had his own force remove the chairs and tables from the special court room. When Mr. Buckner undertook to have the custodian of the building remove the chairs and tables he found that the order would have to travel by a roundabout way to Washington for official sanction and then be returned for the further approval of a Judge.

"I have told Judge Garvin that I think it is in the public interest and in the interest of prohibition enforcement to clean up these 2,000 small cases on the basis of a July clearance bargain sale," he said. "I have recommended, and I hope he will approve, the imposition of fines running from $50 to $100 upon all who plead guilty, and jail sentences upon all who stand trial and are convicted.

No Bargains in the Fall.

"We want to clear ourselves of all stock of this character and we hope to open in the Fall with an entirely new line of prohibition goods. We shall discontinue the five and ten-cent counter in accordance with the policy which has been in effect since I took office, so far as new cases are concerned, and we will deal only, generally speaking, in the padlock for the retailer and jail sentences for the bootlegger, the wholesaler, the importer, the manufacturer, and the financial backer.

"Prohibition enforcement will get nowhere in this district until the owner of the retail establishment finds himself padlocked on the outside, and until the man who supplies him with liquor finds himself padlocked on the inside.

"The policy of stopping petty arrests and concentrating upon the men higher up and those actively engaged in the bootleg trade, which I put into effect five months ago, has been cordially approved by Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews.

"The thousands of petty arrests which have been made in this district during the past few years have so swamped Federal machinery as to render it impossible to wage a concentrated and sustained war against the rum-runners and bootleggers and manufacturers. The Federal officials have been trying to run a marathon on tanglefoot flypaper. The piling up of thousands of arrests and the collection of hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of fines, calling them 'convictions,' make a very impressive 'record,' but from the standpoint of law enforcement are nothing but a farce.

Explains His Plans.

"This farce has been aggravated by the absolute necessity of dealing with these petty offenses only on a fine basis, as there has not been any remote possibility of trials before juries and jail sentences for the smallest fraction of them. It is a little short of compounding with crime for the Government to take this dirty money and call it rigid enforcement of the prohibition law.

"An arrest is the beginning and not the end of law enforcement. Until Federal officials look only at the end of a prosecution and not at the beginning of a prosecution, we shall make no headway in dealing with the formidable and vexatious problem of prohibition in this district.

"When Judge Garvin cleans up the 2,000 petty liquor cases to be brought before him this week there will be no more cases of that type, generally speaking, so long as I am in office. I am not picking and choosing prosecutions according to whim or caprice, or attempting to repeal the law in part and enforce it in part. I am simply picking and choosing prosecutions in accordance with the number of Judges, the number of assistants and the number of clerks which are provided by the Federal Government, and my oath of office not only justifies but actually compels me to employ this limited machinery in the manner which will peg out the greatest advance in the enforcement of the prohibition law, while at the same time enabling me to enforce other laws with equal regard.

"I cannot, in justice to the rest of my job, devote more than 25 per cent. of my equipment to the enforcement of the prohibition law, and I want to make this 25 per cent. produce the greatest results which it is capable of producing rather than merely to keep it conspicuously busy milling around with a mob of petty violators of the Volstead act."

Palestine Explorers Find Chambers in Rock That May Prove to Be the Tomb of David

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JERUSALEM, July 26.—Discovery of what it is hoped may prove to be the long-sought tomb of David was announced today by the Rev. J. Garrow Duncan of the Palestine Exploration Fund.

The Rev. Mr. Duncan states that the excavations at Ophel brought to light on the western side a series of underground rock-cut chambers comprising a large central room, with five smaller chambers, five feet square, branching from it. The southernmost room, which is fifteen by sixteen feet in size, leads into two rooms, each fifteen by eight feet. These again lead into similar narrow chambers, each with smaller chambers cut into its walls.

Toolmarks on the walls are of the Iron Age period and not earlier than 1200 B. C. There is a similar series of rock chambers and galleries on the eastern side of Ophel, entered from the face of a rock scarp under the Jebusite east city wall and closed by a curious stone door. It is considered not improbabl that this constitute David's tomb, and the probability is that both sets of parts constitute a series of royal tombs. Its series is much abused by later usage, first as an olive press and later as store rooms in the Byzantine period, then as cisterns by Arabs.

HAD PREMONITION OF DEATH

Bryan Felt His Strength Was Waning at the Convention Here a Year Ago.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.
Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Practically deserted during this heated season of those politically prominent, there were few in Washington this evening who had been associated with William Jennings Bryan or had known him during his active career since he came here a young Congressman from Nebraska in 1893, thirty-two years ago.

For that reason it cannot be said, in the sense of widespread knowledge of it, that Mr. Bryan's sudden death created a sensation in the national capital. But to the meagre number of those here tonight whose public life had brought them into close contact with the great Commoner the news of his passing came as a distinct shock. That was apparent from their exclamations when they were informed of the tragic happening in the little Tennessee town where he so recently fought his last battle for principles in which he believed and to the promotion and defense of which he devoted every bit of his abundant energy.

The death of Mr. Bryan was entirely unexpected in Washington, but that he was not in the best of physical condition and had feared for some time that his days were numbered was disclosed by a fellow Nebraskan, also a Democrat, Gilbert M. Hitchcock, former Senator, who was Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations when Mr. Bryan was Secretary of State.

Spoke of Death at Convention.

Their official duties during the rather brief period of Mr. Bryan's tenure in the Cabinet interlocked, and years before then they had been on the most intimate professional and personal terms through the fact that Mr. Bryan was the editor of The Omaha World-Herald, owned by Mr. Hitchcock. But in more recent times they were bitter personal opponents in the leading rôles they played within the Democratic Party.

When he had recovered from the distinct shock that the news of Bryan's death caused him, the former Senator said that, on reflection, it was not so surprising, as he recalled that during the Democratic National Convention in Madison Square Garden last year Mr. Bryan had told his fellow members of the Committee on Resolutions, when they were engaged in the bitter contest over the matter of including a denunciation of the Ku Klux Klan in the party platform, or omitting reference to it, that he felt that his life was fast coming to an end.

"I think he had a premonition," said Mr. Hitchcock. "He could not any longer stand fatigue. I served with him on the Committee on Resolutions during the convention and he told us in committee that this would be the last convention he would attend. He seemed to have a feeling that he would not live. He had overtaxed himself so much. Evidently the struggle in Dayton during the hot weather was too much."

That the premonition of an early death had been in Mr. Bryan's mind prior to the Democratic convention a year ago was indicated by Mr. Davis, who disclosed that his former chief had written to him about two years ago with reference to obtaining a plot of ground in Arlington for the last resting place of Mrs. Bryan and himself. BRYAN IS EULOGIZED, EVEN BY OPPONENTS

Leaders of Varying Political and Religious Beliefs Join in Tributes.

HONORED FOR SINCERITY

Governor Smith, Mayor Hylan and John W. Davis Among Many Praising Him.

Political friends and foes of William Jennings Bryan, Modernists and Fundamentalists, were shocked and saddened by the news of his death last night.

His immense vigor and activity during the last few weeks heightened the surprise caused by his death. He was thought to be hale and hearty enough to be the leading champion of the causes of Fundamentalism and prohibition for many years to come.

The political and religious enemies of the old crusader spoke with feeling last night in expressing their regret at his sudden death. Those who had fought him for three generations respected him as a foe for his sincerity and for his fighting qualities. His followers in religious and political battles were stunned by the news of his sudden death. The drys regarded him as the greatest living champion of prohibition and the Fundamentalists looked to him as their national chief and hoped that the man who played so great a part in putting prohibition into the Constitution would eventually succeed in safeguarding the literal word of the Bible by legislation.

Governor Alfred E. Smith said: "I heard of the death of Bryan with a great deal of regret. He was a vigorous American and even those who disagreed with his ideas had a great regard for him."

Mayor Hylan said: "I regret very much to hear of the death of Colonel Bryan. I have known Colonel Bryan for a great many years and always held him in high esteem. I believe that he has always been sincere in any cause he espoused."

John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President at the last election, said at his home at Locust Valley, L. I.:

"The depressing news of Mr. Bryan's death must prove a great shock, not only to his friends but to the country at large. I am most deeply grieved by it.

ARLINGTON BURIAL ASKED FOR BRYAN

HAD REMARKED ITS BEAUTY

Funeral Arrangements Will Be Made Today by Ben G. Davis, His Secretary for Many Years.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Arrangements are being made for the burial of Colonel William J. Bryan in Arlington National Cemetery.

Immediately after the death of her husband at Dayton, this afternoon, Mrs. Bryan sent a telegram to Ben G. Davis of Takoma Park, Md., former chief clerk of the State Department and an intimate personal friend of Colonel Bryan, stating that the latter had died while asleep and requesting Mr. Davis to make arrangements for his interment at Arlington. Mr. Davis was unable to communicate tonight with Major Robert P. Harbold of the office of the Quartermaster General of the Army, who is in charge of the cemeterial division.

After conferring with the superintendent at Arlington and with attachés in Colonel Harbold's office, Mr. Davis sent a telegram to Mrs. Bryan asking for further particulars with respect to her wishes and informing her that he will take up the matter with the War Department tomorrow. Colonel and Mrs. Bryan are both entitled to burial at Arlington under the Federal law which permits interment there and in other national cemeteries of all who have served in the army, navy and marine corps, or the volunteer forces of the United States, and their wives.

Led Nebraska Infantry.

Colonel Bryan is entitled to burial at Arlington by reason of his service in the Spanish-American War. He raised the Third Regiment of Nebraska Volunteer Infantry in May, 1898, for service in the war with Spain and became its Colonel. After serving in that war, he came to Washington and made possible the ratification of the Treaty of Peace which had been negotiated by the American commission at Paris.

The treatry was in danger of being defeated by Democratic votes but Colonel Bryan exerted his influence and swung them into line so that he could make "imperialism" the issue in the subsequent national campaign. When laid away under the oaks at Arlington on the green Virginia hills with the placid Potomac below, Colonel Bryan will rest, after life's fitful fever, with many of the distinguished dead of the Nation. It is there that the American Unknown Soldier, now the mecca for distinguished visitors from all parts of the world, is buried.

Will Lie With Many Famous Dead.

On the slopes of the hill, near the old Lee Mansion, at Arlington, are the graves of Major L'Enfant, the French engineer who planned the City of Washington, General "Phil" Sheridan, Admirals Porter and Farragut, General Crook, the great Indian fighter, former Secretary of State Gresham, Generals Lawton, Wright, Hazen, Myers, Meigs, Belknap and many others. The latest distinguished army officer to be interred there was the late Major Gen. Nelson A. Miles.

Full of Zeal to Take Cause to Country, He Was Thrilled by Crowds on Last Journey.

WIFE WAS APPREHENSIVE

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 26.—William Jennings Bryan died suddenly of heart disease while he slept this afternoon at the residence of Richard Rodgers here.

Apparently in perfect health, full of plans to make a nation-wide fight for laws protecting the Bible against the teaching of evolution, Mr. Bryan went to his room for a nap after a hearty meal.

At 2 o'clock Mrs. Bryan's housekeeper, Mrs. C. Stevens, passed through Mr. Bryan's room and he said cheerfully: "I think I'm going to get a good sleep." Soon after 4 o'clock, Msr. Bryan, who was in a wheelchair on the porch, became nervous over her husband's failure to awaken and asked William H. McCarney, the family chauffeur, to rouse him.

Mr. McCartney shook Mr. Bryan gently but got no respense. He realized something was wrong and called a neighbor, A. B. Andrews, who summoned Dr. A. C. Broyles and Dr. W. F. Thomison. The doctors said that Mr. Bryan had been dead about twenty minutes. Death occurred about 4:45 o'clock. They said the cause was apoplexy, accompanied by a cerebral hemorrhage.

Dr. Broyles said that the clogging of veins in the neck indicated that death was not caused by heart dilation, the opinion of Dr. Wallace of Chattanooga, who examined Mr. Bryan on Friday. The Commoner was 65 years odl.

Physicians were then summoned. They found that Mr. Bryan had been dead for some minutes. Death occurred at about 4:45 o'clock.

Refused to Take Vacation.

His death came as the greatest possible shock because Mr. Bryan himself and every one else believed that he had passed through the Dayton ordeal without suffering the least detriment to his health through the heat, fatigue and excitement.

"I never felt better in my life," the veteran orator said time after time today and yesterday, when the friends he had made at Dayton called on him.

"The fight that we have made here will be transferred to a greater scope," he said, referring to movements in several Southern and Western States to enact anti-evolution or Bible-protecting legislation.

Mr. Bryan had lost weight during the trial and his face was pale and lined, but the zest of battle had been awakened in him and the ardent spirit of the old crusader did not permit him to consider the need of rest. Many of his friends advised the former Secretary of State and three times candidate for President to take a vacation and recruit his strength.

"No," he replied, "we must strike while the iron is hot." Following this principle, he had been speaking incessantly at Tennessee meetings since the conviction of Scopes. He planned further speeches in Tennessee, and had in mind a speaking tour of many States in behalf of this cause into which he threw his heart more fully than he had into any other.

His Last Triumphant Journey.

He told his friends during and after the Scopes trial that no cause has ever stirred him to the bottom of the heart like this one, not even the cause of peace before 1917 or the cause of free silver twenty-nine years ago.

Less than twenty-four hours before his death, the Commoner spoke to a great crowd at Winchester, Tenn. He was in fine form. He delivered a stirring speech and took delight in the applause and in the evident affection and admiration in which the crowd held him.

Returning from Winchester last night, Mr. Bryan's train was like his famous election special of 1896. From the rear platform he made speech after speech at each stop, and the crowds cheered him wildly and kept the train until its schedule was thoroughly disjointed.

At the town of Cowan Mr. Bryan spoke for twenty minutes. He electrified his hearers, as he has seldom failed to do in his public career of thirty years. He represented the conviction of Scopes as a great victory for the cause of Christianity, and a staggering blow to "the forces of darkness." Never had Christian and crusading zeal of the old warrior of the ancient faith burned more fiercely than during two or three days preceding his death.

His trip, which turned spontaneously into a rear platform speaking tour, covered more than 200 miles on Saturday. At 10 o'clock in the morning yesterday,

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 26.—Viscount Gladstone and Henry Neville Gladstone, sons of the late Liberal statesman W. E. Gladstone, have written to Captain Peter Wright, author, calling him "a liar, coward and fool."

Mr. Wright, in a recent volume of impressionist sketches entitled "Portraits and Criticisms," declared W. E. Gladstone "founded a great tradition since observed by many of his followers and successors with such pious fidelity—in public to speak the language of the highest and strictest principle and in private to pursue and possess every sort of woman."

Viscount Gladstone addressed a letter to Mr. Wright saying, "Your garbage about Mr. Gladstone in 'Portraits and Criticisms' has come to our knowledge. You are a liar. Because you slander a dead man you are a coward, and because you think the public will accept inventions from such as you, you are a fool.

The following line was added by H. N. Gladstone: "I associate myself with this letter."

Mr. Wright has replied to the Gladstones with a letter in which he repeats his charges against the late statesman. He says, among other things:

"I attributed to Mr. Gladstone the character of a hypocrite in matters of sex. I have evidence of his conduct as good as any that exists about events in the past. I wrote what I did write on the authority of the late Lord Milner.

"To use Milner's own phrase, Mr. Gladstone was 'governed by his seraglio.' This foible had considerable political effect. One affair turned Mr. Gladstone from being a friend of Turkey and an enemy of Russia, as he was in the '50s, into being a friend of Russia and an enemy of Turkey, as he was in the '80s.

he spoke at the town of Jasper. At 2:30 o'clock he spoke to more than 8,000 people at Fairgrounds. Altogether he spoke to nearly 50,000 people during the day.

Mrs. Bryan, whose health was a matter of great concern and anxiety to her husband a year ago, was with him at Dayton. On his return from his strenuous day she was worried lest he should be overdoing it.

But Mr. Bryan was in a happy and exulting mood, full of triumph and jubilance over the progress of the latest and, as he regarded it, the greatest of his causes. He had always enjoyed a health that was nearly perfect and he made light of any fears as to his physical condition.

Mrs. Bryan was in a wheel chair on the porch when she learned that her husband was dead. She was overcome with grief. According to their intimates, no more devoted couple ever lived. Up to the time of her illness Mrs. Bryan had made her one object in life the comfort and care of her husband, and since she has been an invalid Mr. Bryan's tenderness toward her had been most striking. Her consolation in his sudden death was that it was without pain and that it took place at a time when he was happiest.

Mrs. Bryan rallied after the first shock and showed outwardly her accustomed calm. She expressed a desire to those at the Rodgers residence that Mr. Bryan should be buried in the Arlington Cemetery, because he was a Colonel in the Spanish-American War and it was his wish that he should be buried in Arlington Cemetery.

No definite decision will be reached, however, until she has communicated with William Jennings Bryan Jr., who is in California.

Mrs. Bryan had arranged to start for Idaho tomorrow. Mr. Bryan was to join her at a time not yet fixed, but in the meantime he had agreed to make many speeches in Tennessee and elsewhere.

He was to leave Dayton on Tuesday for Knoxville, where he was to make two speeches on the Scopes trial and to outline his idea of a national campaign to arouse the people to the danger in which he believes the Christian religion stands today.

He was billed to speak in Nashville on the same topic. After that he was going to make a short trip to Florida, speaking on the way, and then to make a railroad trip to join Mrs. Bryan, stopping over for further anti-evolution speeches.

Natives Blame Stress of Trial.

The news of his death spread swiftly through the streets of Dayton, and the inhabitants were stunned to learn of the sudden taking of the man whom they had regarded as a sort of living patron saint and protector of the town.

The whole populace poured into the streets and formed groups discussing the tragic occurrence. It was made known that serious concern was felt for Mrs. Bryan because of the shock and her precarious health, and on that account there were very few visitors at the Rodgers home.

The townspeople were inclined to blame the rigors of the trial for the sudden death of their idol. Many of them had been surprised to find Bryan so white and thin when he first arrived. From the plumpness and color of a few years ago he had dwindled and faded. His face was deeply lined and the loose skin indicated recent loss of weight.

Throughout the trial he suffered intensely from the heat. Still, when he burst into action in the last few days his eyes snapped, his cheeks glowed and he appeared full of life and fire.

The joy of battle carried him easily through the trial and the excitement and enthusiasm of success inspired the great outburst of energy on his part which followed the trial and which in all probability cut short his life.

The fact that he had spent his strength and shortened his life in the defense of the sacred Book raised him to martyrdom in the eyes of Dayton. Some of his impressive sentences, his declarations of faith on the witness stand, his bitter characterizations of the "infidels," were recalled and given the weight of direct inspiration and Divine sanction.

Resting for Conference on College.

Dayton had adopted Bryan and Bryan had adopted Dayton. The idea of making Dayton the site of the proposed Bryan University, which was to be created at the great citadel of the old faith, had filled the mind of Mr. Bryan.

He was taking the nap, during which he died, to recruit his strength for a meeting at the Hotel Aqua with promoters of the Bryan University, in which plans for the financial arrangements and for the curriculum were to be discussed.

After the conference on the proposed Bryan School, he was to address a meeting at the Dayton Court House. This was planned as the final demonstration of Dayton in his honor before he left. Mr. Bryan had prepared a speech with great care, and the inhabitants for miles in all directions were coming to hear it.

The courthouse meeting was to have heard the famous undelivered speech which Mr. Bryan had prepared for the Scopes trial. The sudden collapse of that singular legal proceeding prevented its delivery at that time.

No greater blow could have fallen on those who were to compose his audience than the news of his sudden death. To many it was incredible.

Led in Prayer at Church.

Only four or five hours before the first report of his death, Mr. Bryan had been the centre of interest at the Southern Methodist Church, where he led the congregation in prayer and brought a chorus of fervent "Amens" from all parts of the church.

His prayer, it was said, was the most beautiful and most affecting ever delivered in the church.

Mr. Bryan conferred later with C. Wesley Hicks, the choir director, on the music for the sermon on "What Shall I Do With Jesus?" which Mr. Bryan was to deliver tomorrow night. Mr. Bryan requested that two hymns be sung, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" and "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go."

"Don't sing the fancy, jumpy arrangement of 'One Sweetly Solemn Thought,'" Mr. Bryan said. "I want the sweet, old-time tune."

After the services, practically every member of the audience pressed around him to shake his hand and exchange a word with him. Mr. Bryan then returned to his temporary home and sat down at the dining table.

He remarked that his strenuous exertions of the past two days had given him an unusually hearty appetite. He ate heartily. After dinner, he was drowsy and went to his room for the nap from which he did not awaken.

Tells of Mr. Bryan's Last Day.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 26 (AP).—A. W. Lessly, who accompanied Mr. Bryan to Dayton today, said that the Commoner was feeling exceedingly fine this morning, and when he was offered a car to ride from the hotel to a restaurant for breakfast he expressed a preference to walk. He had arisen early and was in the lobby at 6:30. Before starting for Dayton he had a hearty breakfast.

On the trip to Dayton Mr. Bryan talked on various topics of the day and spoke of the appeal to be made to the Supreme Court by the Scopes defense lawyers. At this time he expressed his intention of staying in the case and said he expected to "see it through."

According to Mr. Lessly, Mr. Bryan showed no signs of illness nor did he seem to feel ill in any way. He told Mr. Lessly, however, that he had diabetes. En route to Dayton several pictures of him were taken, for which he posed in a wide cornfield.

Captain Marion Perkins of the Chattanooga police force, who was in charge of a squad of officers here during the trial, said tonight that many threats had been made against the life of Mr. Bryan.

Starts Fund for Bryan Memorial.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 26 (AP).—George W. Henzel Jr. of Quarryville, started a movement tonight for a memorial to William Jennings Bryan. He telegraphed Morton Milford, editor of the Miami (Fla.) News, that he was mailing a check for $25 to open the fund. Mr. Henzel was a close personal friend of the late Democratic leader.

PRESIDENT PAINED BY DEATH OF BRYAN

DAWES SPEAKS AS FRIEND

Has Suffered Personal Loss, He Says, in Passing of Intimate of Years.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 26.—President Coolidge learned tonight of the death of William Jennings Bryan with profound regret. The news of his end was communicated to him by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent.

An appreciation of Mr. Bryan as an American who had spent his life courageously fighting for causes he sincerely espoused will be sent by the President tomorrow in a telegram of condolence to Mrs. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan and President Coolidge were on the best of terms, and in his frequent visits to Washington the former always called at the White House offices, and was a frequent luncheon guest at the White House.

The news of Mr. Bryan's death so soon after his battle for Fundamentalism, which brought him again into national attention, was quickly communicated to the hotels, where the orchestras tonight were giving sacred concerts.

"Nearer, My God, to Thee" was played at the Ocean House, and the musical selections at the Hotel Preston were devoted to special hymns in memory of the dead defender of Fundamentalism.

Dawes' Tribute as an Old Friend.

DENVER, Col., July 26 (AP).—Vice President Dawes, on being informed of the death of William Jennings Bryan, issued the following statement to The Associated Press:

"I have been a friend of Mr. Bryan for thirty-eight years, since we started as young lawyers in Lincoln, Neb. Throughout all these years of work and strenuous public service there shows resplendent a high personal character.

"In all he did Mr. Bryan was in earnest and in it all he tried to do good.

"Those who knew him best respected most his motives and his sincerity. He never did unworthy or mean things. He may have been mistaken at times, as we all are, but he was trying always to do the right as he saw it.

"Of his great influence on the public thought of his day, his public services and his transcendent ability as an orator I will leave to others to speak, but I want simply, as an old friend and neighbor for many years, to pay my tribute of respect to a good and a great man, whose life has been one of high purpose and helpfulness and whose death brings a sense of personal loss."

DARROW DEEPLY GRIEVED.

Scopes Counsel Says He Respected Bryan's Sincerity and Devotion.

ELKMONT, Tenn., July 26 (AP).—"I am pained to hear of the death of the Hon. William Jennings Bryan," Clarence Darrow, Chicago attorney and cross-examiner of the Commoner in the recent trial of John T. Scopes at Dayton, Tenn., last Monday, declared this evening when informed of the demise of the notable American by The Knoxville Journal.

"I had known Mr. Bryan since 1896 and supported him twice for the Presidency. He was a man of strong convictions and always espoused his cause with ability and courage," Mr. Darrow continued. "I differed with him on many questions, but always respected his sincerity and devotion. I am very sorry for his family and for his friends, who loved him."

Mr. Darrow, associated with John R. Neal, Dudley Field Malone and Arthur Garfield Hays in the defense of Mr. Scopes, who was on trial for the violation of the Tennessee Anti-Evolution act, is spending several days in the Great Smoky Mountains with Mrs. Darrow, his secretary, Dr. Neal and Knoxville citizens.

ARLINGTON CHOSEN FOR BRYAN BURIAL

Mr. Davis, who is handling funeral arrangements, was intimately associated with Colonel Bryan since the latter served in Congress. When Mr. Bryan entered the House Mr. Davis served with him, beginning in 1895, as private secretary. Later hew as with him in his campaigns for the Presidency, and when Mr. Bryan became Selretary of State in the Wilson Administration he asked Mr. Davis to serve as his confidential secretary. Later Mr. Bryan appointed him chief clerk of the State Department, a position which he filled until a year ago.

Mr. Davis said he did not feel at liberty to make public Mrs. Bryan's telegram, but stated that Mrs. Bryan, after saying that Colonel Bryan had died while asleep, requested him to make arrangements for burial at Arlington.

Bryan Desired Arlington Burial.

"I am sure that in making this request," said Mr. Davis, "Mrs. Bryan was carrying out the expressed wish of Mr. Bryan himself. I know that it was Mr. Bryan's desire to be placed at rest at Arlington. He so indicated to me when he was Secretary of State, saying that he thought that Arlington was the prettiest place in the world. About two years ago Mr. Bryan told me in more definite fashion that he desired to be interred at Arlington, and wrote asking me to ascertain what requirements had to be met.

"In response to that request I went to the office of the Quartermaster General and ascertained that there was no doubt that Mr. Bryan was entitled under the law, by reason of his service as a Colonel in the war with Spain, to burial at Arlington, and that the law also would permit the interment of Mrs. Bryan beside her husband. I sent this information to Mr. Bryan, so that he was fully aware of the facts. Mrs. Bryan knew that I was aware that it was his wish to be laid at rest at Arlington."

World Prefer Simple Funeral.

"Do you think Colonel Bryan desired to be buried with full military honors?" Mr. Davis was asked.

"I rather doubt that," he replied. "It is my belief that he would not care for military display and would prefer a funeral marked with simplicity."

It was stated by the superintendent of Arlington Cemetery tonight that no selection of a site for a grave had ever been made by Mr. Bryan. Colonel Bryan is entitled to a lot measuring 12 by 15 feet, which would be large enough for four graves, it was stated. The matter of selecting a site will be taken up by Mr. Davis tomorrow morning.

EFFECT OF HIS DEATH ON THE DEMOCRATS

that time ascertained all the information necessary for Mr. Bryan to make application for this burial place and sent it to Mr. Bryan. Whether Mr. Bryan selected the spot in Arlington in which he desired interment Mr. Davis said he did not know. But wherever his body is placed in the spacious cemetery its site will overlook the City of Washington, with the White House, the mecca of Mr. Bryan's desire for many years, a conspicuous object in the not-distant background.

The few of the political world now in Washington, and many others here who knew Mr. Bryan, were profoundly moved when they learned of his death this evening, for whatever controversial differences with the Commoner may have caused some of them to cherish a critical attitude toward his policies, he was personally much liked. From the viewpoint of the human side, Mr. Bryan was popular with his associates.

A Charming Companion.

Men who had rubbed elbows with him said this evening that when he was seen in his purely personal aspect, separated from the various political, religious and social crusades in which he engaged from the time he became the Democratic Party's nominee for President of the United States in 1896, he was a charming companion, full of the milk of human kindness and as entertaining a man as one would be likely to meet. He was especially happy in making after-dinner speeches when no politics was involved, and members of the Gridiron Club and guests at their notable functions have a lively memory of how he entered into the spirit of these occasions and how free from any bitterness he was in his interprandial remarks, based, as they necessarily were, on parodies of the activities in which Mr. Bryan had been or was engaged.

Effect on Politics Discussed.

Mr. Bryan's personality was so virile and his stamp on American political life so marked that it was inevitable that the news of his death this evening should be followed by intense discussion of the effect of his passing on national politics. Especially was there comment and surmise over the relation of his death to the fortunes of the Democratic party. While few Senators and Representatives of the Democratic faith are in Washington, there are many still here who have taken a keen interest in the trend of political affairs in the United States and are qualified to render judgment as to the probable meaning of the removal of the Commoner from those public activities in which he had played so notable and conspicuous a part.

It was strikingly apparent from what was said in political and near-political quarters that the recent participation of Mr. Bryan in the trial of John Thomas Scopes at Dayton, Tenn., the little town which now comes into additional prominence through the circumstance that it was nere that the man who was the candidate of his party for President of the United States three times—and was three times defeated—a record equaled only by that of Henry Clay—had been cause for worry among leading men of the Democratic Party.

Feared Religious Dispute.

While Mr. Bryan had denied that he had declared in a Sunday talk in Dayton that he intended to organize a crusade "to put the Bible in the Constitution," his remarks on that occasion produced an uneasy feeling among some of the Democratic faith that he contemplated organizing a movement that would revive, in the next Democratic National Convention, the bitterness of religious controversy that marked the anti-evolution episode dramatized in the Tennessee hills.

Nothing had come to light in political circles since the trial of Scopes got into full swing to show that the issue involved in the court proceedings at Dayton would be injected into national politics. But it was apparent from comment that came to the surface this evening following the news of Mr. Bryan's death that the fear existed among well-wishers of the Democratic Party that the next Democratic Convention, to be held in 1928, might find itself confronted by a situation even more embarrassing than that produced by the injection of the Ku Klux Klan issue in its quadrennial gathering of 1924.

Mr. Bryan, it was recalled, usually had produced some new issue at successive national conventions of his party. In 1896 it was the issue of free silver, although Mr. Bryan was not primarily responsible for that. In 1900 it was "imperialism," based on the taking over of the Philippines, Porto Rico and Guam as possessions of the United States.

That year Mr. Bryan, as in 1896, was the candidate of his party for President.

Gave Parker Little Support.

In 1904 Mr. Bryan took little part in the Presidential campaign because Alton B. Parker, the Democratic nominee for President, was not to his liking, especially as he had declined to accept a platform declaration in line with Mr. Bryan's free silver views. In 1908, when Mr. Bryan again was the Democratic Presidential nominee, he stressed in his campaign a governmental guarantee of bank deposits and other principles which worried the more conservative element of his party.

At another time he had advocated Government ownership of railroads as a party declaration. In the Democratic convention of 1912, at Baltimore, he abandoned his instructions as a Nebraska delegate to support the candidacy of Champ Clark, and espoused the cause of Woodrow Wilson. In 1920 he sought to have a flat endorsement of the prohibition amendment inserted in the party platform but did not succeed, after a bitter oratorical duel with W. Bourke Cockran on the convention floor.

Generally he had been a stormy petrel in his party's affairs for thirty years, and had produced more worry to Democratic leaders than any man high in the party council.

The measure of Mr. Bryan's influence with his party has come into some discussion recently, not merely on account of his possible espousal as a party issue of the principles he advocated in the Dayton trial, but because his so-called radicalism was at variance with a current effort that is being made to bring the party back into the conservative channels through which it was guided under the captaincy of Grover Cleveland. This effort has taken form in a fairly definite way, and the expectation is that when Congress reassembles in December it will be much in evidence.

The futile effort of Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, candidate for Vice President in 1920, to have a conference of leading Democrats to discuss future administration of party affairs had one important outcome in the apparent opinion of many prominent in Democratic councils, that the issues of the 1928 Presidential campaign could best be defined through the attitude displayed by the party in Congress prior to that year and not through any exchange of views at a gathering such as Mr. Roosevelt advocated. In view of this rather general feeling in party circles, the expectation is that the next session of Congress will be of extreme importance to Democratic workers and to the mass of voters who generally affiliate with that party.

That the tendency of Democratic leaders in Congress will be to bring the party back to the more conservative doctrines that were espoused prior to Mr. Bryan's candidacy for President in 1893 is already becoming manifest. Senators and Representatives who were ardent admirers and followers of Mr. Bryan's leadership in the past are showing that they believe the party's chance of success in the future will be materially strengthened by an abandonment of radical tendencies advocated by the Commoner. The outcome of last year's Presidential campaign, when Robert M. La Follette failed to make the showing at the polls that his radical following expected and the tremendous triumph of President Coolidge, regarded as an intense conservative, created the impression in many political minds that the generality of the American people were through with isms and preferred to be guided in a political way by those whose progressivism had no radical tinge.

A manifestation of the outcropping of this conservative tendency in the Democrat Party is already apparent in the admission of Democrat Senators and Representatives, that they are in favor of Federal tax revision that will reduce the present maximum surtax rates from 40 to 25 or even 20 per cent. When the present revenue act was under consideration, with the Mellon plan as its basis, Democrat Senators and Representatives joined with the La Follette radicals in Senate and House and succeeded in overthrowing Secretary Mellon's scheme of tax reform. Mr. Mellon advocated that maximum surtaxes be fixed at 25 per cent., but the Democrat-radical combination made the law declare that they should be 40 per cent. Nowaday many of the very men of the Democrat faith in Congress who took pride and satisfaction in overthrowing the Mellon formula are acknowledging publicity that they believe in a further tax revision, which President Coolidge will attempt to obtain, with maximum surtaxes to be fixed at or even lower than 25 per cent.

Uncertain About Radical Wing.

Through all these party plans there runs a thread of uncertainty as to whether the Democratic leaders have to reckon with the radical element of their party in Congress when tax reduction is given consideration at the session to begin in December. Naturally Mr. Bryan's influence within the party was not left out of consideration in this connection. It has been generally acknowledged here, even after Mr. Bryan's influence as a party leader appeared to wane, that he had a great personal following within the Democratic ranks, and that he had always been a power in the national conventions which define the party's course for presidential campaigns.

Now that Mr. Bryan has passed away, the question arises in political minds as to what effect his death will have upon the future of the Democratic Party. There were not enough prominent Democrats in Washington tonight to furnish any nucleus of opinion along that line, and in addition there is no disposition to discuss such a phase of political affairs immediately. It is taken for granted here, however, that the death of Bryan will have an important bearing upon the party's future, although its manifestations will not become apparent probably until Senators and Representatives gather in the National Capitol for the December session of Congress.

Bryan and the Lusitania Crisis.

Many stories were recalled in Washington tonight pertaining to Mr. Bryan's public career. One of the most striking of them concerned that period immediately following the destruction of the Lusitania by a German submarine.

The Lusitania was sunk off the Irish coast on Friday, May 7, 1915. News of the sea tragedy reached Washington about 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day. A regular Cabinet meeting, over which President Wilson had presided, had adjourned shortly before the first bulletin concerning the Lusitania disaster came to Washington.

Secretary Bryan and several members of the Cabinet were having luncheon in the dining room of the Shoreham Hotel when a newspaper reporter brought them the news. Mr. Bryan hurried from the Shoreham to the State Department for the double purpose of seeing if any official advices of the Lusitania's loss had been received, and waiting to be called to an expected conference at the White House with President Wilson.

Mr. Wilson had intended to go motoring that afternoon and his motor car was at the White House door when the Lusitania sensation was flashed into Washington. He dismissed the car and remained in his study, but he did not send for his Secretary of State. Later in the afternoon he called for his car and took a short motor ride alone.

Early that evening he left Washington for Philadelphia, three hours away, to keep an appointment to deliver an address to a large group of foreign-born citizens. His speech had been prepared in advance and was read by the President, but into it he interpolated the expression "Too proud to fight," which produced so much criticism in this country and abroad.

Wilson Didn't See Bryan.

On the platform with President Wilson when he delivered his address were Josephus Daniel, Secretary of the Navy, and William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor. They returned to Washington on the same train with the President, but not in his car, and did not see him on the journey. The next day (Saturday) President Wilson did not send for Secretary Bryan, nor did he see him on Sunday and Monday.

When Secretary Bryan received newspaper men at 3:30 o'clock on Monday afternoon he was asked if he had been in conference with the President over the Lusitania affair since news of the vessel's sinking was received in Washington three days before. Secretary Bryan answered, smilingly, somewhat as follows:

"I have not seen him, and if it will do you any good to know it, I have not communicated with him in any way, directly or indirectly, by wire or wireless."

Secretary Bryan did not see the President until 11 o'clock the following day, Tuesday, May 11, when Mr. Bryan appeared at the regular Cabinet meeting, and read to Mr. Bryan and his other advisers a rough draft of a diplomatic note he had prepared in regard to the Lusitania disaster for transmission to the German Government.

The note was prepared for Mr. Bryan to sign as Secretary of State. He objected to doing so and there was a spirited controversy around the Cabinet table, in which Lindley M. Garrison, Secretary of War; Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, and David F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture, appeared as antagonists to Mr. Bryan's view that the note should not be sent to Germany because it might lead to war with that country.

Ultimately Mr. Bryan consented to sign this communication. He declined, however, to put his signature to and transmit to Berlin what was known as "the second Lusitania note," and as a result of his attitude he resigned from the Cabinet on June 9, one month and two days after the sinking of the Lusitania.

There were some in Washington at that time who believed that the foundation for Mr. Bryan's resignation from the Cabinet was laid in the failure of President Wilson to send for him during the four days that intervened between the sinking of the Lusitania and the Cabinet meeting the following Tuesday, at which time the President presented, drafted without consultation with his Secretary of State, the important note sent to the German Government.

HIT AT EVOLUTIONISTS IN HIS LAST ADDRESS

Bryan Declared He Had Benefited by Their Fight Against Him.

WINCHESTER, Tenn., July 27 (AP).—William J. Bryan was derisive of the evolutionists in the last speech of his career, an address delivered here as an aftermath of the trial at Dayton in which Professor J. T. Scopes was convicted of violating the Tennessee Anti-Evolution law. Mr. Bryan served as associate counsel for the prosecution.

He declared the attacks made on him at the Dayton trial were the outcropping of a fight against him that his enemies had been carrying on in the dark and said he was benefited by it. He spoke of the evolution controversy as a "crusade for the enlightenment of the people."

Asserting that Darwinism "has a chilling influence on students," Mr. Bryan said:

"When a Christian wants to teach Christianity he has to build his own college, but the atheist expects to usurp public colleges and schools. When we take the Bible away from our children there is nothing left. The evolutionist that guesses the most times is the best scientist."

After paying his respects to Clarence Darrow of defense counsel in the Scopes trial for declaring agnostic views, Mr. Bryan concluded by saying that no evolutionist was honest unless he admitted that the theory "made an agnostic out of Darwin." He said that as for himself he was "pledged heart and body to help Tennessee prove that the world needs Christ more today than ever before."

BAKER PRAISES BRYAN.

Pomerene Calls Him One of This Generation's Greatest Orators.

CLEVELAND, July 26 (AP).—The country has lost its leader in politics and religious movements, Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, declared tonight when informed of the death of William J. Bryan.

"Mr. Bryan has been the undisputed leader in a great cause in politics and in religious movements for more than a generation," Mr. Baker said. "His death will cause widespread grief both among those who followed him and those who admired his firm stand and the greatness of his talents. I have known Mr. Bryan for thirty years, and I am greatly grieved to hear of his sudden death."

Comment of Press of Nation on Bryan's Death

NEW YORK.

From The Herald Tribune.

Few American public men have approached Mr. Bryan in political staying power and resiliency. No other convention-named candidate for President has ever been defeated three times at the polls. Clay was beaten three times, but the first time he had no party nomination. No other candidate except Clay has ever won a third nomination after being defeated twice. Grover Cleveland in our day is the only other man who was nominated for a second time after one defeat.

Mr. Bryan was essentially an orator and an advocate, not a thinker or administrator. It cannot be questioned that he lived up to a code of conduct which he had set himself, on its moral and religious side exacting and on its political side honorable. He tried to do the right thing as he saw it—which is in itself often a great distinction amid the rough and tumble of politics.

His Death Dramatic.

From The World.

Nothing could be more dramatic in time or in manner than the death of William Jennings Bryan, following so soon upon his appearance in the Dayton court room as protagonist in the trial upholding the anti-Evolution law of Tennessee. His heavy labors and keen anxiety during that stern test of his strength in fierce heat and in the consciousness that the eyes of the world were upon him and his cause may have hastened his departure. In any event his death at this time will weight his words at Dayton with the solemnity of a parting message and strengthen their effect upon his fellow citizens.

The records of the Republic contain no life story more remarkable than that of the late leader of the Fundamentalists.

The World will not pretend that it regarded Mr. Bryan's most recent activity with less than marked dislike and foreboding of the harm that it might cause or might accentuate. But in this hour of his setting forth upon the last long journey we would add our tribute to the man who had and held the sincere support of so large a part of the American people, whose influence upon his time was wide and deep and will not soon be forgotten.

Crusader of Lost Causes.

From The Graphic.

William Jennings Bryan, the crusader of lost causes, is dead under a broken shield in the arena of a Modernist and Fundamentalist religious combat. If he had been able to mark on the calendar the time of his death he could not have chosen a more dramatic closing for one of the most disappointing careers in political history.

No man in public life has suffered a more cruel fate than William J. Bryan. He paid the price for the simplicity of his mental processes in a modern world. His mind was not broad, but it was strong. He was always sure that he was right and he fought for his beliefs. He kept his followers because he was never below them and not much above them.

WASHINGTON.

"True to His Sense of Duty."

From The Washington Post.

Whatever his critics may say about him, Mr. Bryan was true to his sense of duty. He was intolerant of opposition when he believed he was right, and apparently it was this attitude that prevented him from being a successful politician and statesman. Many will not agree to the wisdom of much that he has advocated, but where can one find another name that has stood out prominently for more than thirty consecutive years in the important news of the day? If that alone be the test of greatness, then some measure of greatness must be granted the man who has fought his last battle for what he believed to be a great principle.

PITTSBURGH

Made Impression on the Nation.

From The Gazette Times.

The death of William Jennings Bryan removes from life not only one of the most striking contemporary figures but it also has sent to join the innumerable caravan one whom history will record as a conspicuous statesman, lawyer and publicist, a genial, likable gentleman, and an implacable fighter for causes which attracted his sympathy. These were many and varied and his activities in their behalf never failed to make an impression on the nation that was profound and enduring.

CINCINNATI.

"Man of Strong Connection."

From The Enquirer.

The greatest leader in progressive political thought that America has produced in many generations has penetrated the silence and darkness of the hereafter. No contemporary American has so profoundly influenced political history in the United States in the last forty years as William Jennings Bryan. * * *

Of the sincerity of Mr. Bryan there can be little question. Outspoken and fearless to a degree, there was seldom reason to inquire into his attitude on any public matter. He was not always right—in fact, was very often wrong—but his conviction in either event was positive and strong.

NEW ORLEANS.

Compared With Clay and Roosevelt.

From The Times Picayune.

Two other men only in American history may be compared with William Jennings Bryan as winning in near equal measure to the affectionate personal following which was his. One was Henry Clay, the other was Theodore Roosevelt. * * * And, through years of defeat, through years of espousing causes doomed to failure, he yet was a great and potent influence in that cleansing and purifying of American political life which, in spite of all sporadic scandal, is a marked feature of the generation which was passed from 1896 to 1925.

BALTIMORE.

Says All Will Regret His Passing.

From The Sun.

Mr. Bryan's sudden death will shock the country and bring grief to hundreds of thousands of his fellow-citizens. Correspondents at Dayton noted a certain weariness in his attitude and a lack of the old-time fire, but there was no intimation of any serious physical condition. He died at a time when his name was in the mouths of his countrymen as it had not been for years. For the moment friend and foe alike will regret the sudden passing — doubtless caused immediately by his labors on the Scopes case—of a man who has played a notable part in American politics.

PHILADELPHIA.

Calls Dayton His Most Memorable Fight.

From The Public Ledger.

One of the most resounding voices of America has been stilled at Dayton, the little Tennessee town where William Jennings Bryan died yesterday after final and dramatic appearance in the Scopes trial. He died as he had lived—a crusader. The echoes of his last and passionate appeals were still ringing when he passed away on the scene of his final and, in some ways, his most memorable fight. His passing will be a profound shock to millions, who, however often he misled them, looked upon his as their prophet and counselor.

LOUISVILLE.

From The Courier-Journal.

"There is no time at this hour to attempt an analysis of the singular and notable story of Mr. Bryan's life since those dramatic days of 1896. As he lived that story the Courier-Journal has made its comment. That, in most important features, it compelled the Courier Journal's disapproval, is well known to the readers of these columns, and death makes no occasion for either revision or repetition of the judgments of these forty years.

"Suffice to say now that the Courier-Journal, whatever may have been its interpretation of Mr. Bryan's campaign in 1896, sees in his death the death of a man of very great influence among millions of his countrymen; a man now acknowledged to have been honest in his mistakes and whose incessant activities, though not always promoting the best interests of the public as they were intended to do, were not, all in all, without salutary results."

BOSTON.

Drama in His Departure.

From The Herald.

Mr. Bryan began his public life at a time of widespread unrest, a leader of the discontented and the radical, an apostle of political and economic doctrines untried, dangerous and new. He ended his life prosecuting bitterly the advocates of what he considered the dangerous, untried and new in religious dogma. His entrance on the stage of political life was highly dramatic in its intensity and suddenness, and his departure from life is as dramatic in its suddenness.

MINNEAPOLIS.

Sincere in All His Purposes.

From The Tribune.

Mr. Bryan was greater in zeal than in mind. He will be remembered and adverted to in history as an eloquent protagonist rather than as a sound and achieving statesman. As an outrider and hearld of what he believed to be the way of true human progress he captured the imaginations and won the admiration—almost the adoration—of millions of his countrymen. Sincerity was shown through all his purposes. There never was any question that he sought to be the friend, counselor and helpful companion of the common man.

CLEVELAND.

Inspired by His Connection.

From The Plain Dealer.

No other in his way has had public attention or followers for so long as his thirty-five years of compelling Americans to watch, to listen, and often to follow him. * * * Not again for many a day will Mr. Bryan's fellow citizens hear more subtly golden and harmonious phrases flung at them from a man whose emotions were as vibrant as they were deep. The fire that inspired every word he uttered, was the fire of conviction. No man ever preached what he believed and believed what he preached more sincerely than the greatest Nebraskan.

SENATORS EXTOL COMMONER'S CAREER

Hitchcock, Fletcher, New, Ashurst and Lenroot Talk of His Public Life.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Prominent among the comments here upon the career of Mr. Bryan, who died unexpectedly today in Dayton, Tenn., was that of former Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who once employed the Commoner as editor of his Omaha newspaper.

"Within the thirty-six years of my acquaintance with Mr. Bryan he has lived several lives," Mr. Hitchcock said in reviewing Mr. Bryan's career.

"First was the period of youthful idealism during which his eloquence, magnetism and persuasive influence over men were at their height. He had then a very attractive personality and his followers were devoted to him.

"Then came the period of fierce political struggle, during which he gradually became harder and more self-seeking. Then came the period of disappointed hopes and the bitterness of his last campaign. After that he flung away his personal ambition and to some extent his devotion to party. His life then became a strange mixture of devotion to moral and social reforms and a shrewd promotion of personal interests.

"In all of these three lives that he successively led he sacrificed his health and strength by the most extraordinary exertions. Like La Follette, he became a victim of overwork. He was nevertheless the greatest moral force of his day."

Other comments were:

Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida: "I am awfully distressed. I knew Mr. Bryan was under great strain at Dayton, but that he should go so suddenly came as a great shock. The photographs sent out from Dayton showed very plainly that he was not bearing up any too well under the strain incident to the Scopes trial. Those pictures were of a very tired man, one who looked wan. Mr. Bryan was a splendid commanding personality, a great influence for good, and his loss is a serious blow to this country.

Senator Ashurst of Arizona: "Like Clay and Blaine, he always aroused a fervor of admiration when he spoke. Like Clay and Blaine, he raised up a host of enemies, but Bryan's moral elevation was superior to that of Clay or Blaine, and this gave him an authority they never possessed.

Senator Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin: "I am very sorry to hear of Mr. Bryan's death. The hold he had maintained over the country for a period of thirty years was a remarkable one: a man who held but few public offices and yet who was always in politics. He was a man of the highest ideals and character."

Postmaster General Harry S. New: "Few men have swayed public opinion in this country as Mr. Bryan did, notably in 1896. No one who knew him ever doubted his sincerity, however widely they may have differed from him in opinion."

EVOLUTION TRIAL STRAIN ON BRYAN

Many Saw That Commoner's Intense Interest Was Endangering His Health.

William Jennings Bryan offered his services to the State of Tennessee in prosecuting Professor John T. Scopes on a charge of violating the Tennessee statute prohibiting the teaching of evolution immediately after Mr. Scopes was arrested on May 5. He asserted long before the case went to trial in Dayton that it was to be "the most important that has ever been tried in America."

When Mr. Bryan arrived in Dayton on July 7 he outlined the nature of the fight in a speech before the Dayton Progressive Club.

"The contest between evolution and Christianity is a duel to the death," said the Commoner. "In the past it has been a death struggle in the darkness. From this time on it will be a death grapple in the light. If evolution wins in Dayton, Christianity goes—not suddenly, of course, but gradually—for the two cannot stand together."

That Mr. Bryan felt the strain of the trial and was sorely burdened by the depth of his own emotions was apparent to observers at the Scopes trial, including the Rev. Charles F. Potter, Modernist, who said he had predicted to others in Dayton at the time that the Scopes case would be a "death blow" to Mr. Bryan. He was troubled at heart not only by the attack he believed science and agnosticism was making on the inspired origin of the Bible, but by the gibes and sneers directed at himself from all quarters of the world.

Mr. Bryan had his day in court on July 16 when he presented the argument against the admission of testimony of scientists. The countryside had been waiting for that day. From the highlands the Tennessee mountaineers flocked to Dayton to hear the former Democratic Presidential candidate, of whom many had followed to every defeat.

The Nebraskan made a brilliant effort, but there were many in the courtroom who thought that the honors of the day went to Dudley Field Malone, who was associated with Clarence S. Darrow in the defense of Mr. Scopes. Mr. Bryan early in his argument disclosed that he had not practiced law for twenty-eight years.

He soon digressed from legal terminology and launched upon an attack against evolution. Clinching his right fist, which he raised on high, his face broke into a satirical smile when he hurled his contempt at Darrow, saying that a fourteen-year-old boy understood the subject of evolution much better than a distinguished lawyer who attempted to quiz him."

The Commoner sustained one of the severest blows of his lifetime when he submitted to examination by Mr. Darrow regarding his belief in the Bible. Mr. Darrow frequently confused him when he asked him to explain apparent discrepancies in the Holy Scriptures. The testimony of Mr. Bryan was expunged from the record by Judge Raulston.

RELATIVES TOLD OF DEATH.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 26 (AP).—Mrs. Frances M. Baird, eldest sister of William Jennings Bryan, received word of her brother's death at her home at College View, a suburb near here.

Mrs. Baird does not plan to leave here tonight for Tennessee, she said this evening. She said she was awaiting definite word from Dayton regarding arrangements being made by relatives.

Mrs. Baird is 67 years old, two years older than Mr. Bryan.

MAN IN THE STREET ESTIMATES BRYAN

WOMEN COMMENT ALSO

Good but Incompent, Says One Observer—Others Declare Nation Has Lost Its Best Known Citizen.

In an effort to ascertain how William Jennings Bryan was regarded by the average New Yorker the New York City News Association sent its reporters out last night to question those encountered in the streets. The canvass produced the following replies:

Max Kalter, Pine Street, Long Beach, L. I., manufacturer—The country lost a nationally famous character in the death of Mr. Bryan. As the silver-tongued orator he could always be depended upon to sway an audience.

Joe Wilkins, homeless—Bryan? Never heard of him.

Leo Dreyfus, 231 Second Avenue, Pharmacist—He was a man of sterling character and a marvelous orator.

Rev. Patrick F. O'Connor, Fire Department Chaplain—I think Bryan was a sincere man, a thorough American gentleman and a practical Christian, standing for the highest ideals.

Mary Walsh, Flushing, Queens, Clerk—I am very sorry that Mr. Bryan is dead. The world needs more Christians like him. He was a great man.

She Opposed Bryan Stand.

Maggie McGinty, 155 East Fifty-first Street, housewife—I was always opposed to Mr. Bryan's narrow-minded views in religion and prohibition. His stand in the Scopes trial was unconstitutional.

James Gibson, 353 Third Avenue—I'm not a drinking man. I'm against prohibition. May the Lord have mercy on his soul and forgive him his sins.

Edward Klenhaus, 240 East Twenty-third Street—I am very sorry to learn of Mr. Bryan's death. I voted for him once.

Matthew Blair, 606 West 137th Street, chemist—The country has lost one of its best known citizens. Mr. Bryan was internationally known as an orator. In his early political career Mr. Bryan had a national following.

May C. Ward, Hotel Flanders, actress—Mr. Bryan was a wonderful man, intellectual and intelligent. He made a great showing at the Scopes trial. He made points that opened the public's eyes. The entire country suffers a great loss in the death of Mr. Bryan.

M. G. Bryne, 444 West Fiftieth Street, a retired manufacturer and a Major in the Police Reserves—Mr. Bryan was one of the country's greatest orators and a wonderful leader. He was a true Democrat. I believe he was a superior being.

Lester Boyle, 135 West Tenth Street, student—Bryan was a martyr to his faith. He was loved by all throughout the West, where I come from.

John Walsh, 5,465 Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, bricklayer—Bryan was a great statesman. He was not very popular in New York because of his stand on prohibition.

Says Bryan Was Sincere.

James Wayson, sailor on the Coast Guard destroyer Cunningham—Bryan, regardless of everything, was a sincere and conscientious man and the world has lost one of its best leaders of the Fundamentalists.

Meyer J. Kutisker, 176 Second Avenue, physician—In the death of Mr. Bryan the country loses one of its foremost characters. Bryan had been a leader of his party for many years. His loss will be felt.

John Knobler, 303 First Avenue, baker—I am very sorry, but I never voted for him.

Henry Roeschen, Twenty-third Street and Third Avenue, pharmacist—I voted for him once and am very sorry to learn of his death.

Herman Schoenberg, 143 West Fifty-first Street, delicatessen shop—I was 16-to-1 against Bryan. He was always wrong.

Daniel Sumner, 441 Lexington Avenue, night watchman—I voted for Bryan for President in 1896. But I didn't vote for him again. Bryan was a good man but incompetent. He didn't know his Bible or would have answered Darrow's questions better. Anyway, I think Bryan did a great thing when he stirred up the question of evolution. The Bible doesn't say anything about evolution and I take my stand on the Bible.

LINCOLN NOT SURPRISED.

Friends of Bryan There Had Noted His Failing Health.

Special to The New York Times.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 26.—News of the death of W. J. Bryan was no great surprise to many of his Lincoln friends who had seen him recently and had noted the changed appearance and lack of life and fervor that characterized the Bryan they knew best. None, however, knew just how ill he was, and few knew the nature of his ailment, but his appearance was a forewarning that told them plainly he would not be with them long.

The news came to Lincoln at a time when few public meetings were being held, before the hour for evening services in the churches. The afternoon was hot and the weather had driven thousands to the city's largest recreation centre, Antelope Park.

A band concert was in progress there when word came that Mr. Bryan was dead. Announcement of the fact from the bandstand caused a profound sensation from which the crowd did not recover quickly. Antelope Park had been enlarged and made better by Mr. Bryan's donations. Fairview, his former home, overlooks this park and persons seated in the park could see the home he occupied while a Presidential candidate, which now is being changed to a Methodist hospital, for which purpose Mr. Bryan donated the property.

Mr. Bryan's sister, Mrs. Thomas S. Allen, is in Minnesota. None of the immediate members of the family is in Lincoln at this time.

How Bryan Defeated Move to Denounce The Ku Klux Klan by Name in the Convention

The last great political fight of Mr. Bryan was in the Democratic National Convention in June, 1924, in Madison Square Garden, and last night politicians recalled how he managed to project his personality into the proceedings. Twice Mr. Bryan led fights on the floor of the convention, winning one and being beaten in the other.

It was to the Commoner that credit went for keeping denunciation of the Ku Klux Klan by name out of the party's platform. Strong elements, notably that backing the candidacy of Governor Smith, wished to place the Democratic Party squarely on record as opposing the Klan. Tacticians in the councils, however, Mr. Bryan among them, felt the unwisdom of this in its probable effect in the South and fought to prevent it.

The fight shifted back and forth. On the eve of the vote Mr. Bryan admitted that victory for his faction seemed unlikely, but when the ballots were counted he had won by a mere fraction of a vote.

The second battle of Mr. Bryan in the convention was for the nomination of William G. McAdoo. He opposed Governor Smith as representative of the wet element and struggled with all the vigor of his conviction to bring about the designation of Mr. McAdoo. How he failed is a matter of record.

After the convention closed politicians were of the opinion that Mr. Bryan's speech against naming the Klan won that battle for him. In that speech Bryan said that the Catholic Church, with its heritage of martyrs and its years of success under persecution, needed no party to champion it against the Ku Klux Klan. Nor, he added, did the Jewish people, who had amply demonstrated their ability to withstand attacks on religious grounds. He urged that the Democratic Party must never align itself with any one Church.

A GREAT DEMOCRAT, MC COOEY'S TRIBUTE

John H. McCooey, Democratic leader in Brooklyn, last night recalled a Bryan incident at the Democratic National Convention last year.

Mr. Bryan was a member of a committee which had under consideration a resolution dealing with the Ku Klux Klan, which subsequently brought about one of the most bitter fights in the convention. The big question before the committee and later before the convention itself was whether the Klan should be denounced by name or in general terms. Mr. Bryan vigorously opposed the naming of the Klan in the resolution and repeatedly demanded that "three menacing words" (Ku Klux Klan) be stricken from it.

Mr. McCooey at one meeting of the committee recalled to Mr. Bryan that there had been three menacing words in the first platform on which he ran for President in 1896, and that he at that time had bitterly opposed their elimination.

"May I ask what the menacing words in my platform were?" Bryan asked.

"Sixteen to one," the Brooklyn leader promptly replied. "If you had agreed to keep those words out the election might have been a different story to yourself and to the party."

"Bryan merely smiled," Mr. McCooey said. "Then he turned to me and said: 'That's too long past to be brought up against me now. There is a statute of limitation even in politics.'

"Mr. Bryan was very sincere and very intense. I had known him since 1896 and can only express my profound regret at the death of a great Democrat, for he was that. Mr. Bryan in his own way rendered great public service. I seldom agreed with his public policies, but personally I have always held him in great respect. He was a very remarkable man. In many things he was away ahead of his time. He, for instance, advocated direct primaries, the direct election of United States Senators and woman suffrage when these were scoffed at by most people."

JUDGE PARKER SILENT.

Former Candidate Refuses Comment on Bryan's Career.

Alton B. Parker, at his Summer home in Esopus, declined to make any comment when informed by THE NEW YORK TIMES of Mr. Bryan's death.

From the time when Mr. Parker ran for President, in 1904, following the second defeat of Mr. Bryan as a Presidential nominee of his party four years earlier, Bryan had fought him bitterly whenever occasion offered. In the platform on which Mr. Parker ran there was a plank pledging the adherence of the party to the gold standard, a direct repudiation of the free silver policy advocated by Mr. Bryan when he was a candidate for the Presidency in 1896. This plank was incorporated in the platform at the direct request of Mr. Parker and was made by him a condition for his accepting the nomination. This action sank deep into Bryan's soul.

At the 1912 convention Mr. Parker was the candidate for Temporary Chairman. Mr. Bryan launched a bitter fight against him, denouncing him as a reactionary and the candidate of "the Murphy-Ryan-Belmont combine" in one of the most bitter speeches ever heard at a Democratic National Convention.

BRYAN IS EULOGIZED, EVEN BY OPPONENTS

No other man of his generation has been so long identified with public questions or has been so universally known throughout the United States. Although many of the things put forward by him were not accepted, I think it is only fair to say few men, if any, have lived to see so many of the policies they advocated enacted into law.

"His incalculable influence upon public thought cannot be measured however, only by the standards of personal or political success. If he had done no more than furnish to the men of his day an outstanding example of unflinching moral courage he would have rendered a great service to his age. This virtue earned him the respect even of those who most profoundly disagreed with him. He was never content until he had discovered what he believed was the moral right or wrong of every public question. When this had been decided he was unwavering.

"The country is poorer for his loss."

United States Senator Royal S. Copeland said he had always recognized Mr. Bryan's great sincerity and persuasive power, although he had never followed him in politics.

"No man ever had greater power over an audience than William Jennings Bryan," said the Senator. "I talked to him many times about his religious convictions. He said that he felt his influence was greater than it ever could have been had he been President of the United States, because he felt that he had a greater personal following and personal influence than any President had had. I think he was right in that. Great numbers of people fere enthused and uplifted by him."

William C. Redfield, Secretary of Commerce in the Cabinet of President Wilson when Mr. Bryan was Secretary of State, recalled the resignation of the Commoner and the President's effort to have him continue with the Administration.

"I think I was the first person, next to the President, to hear of Mr. Bryan's resignation as Secretary of State," said Mr. Redfield. "I had an appointment with the President and he was late, an unusual incident for him, and I waited in the White House office for half an hour. Then the President came down the stairs and announced he had just left Mr. Bryan, who had resigned, and that he had tried to have Mr. Bryan reconsider and withdraw his resignation."

Bryan Walked the Floor.

"Afterward Mrs. Bryan told me that her husband had walked the floor most of the night preceding his resignation to the President, trying to reach a decision as to the best course to follow, and he finally decided that it was his duty under the circumstances to retire from the Cabinet."

Frank L. Polk, who was Acting Secretary of State under President Wilson, said last night in a telegram from Bar Harbor, Me.: "It is with real regret that I have heard of Mr. Bryan's death. One could not come in close contact with him without appreciating his sweetness of character, honesty and, above all, his courage, even though disagreeing with his doctrines. He was an idealist and not always practical, but some forlorn hopes led by Mr. Bryan in time found prominent places in the platforms of both parties. For many years he had been a commanding figure in American life and the news of his death will be received with sincere sorrow by the people of his country."

Bainbridge Colby, one of the Secretaries of State under the Wilson régime, who succeeded Secretary Bryan, said: "I just learned the news of Mr. Bryan's death on my return from a trip out of town. I am very much shocked and grieved."

Colonel Lloyd C. Griscom, Syosset, L. I., Chairman of the State Republican Committee during President Roosevelt's Administration and an intimate of Mr. Bryan, said: "He was a great product of America. He represented a great number of the American millions. He was a man of high moral influence. While I disagreed with him in politics, I shared with the American public a great respect for his sincerity in all matters relating to temperance and religion. He was a man of obvious, immense qualities."

County Clerk William E. Kelly, one of the leading Democrats of Brooklyn, made the following comment: "Very few men possessed the forensic ability of Colonel William Jennings Bryan. The three outstanding ideals he sponsored were free silver, prohibition and anti-evolution. He held the unprecedented reputation of having been three times the candidate of a great political party, and although unsuccessful in each instance he continued to be a potent factor in the affairs of the Democratic Party. His last and supreme effort to disprove the theory of evolution was one of his few successes. Colonel Bryan had a large following, and his death comes as a great shock. A good citizen of America has passed away."

Says Trial Was His Death-Blow.

Charles Francis Potter, Unitarian clergyman, who assisted in the preparation of the defense of John Thomas Scopes, said that the strain of the trial had caused Mr. Bryan's death.

"Mr. Bryan was a mighty palliative of the old days," he said. "He lived in a world of his own imagination. He was sincere in his own beliefs. The Dayton trial was his death-blow. I studied his face during the trial and remarked to several that this would be his death blow."

WILLIAMS DELEGATES PAY BRYAN TRIBUTES

Amricans and Foreigners at Political Institute Praise His Sincerity of Purpose.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 26.—Members of the Institute of Politics, meeting here, were shocked tonight at the news of William Jennings Bryan's death. Republicans and Democrats, Americans and foreigners, expressed deep regret.

Victor Rosewater, former Chairman of the Republican National Committee and former publisher of The Omaha (Neb.) Bee, said that Mr. Bryan was an old friend of his and of his father, the late Edward Rosewater, and that he deeply regretted his death.

"My father debated the free silver question with Mr. Bryan in 1896 and I worked against him for the Republican National Committee in the election of 1908," said Mr. Rosewater. "We were always political opponents, but good friends personally. Mr. Bryan never carried his political rancor into his personal relations. He was the most stubbornly wrong man I ever knew in politics, but he was perfectly sincere in his vagaries. I admired him for his sincerity and his honesty of purpose."

Dr. L. S. Rowe, Director General of the Pan American Union, Washington, D. C., said:

"The emphasis of international helpfulness and cooperation was always the keynote of Mr. Bryan's viewpoint. In this respect he exerted a powerful influence in the education of public opinion. This was particularly true of his attitude toward the Latin-American republics. His visits to Central and South America brought him a host of friends in those countries, all of whom will deeply mourn his loss."

Dr. William E. Rappard, Swiss member of the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations and professor at the University of Geneva, said:

"I was greatly shocked at the news of Mr. Bryan's sudden death. Democratic Europe will always gratefully remember the services he rendered to the cause of international arbitration."

Count Antonio Cippico, Italian Senator and Fascist, said:

"Mr. Bryan's death no doubt will be viewed with varying emotions abroad, particularly because of the remarkable trial at Dayton. But in my judgment his long public career chiefly exemplified the opportunities afforded in American life for civic effort and performance. His designation, the Great Commoner, was a popular recognition of his sincerity of thought and purpose, however many of us may have differed with him in some of his specific views and convictions.

BORAH EULOGIZES BRYAN.

Special to The New York Times.

BOISE, Idaho, July 26.—"I have little doubt that Mr. Bryan died as he would have wished to die—in harness and fighting in a cause in which was enlisted the supreme conviction of his life," Senator Borah said tonight. "We can at this time put aside debate as to the correctness of this or that view which at different times he entertained throughout his crowded and spectacular career, but the purity of his purposes and the sincerity of his convictions no one who knew him well will doubt.

"He was persistent and courageous in the advocacy of his views, and he never intended to speak other than for humanity. On the hustings he perhaps had no superior, unless it was Henry Clay in this country and John Bright in England. His speeches, however, were for the audience before him and the hour and occasion, and, like Clay's speeches, will not be so much read in the future.

BRYAN SAID HE HAD $500,000 LAST APRIL

Resenting Reports of His Great Wealth, He Gave These Figures to Editor in Tampa.

PROFITS IN REAL ESTATE

Denied He Was a Millionaire and and Declared He Never Would Be.

William Jennings Bryan's wealth, a matter of much speculation, particularly in the period of his Florida real estate investments, was announced by him April 27 last to be in the neighborhood of $500,000. He said he expected to have that amount to invest in bonds when he concluded his realty transactions.

This announcement by Mr. Bryan was made in a letter to E. D. Lambright, editor of The Tampa (Fla.) Morning Tribune, which was published in The World. Editorial articles commenting on his real estate deals had angered him and he said he selected Mr. Lambright's paper because of his fair attitude. Of the reports that he had become a millionaire, Mr. Bryan wrote:

"I am not a millionaire; I am far from it, and never shall be, but I have been fortunate in the matter of finances. There has never been a year since my first nomination in which I could not have made a million had I taken the side of privilege and favoritism.

"The unexpected profits that I have made in Miami real estate have so increased my savings that I now have the promise of an income that will as fully meet the new conditions as the income from my earnings alone would have met old conditions.

"I have sold nearly all my property, including my first home here (Tampa, Fla.), Villa Serena, except the new and less valuable home into which we moved last Fall. When the remainder of my property is turned into interest-bearing securities I can reasonably expect to have for the first time in my life an income sufficient for the needs of Mrs. Bryan and myself, even when I am no longer able to add to that income by literary work.

"When we moved from Nebraska we gave our home, valued by us at $50,000 and by those who received it at more than $75,000, to the Methodist Church for a hospital. The value of that gift alone was more than one-tenth of all the profits I have ever received from real estate. It is mor than one-tenth of the profits I ever will receive on real estate. Our subscriptions to churches in this State have amounted to more than $10,000 within the past year."

BRYAN ADVENTURES IN EAST

Crows in Ceylon Stole His Watch and Part of His Breakfast.

Mr. Bryan was known to fame in all the large cities of the world. At Rangoon, for instance, where he stopped on his trip around the world in 1905-06, he was surrounded by a host of admirers in the Strand Hotel, where he and his family were registered. Every one clamored to shake the hand of the "great Commoner." To a NEW YORK TIMES reporter there he spoke on subjects ranging from the condition of the people of India to the latest political news from home.

He expressed his belief that he would eventually be elected President of the United States. Mr. Bryan repeated this in the drawing room of the hotel when he was surrounded by American tourists after dinner who applauded him and the women begged him to autograph their books.

The Great Commoner showed considerable interest in the condition of the native of India and told those who called to see him that he would speak on their behalf when he returned home and also in England.

At that time the electric fans, now so common throughout the East Indies, were not in general use in Burman and guests in the hotel had canvas punkahs over their beds which boys called "punkahs wallas" wafted to and fro all night for twenty cents.

Mr. Bryan said it was a blot on the civilization of the twentieth century that such a state of things should exist. He could not find any other means of keeping cool at night, however, and had to use a punkah walla the same as every one else.

Later at Colombo, Ceylon, when the reporter met him again, Mr. Bryan, while stopping at the Galle Face Hotel, had a quaint adventure with some crows which had their early morning rendezvous on the upper branches of some lofty palm trees just outside the window of his room.

Notices were posted in all the bedrooms on that side of the hotel warning the guests not to place any glistening objects like diamond rings, pendants, earrings or other articles of jewelry on the dressing table because the crows might fly in and steal them.

Mr. Bryan had left the shutter open because of the heat and was aroused by the bright sunlight streaming across his bed, as he sat up a big crow as black as pet flew into the room and seized his gold watch and chain that was lying on the dressing table and flew out with it.

The kitmagar, native servant, came in with his early morning breakfast at that time and saw what had occurred. He went to the window and shouted in Singalese to the crow and the bird dropped its glitterig loot on the sandy beach, under the palm trees.

When Mr. Bryan went to eat his breakfast two more crows, friends of the first black-feathered robber, flew into the room and started to steal the things on the painted wooden tray. One bird seized a banana and the other a slice of toast, while Mr. Bryan grabbed his bamboo cane and tried to beat them off. The native boy came back at that moment with the watch and chain and the crows flew out of the room holding the booty in their beaks.

Replying to the demands of anthracite miners for increases in wages, which would add at least $2 a ton to the domestic sizes of anthracite coal, Samuel D. Warriner, Chairman of the Anthracite Operators Conference, on July 9th proposed that:

> Because of the differences which now arise between us, you asking for an increase in wages and we asking for a reduction, we wish to urge that provision be made at the outset against the possibility of a suspension on September 1.
> It can be accomplished by an agreement to the effect that if our respective committees are unable to agree upon any issues, such issues shall be referred to arbitration, upon the understanding that production shall be continued at the present wage scale until the arbitrators render an award.

This would assure an ample supply of anthracite at normal prices until an award was made.

Lifted over night from comparative obscurity into nation-wide prominence by his "cross of gold" speech at the 1896 Democratic National Convention, which made him the party nominee for President, William Jennings Bryan occupied a unique position in the politics of the country for thirty years.

Thrice nominated for the Presidency and thrice defeated, Mr. Bryan practically dominated the Democratic Party in the nation for nearly sixteen years. With his political power waning, he was nevertheless strong enough to bring about the nomination of Woodrow Wilson for President in 1912, after Champ Clark, the latter's leading opponent, had obtained the vote of more than a majority of the delegates.

Opposed by powerful leaders of his own party, particularly in the East, Mr. Bryan was regarded as a disruptive force by many Democrats. By others he was considered as almost a second Moses divinely appointed to lead the people of the United States to righteousness and prosperity. No man in public life in the United States in recent years had more political enemies. For a time, at least, none had more devoted followers.

Storm Centre in Religion.

Mr. Bryan was a political storm centre in religion as well as politics. A Presbyterian Fundamentalist, he sought unsuccessfully election as Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly three years ago. Between political campaigns Mr. Bryan toured the country as a Chautauqua circuit lecturer, delivering a series of addresses, of which his "Prince of Peace" was the best known.

Years before the enactment of the Tennessee law, which resulted in the trial of John T. Scopes for teaching the evolutionary theory of the origin of man, at which he was one of the central figures, Mr. Bryan had preached against Darwinism in nearly every city and town in the country. The expression of his views of evolution, as given in his testimony at the Scopes trial, contained little that he had not said many times before.

The highest office ever held by Mr. Bryan was that of Secretary of State by appointment of President Wilson. There was a widespread public opinion that his talents were hardly of a nature to enable him to give a successful administration of that office, particularly in the difficult days which preceded the entrance of the United States into the World War. His resignation, just before the final break with Germany, came as a result of a disagreement with President Wilson over the latter's notes to Germany, due to Mr. Bryan's desire for peace. He was subsequently subjected to much unfavorable criticism on a charge of aiding the propaganda of the Central Powers, unintentionally, by his speeches and writings.

Born in Illinois.

William Jennings Bryan was born in Salem, Ill., March 19, 1860. His father was Silas Lillard Bryan, a native of Culpeper County Va., a lawyer and a Judge. The son, after graduating from Illinois College in 1881, and from the Union College of Law, Chicago, in 1883, entered the law office of Lyman Trumbull, former United States Senator. Subsequently Mr. Bryan moved to Jacksonville, Ill., where he practiced law until 1887, when he settled in Lincoln, Neb.

During the Presidential campaign of 1888 Mr. Bryan's speeches in behalf of the Democratic national ticket attracted attention, and in 1890 he received the Democratic nomination for Representative in the First Nebraska Congressional District, a Republican stronghold. The nomination went to Mr. Bryan because no one else would have it and it was believed that no Democrat could win. Displaying the forensic power that later made him known nationally, Mr. Bryan made a personal canvass of the district and was elected. He served in Congress from 1891 to 1895, being made a member of the important Ways and Means Committee during his first term.

Two speeches during this period gave Mr. Bryan some degree of prominence. One, against the Republican policy of a protective tariff, was delivered on March 16, 1892, and the other, against the repeal of the silver purchase clause of the Sherman act, on Aug. 16, 1893. In the latter speech Mr. Bryan advocated "the free and unlimited coinage of silver, irrespective of international agreement, at the ratio of 16 to 1," a policy with which his name was afterward most prominently associated until he entered the Cabinet of President Wilson.

Beaten on Sound-Money Issue.

Mr. Bryan was beaten for a third term in the House on the sound-money issue, and also suffered defeat when he ran as the Democratic candidate for Senator against John M. Thurston, Republican, of Nebraska. Abandoning the law, Mr. Bryan became editor of the Omaha World-Herald and championed the cause of bi-metallism as vigorously with his pen as he had in his speeches. He was known through the Middle West as an outspoken advocate of "free silver" when the party national conventions were held in 1896.

The silver question was then rending both the major political parties, and in the Republican Party culminated in the split of the Free Silver Republicans, whose nominee for President, Senator Henry M. Teller of Colorado, threw his support to Mr. Bryan when the latter won the Democratic nomination at Chicago.

Mr. Bryan's first nomination for the Presidency, which was made on July 10, 1896, has been characterized as one of the "miracles" of American politics. His "cross of gold" speech, which has been quoted from perhaps more frequently than any other of his speeches and made him the oponent of William McKinley, head of the Republican national ticket, came at the close of a debate on the floor of the convention in advocacy of a free silver plank. Men nationally prominent in the party had preceded him and had opposed the adoption of a free silver plank unless bimetallism should be provided for by international agreement.

The situation was tense when Mr. Bryan, then only 36 years old—only a year more than the constitutional age requirement for a President—arose to speak.

The delegates and spectators were tired. Everybody seemed ready for a compromise, but there was no compromise in the mien of the young delegate and ex-Representative from Nebraska when he began his speech.

Famous "Cross of Gold" Speech.

"I would be presumptuous, indeed, to present myself against the distinguished gentlemen to whom you have listened if this were a mere measuring of abilities," he said, "but this is not a contest between persons. The humblest citizen in all the land, when clad in the armor of a righteous cause, is stronger than all the hosts of error. I came to speak to you in a cause as holy as that of liberty—the cause of humanity."

Then, charging the evils of the day, the idle mills, the low wages and the social unrest, to the scarcity of money and "the idle holders of idle money in Wall Street," he continued:

"The individual is but an atom; he is born; he acts; he dies; but his principles are eternal, and this has been a contest over a principle. Having behind us the producing masses of this nation and the world, supported by the commercial interests, the laboring interests and the toilers everywhere, we will answer those who demand a single gold standard by saying:

"'You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns. You shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold.'"

Stampedes the Convention.

This daring metaphor, based on the crucifixion of the Saviour, stampeded the convention. He was nominated as the party candidate on the fifth ballot over eight other candidates, following a speech by a Georgia delegate who referred to Mr. Bryan as "a Saul come to lead the Israelites to battle." Later he also was made the nominee of the People's and National Silver Parties.

Mr. Bryan broke all political speechmaking records in his first campaign. He travelled more than 18,000 miles and made more than 600 speeches in twenty-seven states. Everywhere he appeared great crowds, in many cases larger than ever had greeted any other candidate, turned out to see and hear him. His speech in Madison Square Garden in this city during the Fall of that year, and to an overflow meeting outside, established a record for attendance at a political meeting here.

It was a different Bryan from the one known in the last twenty years who came into the East in 1896 in his first invasion of what he later called "the enemy's country." Vigorous, magnetic and virile at that time, Mr. Bryan spoke with the fire and the grace of a natural orator. He seemed to think naturally in oratorical phrases and his deep, powerful voice, with notes like those of a pipe organ, enabled him to reach without difficulty the most distant auditor in a crowd of thousands—a great advantage in the days before the use of voice-amplifying devices.

So successful on the surface was Mr. Bryan's campaign that the Republican campaign managers, headed by Mark Hanna, National Chairman, became greatly worried and for a time it seemed as if Mr. Bryan might sweep all before him through sheer power of his oratory. Roused to a sense of peril, the business interests of the country practically united against him and the nomination of the "gold Democratic" ticket of Palmer and Buckner took from him the votes of thousands of Democrats.

Defeated by McKinley.

Mr. Bryan polled a popular vote of 6,502,925 to 7,104,779 for McKinley and received 176 votes in the electoral college to 271 for his opponent.

At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war in 1898 Mr. Bryan entered the volunteer army and gained his title of Colonel as comander of the Third Nebraska Volunteer Infantry. The regiment never got out of training camp. After the war he oposed the permanent retention of the Philipines by the United States.

In 1900 Mr. Bryan was again nominated for the Presidency by the Democratic Party. He made "anti-imperialism" the "paramount issue" of his campaign, but refused to permit a specific declaration in favor of the free coinage of silver to be omitted from the party platform. He made another speaking campaign of the "whirlwind" variety, although not so sensational as his first tour. He was defeated this time by President McKinley by a popular vote of 7,207,923 to 6,358,133 and an electoral vote of 292 to 155.

After his second defeat Mr. Bryan returned to Lincoln and started the publication of a weekly newspaper, The Commoner. He had a strong following throughout the country, even though in the minority, and the financial success of the paper was almost immediate. It was during this period that Mr. Bryan first came into great demand as a public speaker and was criticized for accepting fees for his speeches, although it was said he never charged for a speech on a purely political topic.

In 1904 Mr. Bryan retired temporarily to the background, and Alton B. Parker, then Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals of New York State, was made the Democratic nominee for President as a "safe and sane" candidate to run against Theodore Roosevelt, who had succeeded to the Presidency on the assassination of President McKinley. Mr. Bryan was not actively a candidate at the Democratic National Convention, but vigorously opposed the Democracy's "conservative" attitude in naming Judge Parker.

The interval between 1904 and the next Presidential election in 1908 was occupied by Mr. Bryan, now styled by many of his followers "The Peerless Leader," in several enterprises which kept him in the public eye. Notable among these was a trip around the world, on which he started on Sept. 21, 1905. Accompanied by his wife, son and daughter, Mr. Bryan first went to Japan and China, where he was entertained and made many addresses, one of which, "The White Man's Burden," was commended by the Japanese-American Society. The Bryans were presented to the Emperor of Japan and everywhere were accorded honors due to foremost Americans.

Mr. Bryan and his party went to the Philippines, where his liberal views on Filipino independence were welcomed by the natives. During this visit the Moros of Mindanao Island made Mr. Bryan a "datto," or chief, of one of their tribes.

Mr. Bryan and his party afterward went to India, Palestine, Turkey, Austria-Hungary, Germany, Russia, Italy, Norway, Sweden and other European countries, and arrived in London on July 3, 1906. During his trip Mr. Bryan "interviewed" King Edward VII., the Czar of Russia and other rulers, and Count Leo Tolstoy, and made numerous speeches, practically all of which were reported in the American press. Democrats in the United States arranged for a great reception, which was held upon his return in September.

In a speech at Madison Square Garden on this occasion, Mr. Bryan threw a verbal bombshell among the Democrats by advocating the Government ownership of railroads. This intensified the opposition to him of many Eastern Democrats.

Urged World Disarmament.

Soon after his return Mr. Bryan came out for world disarmament, an ideal which is said to have prompted his drafting in 1913, after he had become Secretary of State, a particular form of treaty between the United States and foreign nations "by which all disputes were to be submitted to an impartial investigating tribunal for a year before hostilities could begin." Mr. Bryan regarded this as his greatest achievement, for thirty foreign nations, including the Central Powers and representing about three-fourths of the population of the world, became signatories. About a year later the World War began.

In 1908, despite strong opposition against what his foes within the party stigmatized as "the blight of Bryanism," Mr. Bryan was again named as the Democratic candidate for President against William H. Taft, the Republican nominee. For a third time he suffered defeat, polling 6,409,104 votes, to 7,678,908 for Taft, and receiving 162 electoral votes, to 321 for his opponent.

Mr. Bryan took his political defeats rather gracefully and was what is known as a "good loser." After the 1908 election he continued to edit his newspaper, and at the same time retained his hold upon a considerable section of his party.

The demand for him as a lecturer increased, and his income was augmented by writing for newspapers and magazines and by the authorship of several books. The latter included "The First Battle," a story of his first Presidential campaign; "The Old World and Its Ways," a result of his tour of the world, and "Heart to Heart Appeal."

During this period Mr. Bryan took to spending his Winters in the more favorable climate of the South, first at Asheville, N. C., and later in Miami, Fla., where he established a permanent residence.

A few months before the 1912 Democratic National Convention Mr. Bryan announced that he would not be a candidate for the nomination for President, and that he was "ready to enter upon a campaign in behalf of a true Democrat with even more vigor than that with which I have fought at any time on my own behalf."

Woodrow Wilson at that time was Governor of New Jersey and had attracted the favorable attention of Mr. Bryan by his "progressive" policies. When the convention met at Baltimore, Mr. Bryan, although suspected of ambition for a fourth nomination, aligned himself in support of Wilson.

His first attack upon the "interests" was an oratorical onslaught against Tammany, Charles F. Murphy, then its leader, and August Belmont and Thomas F. Ryan, delegates to the convention, whom he denounced as representatives of the "interests." Mr. Bryan made this attack, to which the late John B. Stanchfield replied the next day, in a speech opposing the selection of Alton B. Parker, whose nomination and platform he had opposed four years before, as temporary Chairman, and demanding the selection of a chairman who would sound a "progressive" keynote.

Thereafter, during the convention, Mr. Bryan battled to bring about the nomination of Mr. Wilson and to defeat Champ Clark, then Speaker of the House of Representatives. Mr. Clark led for twenty-seven ballots and once had a clear majority of nine, which ordinarily would have made him the party's candidate despite the rule requiring a two-thirds vote to nominate. The persistence of Mr. Bryan's opposition and his reiteration of a plea against the "domination of the party by Wall Street," finally broke the ranks of the Clark supporters and brought about the designation of Mr. Wilson.

The Republican Party already had been split by the fight between Taft and Roosevelt at Chicago, and the nomination of Roosevelt as the candidate of the National Progressive Party followed soon after the Baltimore convention. A sweeping victory for Mr. Wilson came at the November election.

Made Secretary of State.

President Wilson considered himself indebted to Mr. Bryan for his nomination and showed his appreciation by inviting him to head his Cabinet as Secretary of State. The two years of Mr. Bryan's incumbency of this office were years of difficulty. The trouble with Mexico, the Japanese alien land controversy in California and the correspondence with Germany and Austria-Hungary before the entrance of the United States into the World War caused the Secretary much anxiety.

During Mr. Bryan's term of office, because of an insult to the American flag and the refusal of Huerta, President or "dictator" of Mexico, to order a salute fired in apology, American troops were sent to Vera Cruz, which was captured April 21, 1914. Subsequently the troops and warships were withdrawn, Huerta was deposed and a constitutionalist Government under Venustiana Carranza was set up in his stead.

At the height of the alien land law controversy in California Mr. Bryan went to that State, had several conferences with its Governor and spoke before the Legislature. Strained relations with Japan were improved by the passage of another measure known as the Webb bill, which modified somewhat the restrictions against Japanese in California.

Quits Cabinet Suddenly.

Mr. Bryan's resignation from President Wilson's Cabinet, which occurred on June 9, 1915, came suddenly. It was known that there had been differences of opinion between the President and the head of the State Department, but it was not realized generally that the breach had gone beyond healing. Germany's aggressions and policy of ruthless submarine warfare seemed to be drawing the United States into the war, but Mr. Bryan appeared to be for peace in any event.

The time came when President Wilson's notes to Germany took on a stronger tone and the sinking of another American ship by a German submarine led to a more emphatic protest from the President. Mr. Bryan, who had previously declared that there was "nothing final between friends," sent a letter of resignation to the President. Mr. Wilson, deploring Mr. Bryan's resignation as a "personal loss," accepted his Secretary's withdrawal and said that they both sought the same end but by different methods.

Mr. Bryan's zeal to bring about world peace led him to enthusiasm in act and speech that subjected him to hostile criticism. Before the United States entered the war he pledged himself to accompany Henry Ford's "peace ship" expedition to Europe, "to get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas," but subsequently he changed his mind and decided not to go.

He was accused of aiding the propaganda of the Central Powers by his speeches and writings, and early in the war declared that it had been fomented by "profit seekers." In an address in San Francisco he said that for the United States to go to war with Germany would be "like challenging a madhouse."

Sought Service as a Private.

He also at one time opposed the United States making any loans to belligerents. When America entered the war, however, Mr. Bryan promptly declared that Germany must be "defeated at all costs," and offered his services to President Wilson as a private soldier.

During his two years as Secretary of State Mr. Bryan was criticized for his frequent abscences as a lecturer, and his appearances on the Chautauqua circuit became a matter for raillery in the public press. Mr. Bryan explained in a statement that the $12,000 salary he received as a Cabinet officer was too little to meet the ordinary household demands upon his pocketbook and that he felt obliged to supplement his income.

Mr. Bryan's practice of serving grape juice instead of alcoholic beverages when entertaining members of the diplomatic corps also was ridiculed. He said he did this as a matter of principle. His long advocacy of "teetotalism" was considered by many as having contributed greatly to the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, prohibiting the manufacture, sale or transportation of alcoholic beverages.

Mr. Bryan cut little figure in Democratic national politics in 1916. He was not a delegate to the National Convention at St. Louis, at which President Wilson was renominated, but attended as a newspaper man. His presence was recognized and he was called to the platform by demand of the delegates and spectators and made a speech.

Silent in Cox Campaign.

His position of power in the Democratic Party waned further in the 1920 convention at San Francisco. Although elected a delegate-at-large from Nebraska despite the opposition of the faction controlling the State organization, Mr. Bryan took little effective part in the convention proceedings. His attempt to get a "dry" plank in the platform was beaten. He could not support James M. Cox of Ohio, who was nominated for President, because he believed him to have "wet" tendencies, but he would not oppose him, it was said, because Mr. Cox had supported him each time he ran for President. He remained silent throughout the campaign, and it was said afterward that it was the first time in forty years that he had made no speeches for a Democratic candidate.

"My heart is in the grave with our cause," Mr. Bryan said, after the defeat of the proposed dry plank on the convention floor. "I must pause until it comes back to me."

Soon after the election of President Harding, Mr. Bryan suggested that President Wilson should resign because the people had voted against the entrance of the United States into the League of Nations. He proposed that President Wilson should turn over his office to Vice President Marshall and that the latter should appoint Mr. Harding Secretary of State and then resign, so that Mr. Harding might succeed him as President without waiting for the constitutional date of March 4. The suggestion was regarded as impractical, as was thought of many of Mr. Bryan's other suggestions and theories.

Makes His Home in Florida.

After 1920 Mr. Bryan became a legal resident of Miami, Fla., and was credited with having made a substantial sum by his investments in Florida real estate. He was elected from that State as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention of 1924, which met at Madison Square Garden in New York City. He took a prominent part in the proceedings, but his influence was much less than it had been at previous conventions.

Mr. Bryan opposed the adoption of a resolution denouncing the Ku Klux Klan and advocated the nomination of William G. McAdoo for President. He had no success in breaking the deadlock between Mr. McAdoo and Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, which lasted for two weeks, until both these candidates released their delegates and John W. Davis was nominated, but it was his potential influence that caused his brother, Charles W. Bryan, Governor of Nebraska, to be nominated for Vice President. Mr. Bryan took a comparatively minor part in the campaign which resulted in the defeat of the Democratic national ticket and the election of President Coolidge.

In a discussion of the proposed Klan resolutions by the Committee on Resolutions of the convention, of which he was a member, Mr. Bryan dropped on one knee and urged the other members to join him in prayer that they might receive Divine guidance in acting on the resolution.

Mr. Bryan married Miss Mary E. Baird of Perry, Ill. They had three children, one son and two daughters.

Stimulated by Hostile Audiences.

No recent political speaker in the United States was accustomed to have more hostile audiences than Mr. Bryan, and there was no speaker on whom a hostile audience had so little effect. Opposition and interruptions seemed to stimulate him, and he frequently used antagonism to himself to draw his opponents into a trap.

In the argument before the Committee on Resolutions of the 1920 Democratic National Convention Mr. Bryan, acting as field marshal of the dry forces, had introduced each speaker, giving in every case the name of the organization represented as well as of the speaker. A well-known lawyer, marshal for the wet forces, introduced the first wet speaker without going through the formality of naming any organization. Mr. Bryan very courteously asked that the name of an organization be included.

"I would like to know whom the gentleman represents," he said.

"And I would like to know whom Mr. Bryan represents," the lawyer replied with the trace of a sneer.

"I represent the women and children of America whom your damnable traffic would slay," Mr. Bryan thundered, and he started a three-minute denunciation of the liquor traffic which left the lawyer speechless during the rest of the hearing.

Mr. Bryan started one of his speeches at the Madison Square Garden convention in sorrowful mood, with a gallery of spectators bitterly hostile to him, both on general principles and because of his opposition to the nomination of Governor Smith.

"This may be the last convention that I shall ever attend," Mr. Bryan began. The galleries exploded instantly into ironical applause, which lasted several minutes. The light of battle came into Mr. Bryan's eyes. His pensive mood was displaced instantly by a fighting one. He stood with uplifted hand, as he had stood many times before, waiting for the demonstration, really a hostile one, to cease.

"Don't cheer," he exclaimed smiling, when he had restored silence. "I might change my mind."

A Great Many of the Trans-Polar Postcards Have Now Arrived

We have received many inquiries as to the fate of the Amundsen Trans-Polar Postcards. Well, many of them have already arrived in America; they are now in the hands of their original purchasers, bearing the special stamp so highly prized.

REMEMBER

If you have not received your postcard, the chances are that you never will. We congratulate those who have received them and sympathize with those who have not. Gimbels is proud of its part in the expedition and its faith in Amundsen's ultimate success.

Amundsen, despite the stress and danger of his preparation for the flight homeward, nevertheless brought with him, according to cable received from him, "a great many" of the postcards. The others he was obliged to leave 150 miles from the Pole in the abandoned plane. These he may secure on his next trip Northward. If not, you will never receive them.

COOLIDGE TO SHUN RADICAL COAL STEPS

Hopes Logic Will Lead to Settlement, but Is Still Ready to Act.

NO PARTISANSHIP ALLOWED

He Will Take No Part at All in the Pinchot-Pepper Controversy.

HAMMOND FEARS NO STRIKE

Head of Coal Commission Points to Large Fuel Stock in Storage.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 26.—President Coolidge does not intend to become involved in the political angle of the hard coal question now coming to the surface between Governor Pinchot and Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania. The President is convinced that the dispute between the operators and miners should be settled by their own methods, and that no partisan politics should be injected into the already complicated problem.

The Administration hopes that the logic of the situation will settle the controversy over wages and prevent a complete shutdown of mining operations. But if there is no adjustment by the parties involved Mr. Coolidge intends to exercise his influence in a way agreed upon when Secretary Davis conferred with him on the imminence of a hard coal strike. The Government's plan has been worked out by Secretaries Davis and Hoover, and does not include any radical step.

President Coolidge finds that he has no more power today than three years ago; that he cannot seize the mines or compel the miners to work under Constitutional prohibition. He intends to rely upon public opinion to force the operators and miners to get together and furnish the people an adequate supply of hard coal. If his good offices and an aroused public opinion should fail to compose the differences, the next step might be to call Congress into extra session six weeks in advance of the regular session and urge enactment of legislation as recommended by the Coal Commission, but such a course, in the opinion of the President, will not be necessary.

In the meantime the Administration will keep aloof from the political complications in Pennsylvania. Mr. Coolidge will do nothing to forestall Governor Pinchot's acting, nor will he accept any proposal by Senator Pepper which seeks to inject the Federal Administration into the situation. The belief here is that Governor Pinchot cannot hope to advance his prospective candidacy for the Senatorship next year against Senator Pepper greatly by anything he may do in the troubles between the miners and operators.

Says Country Is Prepared.

John Hays Hammond, who was Chairman of the United States Coal Commission in 1923, declared today that the country was better prepared for a hard coal strike than three years ago. He said the surplus of coal was larger than then and the people were more accustomed to using substitutes. He is in agreement with President Coolidge's attitude that the operators and miners should adjust their differences if possible, and that the time has not yet come for Government interference.

"Because the anthracite situation so closely parallels that through which the country passed when the agreement expired in 1923 the lessons of that experience should stand us in good stead in the meeting of this one," Mr. Hammond said.

"It is not too much to say that the attitude of the public influences profoundly such negotiations as those now in progress and it largely controls the state of the coal market. If the people become panic-stricken and bid up the price of coal they simply play into the hands of that small and selfish element that desires a strike.

"There is a good deal of coal in storage. A suspension of anthracite production would have to last many weeks before it would be felt seriously. The strike of 1922 lasted five months and even then the supply was 60 per cent. of normal. Even in New England little inconvenience would be experienced until after midwinter. Even should a strike occur it probably would be a short suspension of operations, as was the case in 1923. There is little danger of a protracted deadlock, as a long suspension of operations would be ruinous to both the operators and the miners.

"The railroads now are in a position to handle readily much more coal than is being produced. Since 1923 substitutes for anthracite have made much progress and fuel economy has progressed to the point where the same quantity of coal goes further than formerly was the case. The pounds of coal necessary to produce a kilowatt hour of electricity are constantly going down. The railroads get an increasing number of ton miles from a given quantity of coal.

Advises Middle Ground for Public.

"Despite the fact that the talk of a coal shortage bears the brand of manufactured stuff, the public should not ignore the possibilities of the situation. It should take the middle ground between panic and lethargy. Each consumer should appraise for himself the possibilities of the situation and lay in such reserves as his judgment dictates.

"The President's position, as I interpret it, is that it would be premature to assume that this dispute is not going to be settled within the industry. He has advocated repeatedly a policy of the minimum amount of interference on the part of the Government with industrial affairs. The public should grant [illegible] every opportunity to the parties at interest to settle the controversy themselves.

"If by any chance, however, occasion should arise for President Coolidge to exert his influence in an effort to compose the situation, I believe he could rally public support as have few other Presidents. He enjoys public confidence and affection such as has no other Chief Executive since the days of James Monroe, and [illegible] should the time come to act. The President will find the public on his side, [illegible] the principle that the public is entitled to a continuous supply of fuel transcends the private rights of either capital or labor."

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 26.—France and England will have to reach a better understanding about the allied position toward the security compact proposition before any arrangements for an international conference can be completed.

That is the attitude of the German Foreign Office toward reports from Paris and London to the effect that Dr. Stresemann will meet the French and British Foreign Ministers at Geneva next September. That Dr. Stresemann himself ever suggested such a meeting is flatly denied at Wilhelmstrasse.

German officialdom's diplomatic reaction to the latest advices from the Quai d'Orsay is that M. Briand is by no means committed to the idea of a conference. France, it is understood here, is chiefly concerned as to how the present frontiers of Poland can be guaranteed and has no desire to sit down at a table with Germany until this point has been clarified.

"If Briand expects us to bind ourselves in the east as we are willing to do in the west he is sadly mistaken," Chancellor Luther's official spokesman told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent this evening. "Such a stand on the part of the French would mean sabotaging the whole peace idea. We cannot make war, but we can at least reserve to ourselves the right to peaceful negotiations."

Downing Street, it is felt in governmental quarters, is favorably inclined to the conference plan. Berlin's impression, however, is that Mr. Chamberlain is far from convincing M. Briand that the Entente is ready to confer with the Germans. British opinion, indeed, hesitates to take any further step in the matter until the French position has been clarified. Nobody anywhere wants a conference unless the chances are strongly favorable to its success.

Meanwhile Germany must simply wait and see.

OPERATORS OPPOSE PINCHOT

Employers Favor Coolidge or Pepper as Coal Arbitrator.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 26.—A vigorous undercurrent of opposition to intervention by Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania in the anthracite coal dispute, exists in the ranks of the coal operators, it was learned today. While no employer would anticipate the policy to be pursued if the Pennsylvania Governor should again intervene as he did in 1923, it is known that some of the powerful operators will favor rejecting an offer to settle the dispute.

The miners, it is said, will gladly accept an invitation to go to Harrisburg and lay their case before Governor Pinchot. The policy of the operators will be determined after a canvass of opinion among the employers. It is known that the operators would prefer, if it becomes necessary to present their case to a third party, to place it in the hands of President Coolidge or Senator George Wharton Pepper of Pennsylvania.

Governor Pinchot has never made a secret of his belief in Federal regulation of the hard coal industry.

The attitude of the anthracite operators as expressed by Samuel D. Warriner, President of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, is that no industry has been so thoroughly or frequently investigated by State and National commissions as the hard coal industry, yet its major problems ar still not understood by the public.

SECOND BOY IN FAMILY DIES

Illness of 4 Others Laid to Fruit Cake—First Died Thursday.

A second death occurred yesterday in the family of John Clawsley of 46 West Fifty-second Street, the members of which become ill last week after eating a fruit cake bought in an east side bakery. On Thursday Frank, the 8-year-old son, died in Reception Hospital from meningitis, believed to have been induced by ptomaine poisoning. Early yesterday morning the youngest son, Joseph, 7 years old, died in Roosevelt Hospital from causes believed to have been the same.

The father, the mother and the two daughters have been under medical care since the two boys were taken to hospitals last Wednesday. They are not seriously ill.

Physicians who examined the boys and the other members of the family said there was some doubt as to whether the cake was responsible for the deaths. An autopsy will be performed on the body of Joseph, and if traces of ptomaine poisoning are found, the Medical Examiner will ask the police of the West Forty-seventh Street Station to investigate.

trial by which the truth will be laid bare."

Want Hylan on the Stand.

"Let them go ahead!" said Mr. Craig, when informed of Mr. Steuer's announcement. "The statements from my office have all been based on official testimony taken in an investigation by the Finance Department. I would like to have Mayor Hylan joined as a plaintiff. If they sue us, they will have to stand examination. I am waiting for Mr. Hylan to be the first witness."

"That does not frighten me a bit," was the comment of Mr. Kerrigan, who has been in actual charge of the Controller's investigation. "It will not stop the investigation. I recall that Mayor Hylan once brought suit against The World for libel and paid $2,500 after two years to drop the suit to avoid going on the stand."

INQUIRY THREATENS PUBLIC LAND BUREAU

the committee than to find out how the Midwest established its domination of the Salt Creek field. He declared that he was going to insist on a rigid inquiry into all of the transactions involving the Midwest's control of the Salt Creek oil wells.

It is also charged before the committee that, as a result of regulations put in force by the Department of the Interior, the thousands of prospectors who have done so much to develop the mining industry in the West have virtually been driven to Canada, Mexico, Africa and other parts of the world. The committee will also investigate this.

Eleven States to File Protest.

As for the national parks, it is declared that as now administered the average tourist cannot afford to visit some of them, owing to the high prices which they must pay for everything.

In one park, it was said, a minimum rate of 50 cents a gallon prevails for gasoline. In another they buy water by the quart or gallon, and in at least one of the most famous of the national playgrounds, it is asserted, every effort is being made to discourage automobile traffic so as to compel the travelers to come by train. In one of the parks, according to one of the committee investigators, a room for $10 a day.

It is the intention of the committee to work at top speed, for, under the resolution of the Senate, the facts must be reported to it at its next session. The first of the hearings will be in Salt Lake City in the third week of August. Among the witnesses at those hearings will be the Governors of the eleven public land States—California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and Nevada.

It is pointed out that the public lands in these States, all of it non-taxable, is 75 per cent. of all the land in Nevada, 18 per cent. of California, 30 per cent. of Wyoming, over 12 per cent. of Colorado, 12 per cent. of Montana, nearly 22 per cent. of Oregon, 45 per cent. of Utah, 10 per cent. of Idaho, 30 per cent. of Arizona and 21 per cent. of New Mexico. This does not include the national forests, in which the percentage is a little less.

NEW COAL CRISIS MENACES EUROPE

Berlin Plan to Aid Ruhr Barons May Start Trouble at Home and Abroad.

10,000,000 TONS TO DUMP

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 26.—The Luther Cabinet's resolve to lend financial aid to the distressed coal barons of the Ruhr threatens to involve Germany in conflicts abroad as well as to precipitate a violent and prolonged social struggle within the Reich.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is reliably informed that arrangements have been completed whereby German coal will receive a rebate of not less than 50 per cent. on the railroads. The very considerable reduction of transportation costs thus realized will enable the Ruhr exporters to sell coal in Southern Europe at more than 10 per cent. under world prices. Important shipments, it is understood, have already gone to Poland and other industrial centres on the Baltic and to Yugoslavia.

The effect of this development on English trades is bound to be felt soon and at a time when Britain is confronted with a grave crisis in her own coal industry. Emphatic protests are certain to be made by the British Government and by British mine owners and miners alike. The result may well be a dispute between Downing Street and Wilhelmstrasse, which would have the most unfavorable repercussion on Germany's security compact negotiations with the Allies.

Whether the rebates are to be provided by the German railroad system itself, which in accordance with the Dawes plan now functions as a private corporation under international supervision, or this is to be done by the German Government or the Reichsbank is not yet ascertainable. In the former case the allied powers could scarcely register any reasonable complaint, since their own representatives sit on the railroad Board of Directors. If, however, the 50 per cent. reduction in freight rates granted to Ruhr shippers is charged to the Reich's account, there may be ground for protest.

The Ruhr magnates want the Government's backing in two specific respects. They want the Federal Treasury to save them from serious loss on the huge stocks of coal heaped up at the pitheads—about 10,000,000 tons in all—and unmarketable hitherto owing to excessive world production and high German prices. Then they want the Luther Cabinet to help them reduce the cost of production by increasing the miner's working hours without raising his wages.

It is this latter aim, to which the Chancellor seems favorably inclined, that is destined from present indications to provoke grave economic and social disturbances not only in the Ruhr but throughout all Germany.

Bitter resentment already has been kindled among the working classes by the forthcoming tariff on foodstuffs, which Socialists and Communists alike in their nation-wide campaign have pictured as certain to increase the cost of living. If the miners now are asked to toil longer for the same pay their refusal will be backed by the whole body of German labor. It is probable that this will be made clear to the Chancellor when he receives the Ruhr operatives on Wednesday.

In this connection the Bergarbeiter Zeitung, official organ of the German miners' union, has the following:

"The workers' organizations will not discuss extension of the working day. We voice a serious warning. Is it sought to bring the period of exhaustion in which millions of workers are suffering to an end by outbreaks of despair attended by the danger of Bolshevization of the Ruhr? This development threatens if the Government fails to recognize the gravity of the situation and turns a deaf ear to our demands.

"We demand that the Reich and the States as well as the operators and workers confer together over the problems of the Ruhr coal mines in order to solve these problems through comprehensive plans assuring the existence of thousands of miners and dozens of mining communities."

According to a Berlin paper which has been conducting a special inquiry into conditions in the Ruhr, the reasons for the crisis as formulated by authoritative Rhenish bankers are as follows:

Overproduction throughout the whole world resulting from abnormal industrial development during the war; the inflation and deflation difficulties; the absence of deliveries existent before the war to the German army, navy and merchant marine and war material plants, such as Krupps; lack of cash for operation needs and cut-throat competition for foreign credits; heavy taxes and workers' insurance obligations; the competitive spirit prevailing among the Westphalia and Rhenish cities and towns, which leads them to spend millions for municipal improvements or beautifying at the taxpayers' expense.

The writer concedes that the mineowners' desire in face of these obstacles to increase and intensify production seem "paradoxical," but he adds that "the very clever gentlemen who manage the great collieries" doubtless know what they are about.

200 AUTOISTS SUMMONED.

Bayonne Traffic Court Swamped With Cases of Violations.

More than 200 summonses had been issued late last night by the police of Bayonne, N. J., in the campaign begun several days ago to curb violations of the traffic laws. Among those receiving summonses were some of the outstanding citizens of Bayonne.

There were so many cases that they cannot all be heard this moring. Acting Recorder John B. McGeehan will hear some on Wednesday evening.

WOULD PAY MINERS ON SIZE OF FAMILIES

System Borrowed From Continent Proposed by South Wales Owners.

STRIKE TALK WORRIES KING

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 26.—A principle new in this country in calculating wages is embodied in proposals put forward by the mine owners of South Wales. They would regulate the wages of the lower ranks of the industry by the size of the man's family.

Thus, if a worker gets 5s per diem and has a wife, he would draw an additional shilling and 3d, 5d for the first child, 4d for the second, 3d for the third and 2d for the fourth.

These family allowances would also be granted at a rather lower rate to the higher grade men up to those earning about 7s per diem.

This system is already in force in 10,000 concerns employing 1,000,000 workers in France and firms in Belgium employing 280,000 men.

Crucial Period Is Begun.

Britain enters upon a critical week, with the coal strike still threatening and the possibility of its spreading in other directions by no means eliminated. Nothing happened today enabling those anxiously awaiting developments to see a light as to what will happen in the next five days of the crucial period, when the strike must be averted or the country be confronted with a situation which may prove catastrophic.

Tomorrow Prime Minister Baldwin will meet the special committee of the Trades Union Congress in an endeavor to make a last-minute peace agreement.

The First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr. Bridgeman, who is handling the crisis for the Government, visited the Prime Minister this morning at Downing Street, where later they were joined by Lord Stamfordham, the King's private secretary. It is hoped that Mr. Baldwin will be able at tomorrow's conference to give the Trades Union committee an outline of what the Government proposes to do to avert the threatened rupture. Rumors persist that the Government may grant temporary financial assistance to the coal industry in an endeavor to tide over the crisis.

The miners' leaders spent the week-end in the mining district preparing for the decisive events of the next few days.

A demand has arisen for ships to load coal in American ports in case a strike occurs. Among countries in the market for such tonnage are Brazil, Argentina, Italy and Canada.

King Sends for Information.

LONDON, July 26 (AP).—Premier Baldwin has given up his usual week-end at Chequers Court to devote himself to the solution of the coal problem.

The King, equally concerned in the efforts to avert what it is universally considered would be a national disaster, sent his Secretary, Lord Stamfordham, to Downing Street today, where he had a conference of nearly an hour with the Prime Minister and W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, who is acting as mediator in the controversy between the mine owners and miners.

Lord Stamfordham asked for and received the fullest details of all the aspects of the dispute for the information of the King, who on all occasions is ready to throw his influence into the scale in favor of industrial peace.

Premier Baldwin employed almost the whole day in consulting with his colleagues and experts in order to prepare himself for his meeting tomorrow with a committee from the Trade Union Congress.

Plain speaking was indulged in today by former Ministers of the late Labor Government. Stephen Walsh, formerly Secretary for War, speaking at Wigan, said that the coal owners, according to their own figures, had made an average profit of more than £16,000,000 yearly since the 1921 lockout; yet they professed the impossibility of paying present wages. Mr. Walsh characterized the wage conditions of the miners as "a disgrace to civilization," and the mine owners' new proposals as "infernal."

Emanuel Shinwell, former Parliamentary Secretary of the Mines Department, addressing a miners' demonstration near Durham today, deplored the attack on Dean Welldon yesterday as "foolish in the circumstances, but not inconsistent with the Dean's previous utterances."

Mr. Shinwell added that little blame was to be attached to the miners, for with no other means of curbing the tongue of a Dean it was the sort of thing they might be expected to do.

Dean Addresses Miners at Service.

Dean Welldon addressed a great miners' gala service today in Durham Cathedral. He declared he did not begrudge the miners any wages it was possible to pay them; if their wages were doubled or trebled it would be no more than they deserved. But the question was not what it was desirable but what it was possible to pay them.

The Dean's general argument was that the strikes and lockouts benefited nobody and that industrial warfare was unpatriotic, because it placed British trade abroad at a disadvantage. He advocated conciliation and arbitration.

C. T. Cramp, Secretary of the National Union of Railway Men, in a speech at Woodford, Hampshire, today made reference to the decision of the railway men and transport workers to refuse to move blackleg coal. He said he wished to tell them frankly that the matter might not end there. If men were suspended or dismissed for refusing to handle coal, all of the railway men would be embroiled. It would be the nearest approach they had seen to a general industrial upheaval, and no man could say what would be the ultimate outcome.

Herbert Smith, Vice President of the Miners' Federation, and A. J. Cook, Secretary of the same organization, who are going to Paris to attend a meeting of the Miners' International Tuesday, both made fighting speeches today, declaring that the miners would refuse to accept any reduction in wages or extension of hours, and that there was no hope of a settlement unless the mine owners gave way.

J. Bremley, Labor member of Parliament at London, alluded to the demands of some of the railway companies for a 5 per cent. reduction in wages. He insisted that these demands must be resisted to the uttermost. This dispute and the mining dispute were almost inseparable, and the railway men must stand by the miners.

UNDERTAKER OCCUPIES SMITH'S OLD HOME

The house at 25 Oliver Street which was for many years the home of Governor Smith, now shelters an undertaking establishment. Henry McCaddin of 63 Madison Street has leased the property for five years from St. James's Roman Catholic Church, which owns it, and for the last week has maintained his undertaking office there.

Governor Smith's removal after many years of residence occasioned much comment and it was said at the time that his action was partly to enable the church to use the property as a home for the nuns who teach in the parochial school. The Governor explained that while he was holding his present office he needed a more central location and would live at the Biltmore while in New York, but after his return to this city he would return to his old section.

The new occupant of the house is in familiar surroundings as he was Governor Smith's predecassor as a tenant fifteen years ago. He has been a member of the Downtown Democratic Club since its organiation.

LISBON, Portugal, July 26 (AP).—Military rule in Portugal terminated today.

Domingos Pereira, President of the Chamber of Deputies, arrived in Lisbon today from Paris to confer with President Gomes before accepting the invitation of the President to form a Cabinet to replace that of Antonio da Silva, which resigned last week.

H. P. BORER IS ADVANCED.

Cunard and Anchor Lines Make an American Traffic Manager.

Harold P. Borer has been appointed Passenger Traffic Manager of the Cunard and Anchor Lines in New York, to begin Aug. 1, in place of Percy W. Whatmough, who has been transferred to the Southern district, with headquarters at Atlanta.

Mr. Borer was born in New York and has been with the Cunard Line fifteen years. It will be the first time that the post of Passenger Traffic Manager has been held by an American.

ABD-EL-KRIM OFFERS TO NEGOTIATE PEACE

ready for it. With all Abd-el-Krim's great ability, with his mastery of commanding his wild tribesmen, he has not the experience necessary to introduce civilized government. Complete independence is beyond the capabilities of his people. I have some reason to believe Abd-el-Krim realizes this himself. It is not unlikely that in the real interests of his country he would sacrifice some of his own ambitions to the public welfare.

Abd-el-Krim will not accept the terms of the Madrid conference. This does not mean he will refuse to negotiate peace or that he is not prepared to listen to reasonable terms, but he wants the world to know what is being done. He states that he has in the eyes of the world defended the independence of the Riffians and that he is now fighting two great powers. He desires to live at peace with both of them, but must have justice, and to have justice his negotiations must take place in the open. Failing that, this war must continue.

That the Riffians will be eventually beaten he fully realizes. France and Spain already have, each of them, in the field ten soldiers to every one of his and every instrument of modern warfare as well. He has no hospitals and no doctors. The sufferings of his people, he states, are terrible, but they will fight till there are none of them left, but they will kill their women and children and go forth to die.

Abd-el-Krim states that he has never yet had put before him one genuine proposition of peace from any Spanish Government. On every occasion the issue has been contaminated by financial and mining demands in [illegible] for the return of prisoners [illegible] terms, too, contained clauses that were contrary to all existing treaties with other Powers. Among these the opened door too wide to Spain, closed it to the others.

He states that on this account he is desirous in the interests of his country as well as [illegible] of the Europeans and for humanity [illegible] to which he [illegible] world. He is prepared to abide by the decision of any arbitration of powers or to negotiate direct in the open, but he will not negotiate in secret with France and Spain alone on the terms printed by the Madrid conference.

Franco-Spanish War Plans.

I understand that should any combined Franco-Spanish military action become necessary in Morocco the plan agreed upon between the high commands is the following:

The French force will advance northward from Taza via Kifane while the Spanish troops simultaneously will move westward from Tizi, Azza and other points on the eastern Riff front in the Melilla district.

These French and Spanish columns will eventually combine in central Riff, striking at the flank of Abd-el-Krim's line of communications between Adjr and the French front. At the same time the Spaniards will attack in Alhucemas Bay.

On the western front the French column will advance northward from Ouezzan and the Spanish column eastward from Alcazar with the common objective of Sheshuan.

FRANCO-SPANISH ACCORD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 26.—The prospects of a complete cessation of hostilities within the very near future are also strengthened by the completion at Madrid yesterday of the Franco-Spanish accord. The French are thoroughly satisfied with the terms of the accord as transmitted to the press by General Jordana, President of the Franco-Spanish conference.

Not only does the accord provide an effective blockade of the enemy territory and a guarantee of strict neutrality of the Tangier one but what is extremely important from the political as well as the military standpoint, it guarantees against either power making separate peace with Abd-el-Krim and grants either power liberty to pursue the enemy into any zone in which he may be operating, with the exception, of course, that the presence of French troops in the Spanish zone or Spanish troops in the French one must be a "purely temporary character, excluding all idea of possession."

As far as military collaboration is concerned Spain obligates herself only to such coordination of effort as the policy and interest of the Spanish directorate will dictate.

General Jordana, in announcing the general outlines of the accord, took pains to stress the fact that while the conditions upon which peace could be had that in itself did not mean that an offer had been submitted to the rebels. The initiative, he insisted, would have to come from the enemy.

French Government circles, however, are inclined to make much of an issue as to where the initiative is to come from for the conclusion of an "honorable" peace. For the Government it is a mere question of technicality, which should not be allowed to outweigh the consideration of needless bloodshed.

DIET AND 14 RULES KEEP GARY IN TRIM

Steel Man Back From Another Week at Hospital Says He Feels as Fit as Any Man of 80.

ENJOYS PRESCRIBED FOODS

But Fears Wife's Kindness May Make Him Break Regulations—Pie and Ice Cream Banned.

Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, who has just completed a three weeks' course in dietetics in the hospital of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company at Birmingham, Ala., is not at all pleased with reports that he is or has been ill. He is, he declares, as hale and hearty as any other eighty-year-old man anywhere. He is as optimistic about his physical future as he is about the future of steel and the country generally.

At his home at 856 Fifth Avenue yesterday he looked fit. His cheeks were ruddy and his eyes clear. He has lost a few pounds and is apparently rejoiced over that fact, as loss of weight was one of his purposes in taking the diet course.

"While it is true I have been in a hospital," said Judge Gary, "I am not a sick man. I was not in bed, but on the contrary I was on the job every day. I went to Birmingham in May on a tour of inspection. The Tennessee Coal and Iron Company is one of our subsidiaries. I visited the hospital, a charming place, and talked with Dr. Lloyd Noland, its head.

"In the course of our conversation he asked why I did not come to the hospital and stay there a while. I told him that would be very nice if I had anything the matter with me, but I had not. Then I happened to remark that pie and ice cream did not seem to agree with me as they once did. Dr. Noland immediately said if I would come to the hospital for a three weeks' course in dietetics he would straighten out the pie and ice cream trouble for me."

The completion of the course at the Birmingham hospital does not mean, he explained, that he will stop living on the foods prescribed for him—and pie and ice cream are not among them. He intends to stick to his diet faithfully for an indefinite time. He declares it has already produced good results and is not a hardship or deprivation in any way. Here are the fourteen dietetic and health points he is endeavoring to live up to:

1. Exercise in the open air but do it moderately.
2. Breathe deeply of pure air as much as possible.
3. Leave alcoholic stimulants alone. Take tea and coffee if you like them.
4. Drink pure water.
5. Eat little meat. Eat red meat but once a week.
6. Eat little starch, fat or sweets; eat plenty of green vegetables containing mineral salts; eat whole wheat bread; eat good, fresh fruit and drink milk if it agrees with you.
7. Follow regular habits.
8. Get plenty of sleep.
9. Work hard mentally and physically, but not too long.
10. Lead a good, clean life.
11. Keep an even temper and avoid excitement.
12. Never get angry or indulge in controversy.
13. Obey the Golden Rule.
14. Eat only to satisfy hunger, not to please the palate.

"Most persons lose the mineral salts just under the skin of a potato by peeling it too deeply," said Judge Gary, who now injects a note of authority into his dietetic discourse as easily as if he were discussing steel. "Most of us eat too much any way. Dieting doesn't mean starving. I enjoy my diet and it benefits me."

Judge Gary said that while he was in the hospital he was forced to obey orders and that the physicians made him do just what they wanted him to. He now feels, however, that he is able to follow their instructions without any one to watch him, other than his wife, who, he seems to fear, will, through kindness, tempt him to break training for the sake of enjoying some delicacy not on his menu.

Judge Gary said he would be back at his office this morning and that he felt equal to any task that might confront him there. He looked it.

OPEN FIGHT TODAY ON SCOTT'S SANITY

NO GOVERNMENT EXPERTS

Prosecution Relies on Testimony of Jail Guards as to Mind of Man Thrice Near Hanging.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 26.—In Judge Joseph B. David's court tomorrow morning Russell T. Scott will have the first inning of his last chance to escape hanging for the killing of Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk. It will be the first hearing in regard to the insanity trial granted to Scott four hours before he was to have been hanged last Friday morning.

Scott has three times escaped the noose by a matter of a few hours. Twice Governor Small reprieved him; but the Governor last Thursday refused any longer to stay the execution and Scott's only chance now is to convince a jury that he has become insane since the sentence of death was passed upon him.

Judge David has tentatively set the date for the sanity trial for Aug. 3, but State's Attorney Crowe has said he is not satisfied with such a long delay and he has instructed Assistant State's Attorney George I. Gorman to demand an immediate calling of a jury and a hearing when the State appears in court tomorrow.

William S. Stewart, however, will ask for time at least until Aug. 3 and he will attempt, he says, to get even more time from Judge David. The lawyer asserted he must have time to have Scott examined by a group of alienists who will be employed by the defense.

The State, Prosecutor Crowe says, will employ no alienists. Jail guards and other non-professional persons who have had an opportunity to observe Scott will be called by the State to offset the expert testimony to be presented by the defense.

It is likely, Mr. Crowe said, that members of the double death watch that has three times sat with Scott in what were to have been his last hours, may be called to testify as to his actions.

"We will have no trouble at all," Mr. Gorman said, "in convincing a jury that Scott is sane and normal. There was no insanity mentioned in his defense. It was never thought of until Attorney Stewart got into the case. It is a figment of Attorney Stewart's mind.

"We need only to convince a jury that Scott knows where he is and that he has known all along and knows now what is going to happen to him. Scott will be hanged in the end."

DUO-ART
Reproducing Piano

DANCE music that lures you to lighter, freer motion — that takes you in imagination to the stage of the peppiest musical revue; that wings your fancy to languorous South Sea Isles!

Fox-trots—waltzes that are actually played for you by the genius who composed them—by those past masters at the keyboard who lift the much-discussed jazz into the realms of real musical art.

Barring the full orchestra itself, there is no dance music so perfectly rhythmic, so rich in tone-volume, so delightfully varied as the Duo-Art provides.

And always after listening to its wonderful dance music comes the longing for those music heights which can only be reached in the home through this one instrument.

You wish for a heroic tonal master work such as Josef Hofmann's interpretation of the Liszt 12th Hungarian Rhapsodie. And the Duo-Art gives it to you.

You long to become better acquainted with the finesse of Paderewski's art—and the Duo-Art shows you the way. You crave the half-forgotten air of an old love song, a favorite of your youth—and the Duo-Art plays it with feeling.

Why not have one of these wonderful modern home instruments today? You need not delay—their cost is moderate, the monthly payments convenient and temporary, while the benefits and joys of the Duo-Art are lasting—as lasting as good music itself.

LAYS GERMAN DEFEAT TO AMERICAN TROOPS

LUDENDORFF IS JUSTIFIED

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 27.—In the opinion of the Reichstag's committee of inquiry into Germany's defeat in the World War, the advent of the American Expeditionary Force was the determining factor of Germany's military downfall, but the German high command nevertheless was justified in initiating Ludendorff's "peace offensive" in March, 1918, despite the American troops' presence on the French front. This is the conclusion reached by the Reichstag's committee, the first findings of which were made public last week in three bulky tomes edited by military and historical experts.

This tribute represents the first analysis of its activities made by the Parliament of the former enemy nation. It may be regarded as the German Republic's opinion about the German Empire's conquerors.

Documentary data dealing with the Americans quote the Kaiser's war lords as declaring in May, 1917, that four months would be required before appreciable American forces could reach the Western theatre. In the following July Ludendorff reported that one division already was in France and another might arrive before the end of the year. In December of the same year the German Generalissimo conceded that a force equivalent to three divisions might be disembarked in France.

At that time, the committee's statistics show, there were more than 186,000 American soldiers on French soil. Nevertheless, Ludendorff's lack of information escapes the committee's censure.

"Transporting and supplying United States troops," the report says, "is dependent on ship tonnage. More than 450,000 hardly can be expected on account of the lack of shipping. The bulk of this army will not be suitable for offensive warfare in the Spring of 1918. It is calculated that the American force in France may reach fifteen divisions by this time.

"The first troos in the trenches gave a good account of themselves in the first German attack. It is expected that the American soldier, given more practice and knowledge of warfare, will become a worthy opponent.

"Our estimates proved substantially accurate. We overestimated the American strength in the Spring of 1918, since fifteen divisions had not landed then. During July, 198, the number of troops exceeded 1,000,000, and at the armistice more than 2,000,000 American troops were on the West front. From this number big deductions must be made for the noncombatant part of the army.

"Calculating a division at 28,000 men, twenty-eight available divisions, including those troops not included in the divisional organization, must have shown a strength totaling 30,000 officers and 870,000 men.

"Certainly the extraordinary increase in American troops transorted since May was a surprise. During the first months we overestimated. However, it was possible for us to learn exactly when American divisions entered the lines. In July and August the strength of the American troops in line was about the same as we estimated for the end of 1918.

"The entrance of such large numbers of American troops soon was felt. The moral aid to France was even greater. The coming of American troops revived France's sunken spirits. According to French assertions the sight of incoming Americans, mostly young and glowing with strength and health, worked wonders.

"The intervention of America, therefore, was of the greatest significance in the course of the war. The American soldier showed himself brave, even though untrained. Fresh, well nourished, and with unbroken nerves, he entered against the weakened German army which had endured the untold hardship of four years of war.

"Herein, and in the massive reinforcements which the Americans brought at the critical moment, lies the significance of America's intervention. Our hope to bring about a decision through our 1918 offensive before the Americans could come in with great forces was unfulfilled. The Americans arrived then in such numbers that the ending of the war unfavorably to us was influenced by it.

"Blame cannot be laid on the supreme command of the German army. The verdict as to whether the decision to make an offensive was justified cannot be influenced thereby. It was, therefore, right to use every available means to get decisive results in the Spring of 1918, before the Americans entered with their great strength."

IRELAND GREETS CRUISER.

American Flagship Pittsburgh Will Pay Ten-Day Visit.

DUBLIN, July 26 (AP).—The cruiser Pittsburgh, flagship of the American fleet in European waters, arrived at Kingstown today on a ten-day visit to the Irish Free State. When the visit is ended the Pittsburgh will go to Belfast and then to Glasgow.

The American flag flew today over public buildings and shipping was decorated in honor of the American officers and men, who were welcomed by the Harbormaster, Captain Holmes, Colonel Costello and Commandant Brennan Whitmore of Army Headquarters paid a visit of courtesy to the vessel on behalf of the Free State army.

No formal ceremonies have yet been arranged, but the Government is planning an expression of appreciation of the coming of the warship. One-third of the crew of the Pittsburgh is Irish or of Irish extraction, and every effort will be made to give the men a good time.

Vice Admiral Philip Andrews, who arrived in Kingstown in advance of his flagship, visited the vessel today and was received by Captain Taylor Evans and the officers. During the afternoon many sailors from the Pittsburgh visited Dublin, where their uniforms attracted attention. Officers of the vessel in citizen clothes also came to Dublin.

TOURISTS HAIL MUSSOLINI.

Cheering Americans Surround Premier in Rome Hotel Lobby.

ROME, July 26 (AP).—An impromptu demonstration for Premier Mussolini took place today in the lobby of one of the large hotels of Rome when a group of American tourists who spied the Premier cheered him enthusiastically. They surrounded him and shouted "Long live Italy."

Signor Mussolini acknowledged the compliment and walked among the tourists, all of whom he greeted. He presented a rose to one woman member of the party.

AMERICANS WORSHIP WITH AUSTRALIANS

Sunday for the Visiting Fleet Is Given Over Chiefly to Church Services.

PRELATES LAUD OUR IDEALS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MELBOURNE, July 26.—Sunday both here and in Sydney was given over chiefly to church parties for the officers and men of the American fleet. There were a few baseball games, two or three private receptions and a little golf for those who are accustomed to so spend the Sabbath in the United States.

Sir Henry Braddon and the Honorable Donald Mackinnon, both former Commissioners for Australia in the United States, extended a welcome to the Americans, the former in Sydney, where he addressed officers and men in behalf of the English Speaking Union, and the latter in Melbourne, where he told American newspaper men with the fleet that they were in part responsible for bringing the fleet to Australia.

Archbishop Wright, primate of the Anglican Church of Australia, in a sermon at St. Andrew's Cathedral, Sydney, spoke of the ideals held in common by the United States and the British Empire.

"It is visits such as this," he said, "that help sweep away the last fragments of division. Acquaintance and contact reveal us to each other. We learn to understand our different temperaments." Archbishop Lees of St. Paul's Anglican Cathedral, Melbourne, in his sermon said: "Wherever the British flag with its crosses and the American flag with its stars float men are free from every cross of oppression and the sky is bright with stars of hope."

The Very Rev. Lonergan of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Melbourne, where Admiral Ziegemeier attended said:

"We all join in expressing the hope that the Star Spangled Banner and the Flag of the Southern Cross will always float side by side in that unison typical of harmonious relation that should exist between America and Australia."

Throngs Visit the Warships.

Thousands of persons visited the American warships in the harbor of Melbourne and along Victoria docks and the piers of Sydney. People from the country had flocked in over the weekend, many of them reporting that they had seen the fleet's searchlights Saturday night during the display. The little town of Benalla, 127 miles from Melbourne, was the limit of visibility.

Admirals Robison and Bostwick and twenty-seven senior officers were guests at a dinner given by the Commercial Travelers of Australia at Sydney tonight. Admiral Robison, replying to a speech of welcome, said armies and navies always ended wars but never began them.

The shipping strike continues to tie up much of the seagoing commerce, but this is in no way affecting the pleasure which the fleet personnel is taking in its visit. Sydney reports that some of the bluejackets have indulged a little too strenuously in the ample liquid refreshments available there and that many of them have been victimized by sharpers.

There has been some selling of fake opals to unsuspecting "gobs" whose senses were more than a little dulled. Some of the sailors in Melbourne also have suffered from a lack of knowledge of Australian currency, but considering the large number of men having shore liberty it is nothing out of the ordinary.

Paper Says Gobs Are Not Impressive.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., July 26. (AP).—The newspaper Truth in a long leader this morning comments that the United States Navy impresses the Australians, but that the American sailors do not.

The newspaper expresses surprise that the "navy is composed of youngsters instead of big, broad-shouldered, deep-chested sailormen." Australians, it is added, had not expected to find "so many ranges of color amongst the ranks."

"The gobs do not impress us," the newspaper concludes, "but the visit of the fleet does."

YOUNG WOMAN HELD AS AN IMPOSTER

Accused of personating a prominent woman, purchasing theatre tickets on credit, and then returning them to the box office and getting the money, Mrs. Maud Blake, 28 years old, of the Hotel Somerset, 147 West Forty-seventh Street, was arraigned yesterday before Magistrate James Barrett in West Side Court on a charge of petty larceny and released in $200 bail for examination tomorrow.

Mrs. Blake is accused of posing as Mrs. Albert Tilt of Greenwood, Conn., wife of the Secretary of the Manhattan Club. Ambrose S. Ross, cashier of the club, is the complainant.

According to Ross, Mrs. Blake ordered, through him, theatre tickets amounting to $180 from ticket agencies, charging them to the account of Mrs. Tilt, and then had them refunded at the theatre box offices. In one week, Ross charged, she ordered by telephone, on six occasions, tickets for the Palace Theatre.

Recently, according to Ross, Mrs. Blake ordered four tickets to "Mercenary Mary," playing at the Longacre Theatre, which she had canceled for four tickets to Earl Carroll's "Vanities." His suspicions were aroused, he said, and Ross communicated with Mr. Tilt in Greenwood, who requested the arrest of the woman.

Detective James Fitzpatrick of the West Forty-seventh Street Station arrested her Saturday in the lobby of the Earl Carroll Theatre. It developed in court yesterday that Mrs. Blake is a member of an old Southern family. William Tilt, brother of Albert, appeared against her. He said he had known her about four years.

REVOLT AT JEBEL DRUSE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BEIRUT, July 26.—A rebellion has broken out in Jebel Druse. French reinforcements have been sent as a precautionary step to Sueida, and further concentrations are proceeding.

The Atrash Clan, which includes some of the leading chieftains in Jebel Druse, has long resented the appointment of a French Governor, and having failed in the recent attempt to bring about his removal has broken out in open rebellion. The authorities therefore have expelled three members of the clan, including Sultan Atrash, who tendered his submission along with fifteen lesser chieftains.

Details are lacking, owing to the severing of communications south of Sueida by guerillas. General Sarrail is determined on the swift and energetic use of all the means at his disposal, including [illegible] in order to nip the rebellion [illegible]

By HARRY CROSS.

The Washington champions carved away two from the Yankees' fading supply of ball games up at the Yankee Stadium yesterday. A population of some 50,000 groaned over the disaster. The champs by their activity climbed up near the heels of the romping Athletics. Harris's lads are only half a game from the Mackian outfit now.

The Senators took the first game 7 to 4 and won the second in the eleventh inning, 4 to 3. The second strife was a humdinger. With the mathematics deadlocked, Washington came into the eleventh smiling.

The good old gray veteran Roger Peckinpaugh singled and Hank Severeid, trying to sacrifice, laid a nice bunt hit on the hallway carpet. Shanks, playing third, overtossed first, and Peck went to third and Hank to second. After Ruether flied to Meusel, McNeely lambasted a single through the short field, Peck galloping home with the victory. Three cheers.

Another old man, Coveleskie, won the first game from our own Herb Pennock, making his thirteenth straight victory. In the ninth, Marberry, the well-known life-saver, came in and held the enemy at arm's length, but the victory went to Coveleskie's credit.

Marberry did the same thing in the eleventh inning of the final game, which ended in the moonlight when night was dropping its purple cloak on the Bronx.

Again Third Victory Eludes.

It just seems as if the Yanks cannot win three games in a row. Manager Huggins says, "It's not in the cards."

Life is not one shout of joy for the once proud and arrogant Yankees these days. They are down among the lowly, and while they play pretty fair baseball, it is not good enough. A pretty good ball game is very much like a pretty good egg. It's got to be perfect.

Much Yank ambition in the third. Paschal, who took the place of Combs in centre, singled, and so did Ward. Ruth sent both playmates along with a sacrifice. Bob Meusel promulgated a single to centre which constituted the ways and means of both Paschal and Ward rollicking homeward.

Give the Yanks one more in the fifth. Paschal singled and Ward furthered the runner with a sacrifice. Ruth shattered a mere single to centre and Paschal counted. Smart base running.

The champs tied it up in the sixth. McNeely got an infield single and Harris walked. Rice forced Harris, McNeely going to third. After Goslin grounded to Gehrig, Judge ambled and jammed the corners. Bluege smacked forth an infield single and McNeely and Rice romped home. Score deadlocked thenceforth until the afore-related eleventh.

First Game Lost in Ninth.

The Senators broke up the first game in the dizzy ninth when the Yanks had the pastime locked up. It happened this way: Washington waltzed into the ninth with the Yankees in front, 4 to 3. Bluege, first Washington citizen up against Pennock, singled to right. Peck deposited a sacrifice on the infield rug. Muddy Ruel slapped a single to left which sent Bluege home with the tying tally.

That was the finish of Herbert Pennock. Into the peaceful valley came Waite Hoyt. Master Mind Harris inserted Joe Harris into the fray to bat in place of Coveleskie. Hoyt obligingly walked Harris and Adams ran for him.

Exit Mr. Hoyt, advent one Urban Shocker. Manager Stan Harris popped an uninfluential foul to Schang. Sam Rice poked a double to the right terrace, pushing young Adams home, also McNeely.

Good night, Yanks! Those four runs, old timer, were more than plenty.

What Went Before Them.

The Yanks gathered one unit in the third. With one out of the way, Ernie Johnson walked and Pennock sacrificed. Combs singled to right, sending Johnson across.

The Yanks got another in the sixth. Combs walked and Ward fanned. Ruth forced Combs and Meusel singled. Gehrig's tap to centre coaxed Ruth home.

The Yanks went to the front in the seventh. Schang walked and Ernie Johnson singled. Pennock did the same thing, scoring Schang. Combs's sacrifice fly pushed Johnson home. Then came Washington's busy ninth, when they took the situation in hand and won out.

WHITE SOX BUMP 3 TIGER TWIRLERS

Opening Inning Rampage Gives Cobbmen a Good Start, but They Trail 8-6 at End.

DETROIT, July 26 (AP).—Three Tiger pitchers could not stop a White Sox assault and Chicago beat Detroit, 8 to 6, today, winning the series.

An opening inning rampage by the Tigers drove Faber from the hill before two men could be retired, but Thurston held Detroit scoreless the remainder of the way except in the third and in the ninth, when two safe hits in a row counted a runner.

One Detroit run was the result of the three errors Chicago made. Wingo grounded to Davies, who threw past Sheely, Wingo going to second. With Cobb at bat, Thurston tried to pick Wingo off second and his throw went into centre field. Wingo advanced to third and then continued home when Mostil's heave to the plate to head him off got by Schalk.

VANCE WHITEWASH BESPATTERS GIANTS

NEHF ROUTED AT START

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

It looks as if young Vance will make a pretty good pitcher for Uncle Wilbert Robinson. He has all the earmarks, to coin a phrase, of a promising twirler. Yesterday he did well for a young fellow who is just in there trying—holding the Giants to four hits, whitewashing them 3 to 0, and sending 25,000 Ebbets Field habitués into delirious flights of ecstasy.

It was a costly Sabbath afternoon for the Giants. The Pirates won from the Cubs and McGraw's men are right back where they were before Saturday's victory at Boston.

The Giants illustrated the old baseball adage that you can't hit what you can't see. Some of the boys don't know yet whether Vance was pitching a baseball or a snowball. When the New Yorkers swung and missed, Dazzy might as well have been tossing up tomatoes for all the difference it would have made. Once in a while the Gotham gladiators would hit one solidly and then they knew that Dazzy was using a regulation Spalding horsehide.

Still, it wasn't one of the Nebraskan's best efforts. One Giant actually got to third base. And he fanned only eight, which is nine under par for the course. Any time Dazzy fans less than ten he goes home and has a good cry because he thinks he'll never be anything but a failure in this world. When he gets down as low as eight, he's merely slumming.

Robins Chase Nehf at Start.

The Robins larruped Arthur Nehf for two runs in the first inning and drove the game little southpaw from the mound before the last half of the frame was five minutes old. After that Vance was on Easy Street. Giving Vance two runs in the opening inning is just like giving Nurmi a 50-foot start.

After the first round the ragged right sleeve of Vance's ancient underwear waved triumphantly aloft. This is Dazzy's pet superstition. In the interests of sanitation and the business welfare of the underwear trade he should have got himself a new garment several years ago, but he hangs onto the old under denim in the belief that it holds some lucky charm for him and casts a certain spell over the enemy batters.

No two of the New York hits came together, which is an efficacious way to win ball games—efficacious on Vance's part. Kelly singled in the second inning, Terry in the fourth, Kelly again in the seventh and Southworth in the ninth. Kelly got to third in the second, but no further, nor did any other Giant ever reach that part of No Man's Land. Only three New Yorkers gained second. Traffic was not very heavy on the base lines.

The Corners Are Filled.

The Robins waded into Nehf with both fists in the first. Ford and Stock singled to centre and after disposing of Wheat, Nehf made the fatal break of walking Fournier, which filled the bases.

Here the southpaw got Cox into a hole but couldn't keep him there, the youngster socking a short single to left which scored Ford and Stock. That was enough for J. McGraw. He told Arthur to run away and live to pitch another day, and Wayland Dean came on to provide some of the finest pitching that the present season has seen.

His start was unlucky, for Farrell sat down on the soggy infield after grabbing Brown's grounder. Bases again loaded, but Tierney forced Fournier at the plate and DeBerry went wrong on a slow ball third strike, floating demurely across the outside corner.

It isn't likely that Dean has ever pitched better than he did in the next six innings. His slow ball was a thing of wizardry. His curve was deceptively coy, and betimes he whipped a fast ball through that caught the Robins off guard.

Yet the Robins managed to flog him for a run, which was more than old Rock of Gibraltar Vance conceded to the Giants. In the fifth, Ford singled, was sacrificed by Stock, advanced by Wheat's out and whisked over on Fournier's single, which Dean barely broke down.

A Rally Turns to Naught.

Kelly singled in the second and Farrell walked, but Snyder and Dean offered easy grounders. Nothing more until the eighth; then a rally that had the Flatbushers as nervous as a boy in a haunted house. Bentley, batting for Dean, walked, and Southworth dumped a single in short left. Clammy silence, broken only by the shrill cries peculiar to the native New Yorker in his lair. But Frisch lined sharply to Cox and Young and Meusel popped up.

Don't forget Eddie Brown's catch of Meusel's fly in the fourth. It was ticketed for the bleachers in left centre when Ed galloped back and nabbed it on the run.

Terry followed with a single and Cox had to hustle to catch Kelly's screaming liner. Good support saved Dazzy that time.

If John McCooey is looking for a candidate for Mayor from Flatbush, he has the man in Vance. Dazzy would walk in.

Pickups and Putouts

The two glorious grabs were made by Sam Rice on Jones's rocket in the second inning of the last game and by Bob Meusel of Bluege's smash in the eighth inning of the same pastime.

The Yanks are now qualified members of the twilight league. The final run by Peck was made with the aid of a lantern. If Umpire Hildebrand had been on the job he would have called the game at 7 o'clock. It was plenty dark enough.

The thing that impresses about the game the Washington club plays, is the "stick-to-itness" they display when they are behind.

The infant Harris's boys jumped out of the ruck to win both parts of the double-header. It's a game fish that swims upstream.

This is an open date for the Yankees and they have plenty to think about, even if they can't play ball.

In 50,000 happy homes all over New York last night children were saying "Mamma, where's papa?"

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 26.—Antonio Ascari, the Italian speed wizard whose triumphs on the automobile tracks all over the continent have made him the champion of Europe, drove his last race at the autodrome near Linas today.

Driving an Alfa Romeo car in the second Grand Prix race of the Automobile Club of France on the Montlhery track, Ascari, who was expected by several thousand spectators to end the day with another victory, suddenly crashed into the fence as he turned a curve on the twenty-third lap. It resulted in the spill which ended his career. His machine skidded and turned a complete somersault, with him underneath.

When aid reached him he was unconscious. His right arm and right leg were crushed and he had a severely fractured skull. He died immediately in the Autodrome's clinic. The other two Italian entrants, Campari and Brill, quit the race out of respect to their unfortunate comrade. With Ascari out of the contest the Frenchman, Robert Benoist, driving a Delage car, won the race.

LINAS, France, July 26 (AP).—It is estimated that Ascari's machine was making 200 kilometers (124.28) miles an hour when it turned over.

Benoist's time for the 1,000 kilometres (621.38 miles) was 8 hours 54 minutes 41 4-5 seconds, an average speed of about seventy miles an hour. The prize was 150,000 francs. Wagner finished in 9 hours 2 minutes 27 2-5 seconds and Mazetti in 9 hours 6 minutes 15 1-5 seconds.

The band played the "Marseillaise" as Benoist mounted the official stand and received the congratulations of President Doumergue.

Ascari in October of last year won the Milan Auto Race over a course of 497.11 miles in 5 hours 2 minutes, and on June 28 of the present year was victor in the Grand Prix of Europe, run at Spa, Belgium.

ORIOLES WIN TWO GAMES

Take First Contest, 5-0, Capture Final, 6-3, in 12th on Pass and Three Safeties.

(By The Associated Press.)

Winning both ends of yesterday's doubleheader at Jersey City by scores of 5 to 0 and 6 to 3 the Baltimore Orioles made it four games in a row over the Jersey City Skeeters.

The Birds came from behind in the second contest to wipe out a 3-to-0 lead held by the Skeeters in their half of the seventh and then squeezed out victory in the twelfth on a pass to Roser, Sheedy's triple and singles by Boley, Brainard and McKee.

Following a close decision by Umpire Magerkurth at first base in the fifth inning and the removal of Second Baseman Dowd, several hundred fans rushed from the stands upon the field and made an attack upon Magerkurth. He defended himself by knocking one of the spectators down and managed to hold the crowd at bay until rescued by the mounted police, who rode upon the diamond and drove the crowd from the field.

PIRATES TRIM CUBS AND GAIN IN RACE

Traynor Also Gets 4 Safeties as Pittsburgh Batters Bunch Drives Off Kaufmann.

CHICAGO, July 26 (AP).—Pittsburgh gained a full game over New York today when they defeated Chicago, 6 to 4, while the Giants were shut out by Brooklyn.

Vic Aldridge, former Cub pitcher, let his former mates down with seven scattered hits, but two of these blows were homers and accounted for all the locals' runs. Adams uncorked the first four-bagger by driving the first pitched ball into the bleachers. Freigau drove out a homer with two men on in the fifth.

The Pirates bunched their hits off Kaufmann, Carey and Traynor leading the attack with four hits each. Wright smashed out a home run with a man on base in the fourth, giving the visitors the lead.

INDIANS TAKES SERIES.

Browns End Long Home Stand by Suffering 11-6 Setback.

ST. LOUIS, July 26 (AP).—Another defeat at the hands of the Cleveland Indians by a score of 11 to 6 today marked the close of the Brown's long home stand. The Browns won 17 and lost 10 games since returning here June 29, and Cleveland was the only visiting team to take a series.

The contest was a parade of pitchers. Joe Bush was batted out in the second inning and Karr, Cleveland's starter, took the count in the sixth.

BRITISH STARS WIN SERIES AND TROPHY

Special to The New York Times.

CEDARHURST, L. I., July 26.—Somewhere in Africa the Prince of Wales will receive a cablegram that today at the Rockaway Hunting Club the members of the Oxford and Cambridge tennis team won the trophy he permitted to be named for him. Playing six doubles matches on the second day of their meeting with the Rockaway Hunting Club, the Englishmen won three of them, which, together with their five singles victories on Friday, sends the cup to England. It will remain there for two years, when it will be brought back to the Rockaway Hunting Club by the Oxford-Cambridge tennis team of that year to be competed for again at Cedarhurst. Captain J. J. Lezard of the English team tonight sent the cablegram to the Prince from the home of Frank Burton, Chairman of the Tennis Committee of the Rockaway Hunting Club.

In addition to the Prince of Wales Cup matches today, the large gallery which attended saw the Spanish Davis Cup team in action and also a series of mixed doubles matches between the club members and the English collegians. One of the exhibitions excited great interest, for it brought together Captain Lezard of the English team and Arnold W. Jones of Yale on the one side against Manuel Alonso and his team-mate, J. Slaque. The English-American team won after five sets, 6—4, 3—6, 6—2, 4—6, 6—3.

As on the first day, today's matches were long drawn out and hard fought. Four of them went to three sets and one of the others to a deuce set. Captain Lezard with J. H. Van Alen had to play fifty games before they could subdue Harry S. Parker and Fred Gwynne. The score was 6—4, 12—14, 8—6. Gwynne was the only winner against the Englishmen in singles and Parker is the captain of the Hunting Club team. Their efforts to hold off the Oxford-Cambridge pair were no more availing than the stand of Malcolm D. Whitman and H. I. Forster, who also lost to the same pair, 6—4, 10—8. Whitman, who was national champion for three successive years at the beginning of the century, wanted revenge for his defeat on the first day, but it was not to be, and he again went down with colors flying.

Whitman and Forster, however, got some consolation in defeating J. P. Carleton and H. K. Lester, 1—6, 6—4, 6—3. It was Lester who defeated Whitman in the singles, and this doubles victory of the American pair doubtless did much to compensate Whitman for his failure to overcome the English captain.

Parker and Gwynne also got some measure of revenge, for they defeated E. M. Jonklaas and J. R. Sumner, 4—6, 8—6, 6—4. Jonklaas and Sumner also lost to A. E. Ells and Robert Gilmore, 2—6, 8—6, 6—2. The other English victory was scored by Carleton and Lester over Sheldon Farr and J. Bierwirth, 6—2, 6—3.

The summaries:

H. I. Forster and Malcolm D. Whitman, Rockaway Hunting Club, defeated J. P. Carlston and H. K. Lester, Oxford-Cambridge, 1—8, 6—4, 6—3; H. S. Parker and Fred Gwynne, Rockaway Hunting Club, defeated E. M. Jonklaas and J. R. Sumner, Oxford-Cambridge, 4—6, 8—6, 6—4; A. E. Ells and Robert Gilmore, Rockaway Hunting Club, defeated E. M. Jonklaas and J. K. Sumner, Oxford-Cambridge, 2—6, 8—6, 6—2; J. J. Lezard and J. H. Van Alen, Oxford-Cambridge defeated Harry S. Parker and Fred Gwynne, 6—4, 12—14, 8—6; J. J. Lezard and J. H. Van Alen, Oxford-Cambridge, defeated H. I. Forster and Malcolm D. Whitman, Rockaway Hunting Club, 6—4, 10—8; J. P. Carleton and H. K. Lester, Oxford-Cambridge, defeated Sheldon Farr and J. Bierwirth, 6—2, 6—3.

Miss Ederle Picks Aug. 3 As Date for Channel Swim

BOULOGNE, France, July 26 (AP).—Monday, Aug. 3, has been tentatively set for the proposed attempt of Miss Gertrude Ederle, the American swimmer, to cross the English Channel from Cape Gris-Nez, France, to the English shore. Bad weather gave Miss Ederle a quiet week-end so far as her training in the water was concerned. She did considerable walking for exercise, however, and took short dips in the sea during the mornings and afternoons of the latter days of the week.

RICHARDS REACHES MET. TENNIS FINAL

Each Wins Two Sets in Semi-Final When Darkness Halts Play—Shimizu-Harada Score.

Vincent Richards won his way to the final of the Metropolitan grass court tennis championship at the Crescent Athletic Club yesterday. He defeated George King at 6—3, 6—3, 7—5. Elliott H. Binzen and S. Howard Voshell, the other semi-finalists, struggled through four hard sets that decided nothing after more than two hours and a half of play, for the fifth and deciding chapter could not be played because of darkness. Binzen won the first and third sets, 7—5 and 6—4, while Voshell won the second and fourth, 8—6, and 6—4.

Zenzo Shimizu and T. Harada defeated Kenneth Fisher and J. Cecil Donaldson, 6—2, 6—1, 6—1, and won their way to the doubles final. The other semi-final doubles match could not be played as Voshell is one of the players involved. He, with A. H. Chapin Jr., was to oppose Richards and Ray Casey, but the long singles match with Binzen prevented it. The Binzen-Voshell match will be finished next Sunday, at which time the remaining doubles semi-final and the two finals will be played.

The large gallery which turned out to see the concluding matches of the Metropolitan championship also saw Miss Elizabeth Ryan, international doubles champion, defeat Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, 6—4, 6—2, in an exhibition match. The California woman was making her first appearance in the metropolitan district since her arrival from England, where she has been for thirteen years. Yesterday, after losing the first four games to Mrs. Bundy, she took six straight for the first set and went on to win four more before Mrs. Bundy got another game.

The Richards-King match was played before the exhibition and the gallery expected and saw a stiff battle, despite the difference in ranking.

When Richards stepped down the gentle green slope to the grass court, he ran afoul of the choicest assortment of drives, hooks, slices, smashes and lobs that has been unleashed in the present championship. Dr. King did the unleashing and except for Richards's ability to keep one jump ahead of him at all times he might have pulled out at least a set. Double faulting gave King an early setback. Nine times in the match he failed to get his service over and six of them were in the first set, two of which gave Richards games.

It was in the third set, however, when every one sat back and expected to see King wilt, that he made his greatest stand. Richards got away to a lead of 4—0 when King took five straight games to lead at 5—4. He was not equal to the task of meeting the increased speed of the second ranking player, however, and dropped the next three games and the match.

Binzen and Voshell had it out hammer and tongs all the way. Both men are noted for the severity of their service, but neither had trouble in breaking through his opponent. Remarkable pull-ups characterized the match. Binzen, behind at 3—0, pulled up to win the first set at 7—5. Voshell, behind at 4—1, came from behind to win the second set at 8—6. Binzen, again behind at 3—0 in the third set, won it at 6—4. The fourth went to Voshell.

F. T. ANDERSON KEEPS TITLE

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 26 (AP).—Fred T. Anderson of Brooklyn successfully defended his title of North Jersey Coast Lawn Tennis champion today by defeating John Van Ryn of East Orange, 6—2, 6—2, 10—8, in the singles final of the annual North Jersey Coast tournament on the Spring Lake Bathing and Tennis Club courts.

The doubles final was won by Van Ryn and Kenneth Appel of East Orange, who defeated Ed Siebleman and Ralph Baggs of New York, 7—5, 7—5, 2—6, 8—6.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Special to The New York Times.

GLENCOE, Ill., July 26.—Once more William Johnston tried and failed once more—William Tilden defeated him in championship play, adding to the long, long string of victories which he has gained over his Davis Cup mate and championship foe since he took the national title from him in 1920.

Playing before 7,500 fans today, the largest gathering that ever saw a tennis match in the Chicago vicinity, the Philadelphian vanquished Johnston in the final of the Illinois State championship at the Skokie Country Club, 6—4, 6—3, 9—7. This was his third victory in four years and gave him permanent possession of the Skokie Club challenge cup.

The crowd that swarmed to the match threatened to inundate all Glencoe. By railroad, trolley and motor car they came, and an hour before the match began cars were parked for blocks around the club. Every seat was sold long in advance, every available nook and cranny was filled with standees and the order had to be given to stop the sale of tickets. There wasn't room enough to accommodate all who wanted to see Johnston and Tilden in their first tournament match of the year.

Tilden Proves Too Strong.

The spectacle those inside the stadium saw was the same that Eastern galleries have been witnessing season after season. Tilden was simply too great a player. Johnston started out in splendid fashion, hitting with great power in long and furious back court exchanges. Gradually he weakened under the strain of holding off the drives of Tilden, lost length and pace, and fell into error making on easy shots.

Tilden was at his best and except for an occasional lapse paid attention strictly to the business of beating Johnston. In the greater part of the match the work of the champion was magnificent. It was almost impossible for Johnston to put over a finishing shot, so amazingly did Tilden cover court, making gets that lifted the spectators out of their seats. Rarest of all were his backhand shots across court. Time and time again he found the opening with these shots, some of which were made after a mad dash to the far corner of the court.

The relentlessness with which he passed Johnston with these backhand drives took the heart out of Johnston and discouraged him from going to the net. Occasionally the Californian brought off a finishing volley after a brilliant stand with his service court but almost invariably he was forced to stand in his tracks and watch the ball go streaking past.

Johnston's forehand did not serve him as well today as it did in some of his earlier matches. He did not get the drive into it nor was he able to keep it above the net. But, as Johnston remarked after the match, you cannot make the shots against Tilden that you can against other players. The ball comes back too fast and too well placed and there is not enough time to get set grind of an hour and a quarter. He Johnston in Good Shape.

The Californian was well pleased with one thing and that was the way in which he had stood up physically under the grind of an hour an da quarter. He did not look like the tired, worn man that struggled hopelessly against Tilden at Forest Hills last year, and declared that with a ten-minute rest he could have gone back on the court for a fourth set as fresh and strong as he had been in the first.

Johnston did not take his defeat too much to heart. He declared that he was looking forward to bigger things and that he thought he would stand a better chance against Tilden on grass. He has had little practice this year and has not had the opportunity to bring his game along against first class opposition as has Tilden, who has been playing continuously since the season started.

The champion stated after the match that he played the best tennis today he has ever played in Chicago and as good as he has played anywhere else. Johnston believes that he can play better tennis and this week in the Seabright, N. J. tournament he is going to get started on his grass season.

It was an ideal day for tennis, with a strong sun shining in a clear sky and hardly a breeze stirring. Johnston started the service and won the first game at love. He broke through in the second at 4—1. In the third game a questionable decision cost him the final point and he lost the fourth also when the linesman failed to call "out" on a shot of Tilden's that appeared to be six inches in the alley, giving the champion the deciding point again. Tilden went on to take the three next games, also, making it five in a row. Johnston broke through in the eighth and won the ninth, scoring on a beautiful backhand passing drive and a volley from mid court. Tilden won the tenth on service for the set.

Coast Star Takes First Two.

Again Johnston took the first two games in the second set, holding off Tilden's drives with punching volleys to break through in the second. Tilden broke through in the third and won the fourth, after a great fight in which Johnston got in some deadly work at the net. Twelve points were required for a decision in the game. Johnston won the fifth game at love on Tilden's errors and then threw away four games in a row with a constant succession of errors, most of which were made on back hand shots.

In the final set Tilden gained a lead of 4—1. Johnston then took four successive games to lead at 5—4. The Californian advanced the hopes of his admirers as he began to get more depth and pace on his shots and he made far fewer errors in these games. Most of his shots barely skimmed the net.

Tilden tied the score at 6—all and it went to 7—all. The champion won the fifteenth at love and broke through in

The Brokaw Summer Sale is now going on

ANY barber will tell you that a dull razor, if laid aside for a week or so, regains its edge by itself. Due to certain definite scientific reasons, it benefits by its vacation, and comes back to work keen and smiling, like a man who has been away on a fishing trip.

The same general principles apply to clothes. The more vacations you can give a suit, the more times will you be able to wear it.

Woolen fabric, seen through a microscope, appears to be made up of thousands of little sticks. Now, if you take even a bamboo stick and rapidly bend it back and forth several times, that stick will break. But if you bend it, say, once this week, once the next, and once the next, you'll find that it is not even appreciably weakened. It has time to recuperate between bends.

Every time you wear a suit—every time you move—those little woolen fibre sticks are being bent. Day in, day out, this bending goes on, until the fibres break. Then the cloth loses its springiness and life—the suit loses its shape, and wears out.

As a matter of fact, frequent pressing wears out a suit faster than anything else. The combination of dampness, heavy pressure and intense heat is obviously destructive. And the oftener you wear a suit, the oftener it must be pressed. But haven't you noticed that an unpressed suit that is hung up for a few days comes back into crease by itself.

Owning the greatest possible number of suits, and wearing them in rotation, is the greatest possible clothing economy. We honestly do not know of any investment paying fairer dividends than that which purchases clothes for rotational wear. Once you have acquired a few extra suits, it is a simple matter to hold your headstart on clothing costs. We believe that the Brokaw Summer Sale presents an admirable and economical opportunity to do so.

NOKOMIS OFF FIRST FOR CHALLENGE CUP

IN SOUTHWESTERLY BREEZE

25 Sailing and 3 Power Boats Are Competing for Brooklyn Trophy and Cruising Club Prizes.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., July 26.—A fleet of twenty-five sailing yachts and three power boats crossed the line in the races started today off the American Yacht Club for the Brooklyn Yacht Club Challenge Cup and the prizes offered by the Cruising Club of America for the long run to Eastern Point, Gloucester, from the Scotch Caps Buoy in Long Island Sound, a distance of 256 nautical miles. It was a remarkable fleet in the sailing divisions, twenty-five schooners, sloops and yawls getting away on the wings of a fresh southwesterly breeze on the long trip eastward, which will take the yachts through Long Island, Block Island, Vineyard and Nantucket Sounds, and then out on the Atlantic for a thrash around Cape Cod to the finish line.

All the sailing yachts that started were well-built, seaworthy boats, fit for the long trip and ready to meet the long Atlantic swells they may meet off the Cape. They were sailed, many of them, by skippers well known in Long Island Sound racing, the yawl Tern having at the helm Bob Bavier, who won two of the Bermuda races with Memory; Phil Mallory, who sailed the schooner Mystic, defender of the Brooklyn Yacht Club trophy for the American Yacht Club; John G. Alden, who sailed his new schooner Malabar VI, and Gerald Ford, who sailed L. Gordon Hamersley's new schooner Countess.

Mystic Is the Defender.

The American Yacht Club holds the Brooklyn Challenge Cup and Mystic is the defender and well liked by many to win the race. The Mallory schooner was up against a hard field with such boats as Azor, Aquanno and Tern against her. The race was started at 4 o'clock, the starting line being between the committee boat Pep, owned by Captain Alfred Masury, and the buoy on Scotch Caps, off Rye. The committee in charge of this race, representing the American Yacht Club, was made up of H. de B. Parsons, Chairman; William Remsen, John B. Shethar, W. J. Curtis Jr. and George V. Cutler.

A remarkable fleet of real "deep watermen" manoeuvred around the starting line when the signal for the Brooklyn Challenge Cup race was made. The starters in this race stood for the line on the starboard tack with a fresh southwest breeze filling their sails and the Seawanhaka schooner Nokomis was the first to cross at the windward end with Bavier's Tern, far to leeward, second; Mystic, Aquanno, Malabar VI, Bonita, Azor, late because of trouble with her balloon jib, Countess and Sachem following in that order.

The next division, for sloops and yawls, crossed the starting line five minutes later with the yawl Nakma first and the sloop Duckling second. A little girl, daughter of Captain Atwater of the Duckling, shouted "We're off!" as the sloop crossed the line and that seemed to express the sentiments of all those present. Class C in the Cruising Club race started at 4:10, the Seawanhaka schooner Seven Seas leading the way with the heavily built Windjammer second to cross, Malabar V and Malabar IV following.

Breaks Out Light Sails.

In the next division, for schooners, Melville Smith's Blue Water had the best of it, breaking out various light sails, with the husky Caroline, owned by Roger Young, second; Quita of Philadelphia, third; Bertha Francis, owned by Hobart Ford, next, the yawls Sequoia, Kilmeny of Waquoit, Mass., and Goonie II. crossing in that order.

The power boats were started at 4:30 with Old Glory IV, the scratch boat, in first place by a few feet over Avis II and Mu-1, the other starters. Old Glory, built and owned by G. C. C. Bonnell of the Cruising Club of America, gives Avis II 1 hour 17 minutes 33 seconds on the run to Gloucester via the Cape Cod Canal and Mu-1 2 hours 56 minutes 52 seconds.

All the races are on time allowance, and the committee in charge of the Cruising Club divisions is made up of E. H. Tucker, Chairman H. A. Jackson and H. L. Stone.

The yachts starting in the Brooklyn Challenge Cup race, the clubs they represent and their time allowances follow:

CANOE ASSOCIATION GETS WAUPETI ISLAND

SAMOSET, Mass., July 26 (AP).—The gift of Waupeti Island in Lake Quinsigamond, near Worcester, was made today to the Eastern Division of the American Canoe Association by Lewis E. Drake of the Samoset Club as a permanent camp site. It will be renamed Drake Island.

This gift was made at the annual business meeting which concluded the forty-third annual regatta here today after three days of races and sports.

Officers elected today were: Vice Commander, Bancroft L. Goodwin of Newton; Rear Commander, Clark B. Benedict of Norwood; Executive Committee, Shirley Harrington of Pawtucket, R. I.; William Heckman of Newton and William Robinson of Dorchester.

The Crescent Club of Waltham, by winning the war canoe race today, also won the trophy offered by Mayor Curley of Boston for the club winning the greatest number of points.

TWO SERVICES FOR VILLA.

Catholic and Protestant Rites for Dead Boxer Held in Honolulu.

HONOLULU, July 25 (AP).—Two memorial services—one Catholic, one Protestant—were held here today for Pancho Villa, late flyweight boxing champion of the world, whose body was here today on its way to Manila for burial. His body did not leave the ship while here.

Requiem high mass was celebrated in the Catholic cathedral, while a less formal service was held at the Methodist mission under the direction of Pastor N. C. Dizon, who said he had married Villa two years ago. Prominent sportsmen spoke at the latter service, eulogizing the courage of the dead boxer.

Review--THE WEEK IN SPORTS--Outlook

YACHTING

Except those taking part in the Gloucester race, yachtsmen of the Long Island Sound racing fleet will be glad of a few days of rest after the strenuous activities of Larchmont Race Week. Once more they will be able to devote a certain amount of time to business and the home folk. Competing for six successive days in such keen classes as exist nowadays is no child's play and the racing men will doubtless be glad of a chance to get their second wind, so to speak.

Although Race Week at Larchmont wound up in a rather dreary drift on Saturday, the series was, all things considered, a brilliant and spirited success. It must have been a great satisfaction to Commodore Ford and other veterans of the game to see that great squadron spread in fan-like formation over the Sound from Bluefish Shoals to Execution Light. Saturday's vast flotilla of 170 boats, as against last year's record of 152, shows the upward trend of the sport, and Saturday's fleet would have been much bigger if there had been any breeze to bring more boats to the starting line.

In no racing division nowadays is there more interest than in the new R Class in which some kaleidoscopic changes are under way. Some of these speedy sloops, regarded as poor racing material at first, are developing unexpected ability, while others, performing brilliantly in their early races, are dropping back in the standing. This is bound to be the case as the newer boats get tuned up and strike their proper stride. The new Fife boat Fifi seems to be coming along in fine shape and it was a great satisfaction to her owner, Captain Maxwell, to have her win the last race of the Larchmont series, the first victory of her career. Two of the R Class yachts are still to come into the racing, the Hanan yacht Astrild and Barbara, the Alden boat built in Germany for Vice Commodore C. D. Mallory of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. The Mallory sloop is due here today.

BOXING

Although Jack Dempsey did not grace us with his presence last Monday or Tuesday, as he had promised, to close definitely the Harry Wills match, thereby leaving the heavyweight title situation just a trifle more confused than ever, it could hardly be said that the past week was devoid of action. On the contrary, it was fairly crammed with real ring activity, proving that in boxing there is sometimes as much fighting inside the ropes as there is without.

The high light of the week, of course, was Charley (Phil) Rosenberg's successful defense of his world's bantamweight title last Thursday against Eddie Shea, the Chicago challenger. In that fight Rosenberg proved himself to be every inch a champion. He waded right in, traded punch for punch and never ceased fire until the enemy had been stretched out, the entire battle taking less than four rounds. From his aggressive style in that bout it can be taken that Rosenberg means to be a fighting champion, which, to say the least, comes to the fans as a totally unexpected pleasure.

Under commission rules, Rosenberg has six months at his disposal before he need risk his title again, but it is not likely he will take full advantage of the time limit. A courageous little fellow, supremely confident he can trounce any bantam in the world, Rosenberg in all probability will be defending his laurels again before the close of the outdoor season. Nor will his logical challenger be hard to find. On the same card with the Rosenberg-Shea bout there appeared an up-State battler from Utica, Bushey Graham or Mike Garcia by name, who, by decisively outpointing Abe Goldstein, the former champion, showed conclusively that he must be considered a genuine contender for the crown. A Rosenberg-Graham meeting later in the season should provide a real championship thriller.

Other features of the week included another of those perennial comebacks by Johnny Dundee, who now insists he has just began to fight, and demonstrations by a pair of championship contenders that they are ready for their final tests ahead. Jack Delaney, challenger for Paul Berlenbach's light heavyweight crown, gave another convincing exhibition of his prowess by handing Jack Burke an unmerciful drubbing. On the same evening Babe Herman, California featherweight, took a final tune-up for his titular bout against Louis (Kid) Kaplan in Waterbury next month, by flattening Kid Henry, the Canadian champion. All in all, a lively week.

This week will be marked by the annual exodus of thoroughbred racing interests. On Thursday Host Butler will speed the departing guests from the hilltop at Yonkers, whereupon there will be a flight to train and boat; for who would miss the first bugle call from under the pines at beautiful Saratoga Springs on the morrow?

Horsemen and followers of racing are always glad when the curtain is rung down on Empire City. It is a struggle to maintain interest during the final week, with the vanguard already having departed up-State and small fields of mediocre horses furnishing the competition. The meetings at Yonkers probably never will be popular with the rank and file of racing folk, although they have a clientele wholly their own from contiguous communities. The course is inconveniently situated, more especially for the important racing colonies on [illegible] Island, the real centre of thorough[illegible] sport of the State. The Associati[illegible] unfortunate in its dates, its first m[illegible] coming at a time when horses are [illegible] from the long Spring and Summer campaigns and race followers are longing for change of environment. Empire City is devoid of that tradition which is so dear to the heart of the true horseman and which is gratified to the fullest at Saratoga, where some of the famous old stakes antedate the Civil War.

At the Springs there is much of peace and surcease from the bustle of the city. One finds it increasingly difficult to hurry, unless perchance, one is caught unprepared by one of the thunderstorms that sweep unexpectedly down from the foothills. Race followers are also brought into more intimate contact than elsewhere. Everybody meets everybody else many times a day—at the training gallops in the early hours, on the street, in hotel corridors, in the paddock and grandstand and clubhouse, at dinner and at the nightly yearling sales. But even Saratoga palls, and during the last week there is as much talk of getting back home as of anything else. That is evidence in the case against the suggested centralization of racing. We Americans like a change. Even only twenty days of racing at the same track during the Spring and Summer meetings become a bit monotonous toward the end. Much of the charm of English racing comes of its diversity. So many shifts would not be practical on this side, except in a limited field within easy shipping distance of the metropolis, but one long meeting would probably prove tiresome to many racegoers.

William Tilden is up to his old tricks again, trifling with defeat. It was getting to be believed that the days were over when the champion dallied at his task until he found himself in a pinch. Gone, so it was thought, were the days when he would let a dangerous opponent gain an overwhelming lead on him such as Shimizu gained in the 1921 Davis Cup challenge round and Johnston in the 1922 all-comers final. The Tilden that faced Johnston in the final in 1923 and 1924 went about his work in a different manner, disposing of his rival in merciless fashion.

It was a Tilden of the same disposition who played Richards six times this season, and, in general, the champion has been in the same frame of mind in his big matches for the last year. This change in the Philadelphian's procedure on the courts led to the question of whether it reflected Tilden's loss of confidence in his ability to rise to emergencies, whether the world's greatest player was beginning to slip.

This question became all the more pertinent when Snodgrass came within an inch of defeating Tilden in the Illinois championship last week. The Philadelphian manifestly was not trifling in that match but was putting everything he had into his play. Not since he won the title in 1920 has Tilden been so nervous in a singles match as he was in saving himself against Snodgrass. The champion showed all the signs of a player laboring under a great mental strain in that match. It looks as though the question must be answered in the affirmative, that Tilden was losing confidence in his ability to rise to an emergency, when one compared his mental attitude with his smiling indifference to seeming defeat at the hands of Shimizu and Johnston.

Tilden, however, has put his championship powers to their greatest test. Deliberately he allowed Howard Kinsey to gain a lead of 5—2 over him in the final set of their semi-final match at Skokie. Then he took four games in a row and ultimately the set from the fourth ranking player in the country—one of the most breath-taking performances ever seen on a court.

If any conclusions are to be drawn from this they are: Don't jump at conclusions about Tilden.

GOLF

Are there too many golf tournaments? The question came up at Lido last week when a field that was hardly representative of the greatest commonwealth in the Union turned out for the State championship. It was revived when day after day passed without even a corporal's guard attending. Although a tournament was being staged whose obvious purpose was to denote the player who was to be known as the New York State amateur champion, the Lido links looked like a barren stretch of unpopulated country. Why?

For one thing the field was not only small, but hardly in keeping with the State's strength, meager as that may be at the present time. There were a few outstanding golfers like Jack Mackie Jr., who won; Eddie Driggs, W. H. Gardner, Lee Chase, Dick Jones, Frank Wattles Jr., Ruland Tichnor and one or two others, but there were also many notable absentees and it so happened that the absentees were some of the outstanding golfers in the State.

Perhaps the time of the year selected for the holding of the tournament was unpropitious. More likely, however, the cause of the lack of interest was the over-abundance of tournaments. What with the district, the metropolitan, the State, the National championships, in addition to all the invitation events that are provided for those who wish to play golf; the better players are now forced to make a choice of those events for which they wish to take time off to play in.

This condition, however, may be just as well, for it gives the youngsters an opportunity that they might not otherwise have. In the New York State, for example, we find Mackie, 18 years old, emerging with the title after a week of fine golf, and we have another youngster. Stephen Geoghegan, more or less obscure heretofore, winning his way into the final round. The result of the past week at Lido, as well as happenings in [illegible] Western and Canadian amateur [illegible]pionships, indicate that golf has [illegible] a point where it is no longer [illegible] to venture any predictions. The [illegible] men of the game are coming along as such break-neck speed that the men who have ruled in the past can scarcely hope to keep pace.

BASEBALL

Those large portions of the baseball world who have been inquiring all season what the trouble was with the Yankees have just about exhausted the topic and have taken up a new one. American League fans now want to know what's going to be done about the Yankees next year. Fans always want to know something or other. They constitute the most inquisitive section of the world's population.

Yankee scouts are going through the minor leagues with a microscope. The idea is to grab all the promising talent available. On first guess, this would lead one to believe that the Yanks will be well stocked with plenty of capable ball players next season. This probably would be true were it not for the fact that many other ball clubs are doing the same thing. The number of minor leagues is larger this season than ever before in the history of baseball. But the demand for young players is so much greater than the supply that it is a difficult job to land a valuable young player.

Baseball managers do not patiently develop players any more. They want to find the finished product, seasoned by plenty of schooling in the minors. They demand quick results in the major leagues these days. The fans in every city desire a winner on general principles.

The rookie baseball market is just about as uncertain and speculative as the wild-cat oil business. There is a good deal of luck in landing a high-class youngster who is fully equipped to step into major league shoes. For every good one there are a score of players who are turned back to the minors. That's why baseball managers this season have been forced to rely on so many veterans.

So the Yankee club is in the baseball market these days about twenty-four hours a day. Air mail, telegraph, telephone and radio are all being utilized in the concentrated effort of Messrs. Ruppert, Huggins, Barrow, et al., to coax baseball genius toward the Yankee Stadium, hard by the River Harlem, on the Bronx side.

Competitive swimming among professionals, once more popular in this country than the amateur branch of the sport, seems due for a healthy revival. Not only is there virtual assurance of a series of contests shortly between Miss Helen Wainwright and Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey, two of the greatest naiads ever developed, at present engaged in teaching and coaching, but it is reported that Norman Ross, now director of aquatics at the Detroit A. C., world's foremost all-around swimmer until the advent of John Weissmuller, has started training for attacks on the international records by men professionals, mostly claimed by Americans, and is endeavoring also to arrange matches with some of the holders and other former amateur champions.

That the public will give its support to professional racing, provided it is high class and properly conducted, there is good reason to believe. The proposed encounters between Miss Wainwright and Miss Bleibtrey have aroused keen interest in and out of swimming circles. Apart from speculation concerning the probable outcome, many are eager to see the matches take place because for the first time in the history of the women's sport there is the prospect of amateur records being beaten by professionals. This is indicated by Miss Wainwright's recent 220-yard free-style performance in the striking time of 3:10. The feat affords evidence that the latter, still in possession of some world's standards, is profiting by the exceptional opportunities now enjoyed for practice and is going faster than ever she did. As Miss Bleibtrey is said to have improved since the days of her splendid achievements as an amateur, she should be able to display wonderful speed also.

Ross, too, apparently threatens the marks of the men amateurs. Recently, after a brief period of training, he swam 440 yards in 5:08 2-5, a performance which makes it more than probable that with adequate preparation he will get under some of the records for the longer middle distances, as he is at his best from 500 yards upward.

Ross so far has failed to enlist worthy opponents, however, and it is open to question whether the men's end of the professional racing game ever will draw enough swimmers of the required ability to give it widespread impetus. Few of the topnotchers choose aquatics as their life work. Girls, on the other hand, not only find professional careers lucrative and attractive, but the demand is so great for competent instructors, coaches and directors of swimming of their sex that stars prominent in the competitive field often receive tempting offers while in their teens and are inclined to accept them if they intend to become wage earners at all. There is every indication, therefore, that now Miss Wainwright and Miss Bleibtrey have set the ball rolling we shall be treated to high-class racing among the professional mermaids.

SEABRIGHT TENNIS WILL START TODAY

Johnston, Richards, Miss Wills and Many Other Stars to Play in Annual Event.

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 26 (AP).—Play opens here tomorrow morning in the thirty-second annual invitation tennis tournament of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club, with interest centred in the prospect of the season's first meeting between Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., and William M. Johnston of California, second and third players, respectively, in the national ranking.

Richards last year displaced Johnston as second only to William T. Tilden 2d in the standing of the nation's foremost players, largely as the result of a victory over the Californian in the East-West matches. Since then Johnston has been eager to reverse the verdict. His friends have admitted that a conquest of Richards has been one of his major aims in this year's invasion of Eastern courts.

The men's singles will start at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, following matches in women's singles in the morning. Thirty-two players are entered in each competition, with no less than seven of the first ten ranking women listed to compete. The field includes the national champion, Miss Helen Wills, as well as Miss Mary K. Browne, Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, Miss Eleanor Goss, Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup and Miss Martha Bayard.

Johnson's opponent in the first round will be the hard-hitting New York player, Elliott Binzen. Richards will face Fritz Mercur of Harrisburg, Pa. Gerald Patterson, J. B. Hawkes, A. R. Taylor and James O. Anderson, all of the Australian Davis Cup team; Francis T. Hunter, R. Norris Williams and Dean Mathey are a few of the well-known players who stand in the way of a Richards-Johnston final.

OSGOOD WINS AT TENNIS.

Dartmouth Captain Defeats Betts, 6—4, 6—4, in Stamford Play.

STAMFORD, Conn., July 26.—Playing the second round of the fourth annual Fairfield County tennis championship at the Stamford Yacht Club today, R. F. Newell of Montclair, N. J., showed great form in his match with S. G. French of Stamford, winning 8—6, 6—8, 6—3. W. Osgood, Dartmouth captain this season, was also among the winners, defeating S. Betts of Stamford, 6—4, 6—4.

The summaries:

Second Round—W. Osgood, Pleasantville, defeated S. Betts, Stamford, 6—4, 6—4; S. J. Lonsdale, New York, defeated J. Lewin, Bridgeport, 2—6, 6—3, 6—1; M. Jacob, New York, defeated J. Davidson, New York, 8—6, 6—3; J. C. Latham, Stamford, defeated H. E. Fox, Stamford, 6—1, 6—2; F. Major, New York, won from Dr. R. W. Hill, Bridgeport, by default; B. Wiman, Stamford, won from J. Arguimbau, Stamford, by default; S. H. Wilbur, Bridgeport, defeated M. H. Partridge, New Rochelle, 6—2, 6—2; J. D. Ewing, Yonkers, defeated A. D. Hammett, New York, 9—7, 6—2; J. Goodyear, New York, defeated W. Ward, Stamford, 6—4, 6—3; R. Newell, Montclair, defeated S. G. French, Hartsdale, 6—8, 8—6, 6—3.

TERRIS WILL BATTLE O'CONNELL TONIGHT

Terris has demonstrated in his recent exhibitions that he again is at the top of his form and will be a dangerous contender for the Jimmy Goodrich, who recently was crowned world's lightweight champion by the New York State boxing commission. O'Connell, who now is being directed by Jimmy Dunn, veteran Cleveland boxing man who was instrumental in piloting Johnny Kilbane to the world's featherweight championship, has developed a lot in the past year and is certain to be dangerous.

In the twelve-round semi-final, Terris's stablemate, Harry Felix, will meet Joe Glick of Brooklyn. In the other bouts, Joe Marino of Staten Island will meet Eddie Roberts of the east side in a scheduled six-round engagement, and Johnny Filucci of Harlem will take on Johnny Huber of the west side in a scheduled four-round session.

TENNIS BALL MADE UNIFORM IN WORLD

LITTLE LATITUDE ALLOWED

18 Pounds of Pressure Must Not Compress Ball More Than .315 or Less Than .290 of Inch.

While the rabbit ball is causing concern in baseball circles, the powers that be in the realm of tennis have taken steps to make the tennis ball uniform throughout the world. An international committee, appointed last March, has just handed down a unanimous decision bearing on the compression, or, more familiarity, the softness or hardness of the ball, which, it is expected, will remove the last obstacle to absolute uniformity. The decision becomes a part of the regulations of the International Lawn Tennis Federation and all its constituent members. The United States, England, France and Australia are all members of the Federation. The new rule will go into effect Jan. 1, 1926.

While the regulations of the International Federation and of practically all national associations throughout the tennis playing world at present provide for uniformity in size, weight and height of rebound, a great difference in the balls always was found by players appearing in foreign countries. Often Davis Cup players have been thrown off their game by the action of the ball off the ground and off the racquet in other countries than their own despite the similarities in the three points already mentioned.

The compression of the ball is not provided for in the regulations, having been left to the individual manufacturer, no two of whom agreed on the softness or hardness of the sphere. To cover this point and to remedy the fault, the International Federation, at its annual meeting held in Paris last March, appointed an international committee to investigate and report on the matter. The committee appointed consisted of P. H. Stevens, England; M. Rances, France; J. M. Flavelle, Australia, and Walter L. Pate, United States.

Authorized, as it was, to decide upon the limit of compression, this committee made use of a delicate and specially devised testing machine, which was used in London last May during two weeks entirely devoted to tests and experiments. At the conclusion of these tests the committee unanimously fixed the limits of compression as follows: "Under a pressure of eighteen pounds the ball shall not be compressed more than .315 of an inch nor less than .290 of an inch."

The tests showed that the English ball used at Wimbledon and in international matches played throughout the British Isles to be much harder than the American ball, with the result that it has seemed to be heavier to American players competing in England, although by actual weight it is not. On the other hand, the American ball, being softer, has impressed English players competing in the United States as being light, flighty and hard to control.

The new rule will require the English ball to be softened considerably more than it will require the American ball to be hardened. It is the hope of the committee that all nations will, within a period of a year or two, benefit by the new requirement.

WALTHOUR BEATEN BY ARTHUR SPENCER

Arthur Spencer, American champion, had too much speed and skill for Bobby Walthour, the youthful six-day star and track sprinter, in a mile match race at the New York Velodrome last night. Spencer defeated Walthour in two straight heats before 14,000 fans.

Arthur caught Bobby napping in the first heat, jumping off the bank and opening up a big gap while Walthour was loafing around on the flat of the track. Bobby could just chase Spencer home. In the second heat Walthour gave Spencer a hard battle, and they raced neck and neck for half a lap, but when they straightened up coming down the homestretch Spencer outsprinted Walthour.

Ray Eaton, American champion in 1919, defeated Caesar Moretti, the Italian champion, and Mario Bergamini, also of Italy, in two straight heats of a one-mile three-cornered match race. Eaton rode around Bergamini and Moretti in the first heat, and when Bergamini ran into Eaton he was fined $10 for foul riding.

Alfred Goullet defeated Cecil Walker in two out of three heats of a two-mile paced match race. Orlando Piani, the Italian star, defeated Harris Horder of Australia in two out of three heats of a mile match. Horder won the first heat by inches and Piani won the second the same way. Piani scored a decisive victory in the third.

Vincent Madonna, the stocky little Italian star, won the 40-mile national motor paced championship race, the eleventh of twenty-four to decide the championship of the United States. Madonna was paced by Jean Antenucci and defeated Charley Verkyn of Belgium, Henry Wynsdau of Belgium, Frank Keenan of Boston and Gustave Ganay of France.

George Chapman, the American champion, withdrew from the race at the thirty-third mile. The time was 0:58:43 3-5. The standing in the championship now reads: Chapman 32, Madonna 28, Wynsdau 19, Verkyn 18, Keenan 16, Ganay 3.

MONMOUTH FOUR WINS.

Beats Rumson Poloists, 8-6, in Final for Stern Cup.

RED BANK, N. J., July 26.—The Monmouth polo team defeated the Rumson four, 8 to 6, here today at the Rumson field and won the J. E. Stern Cup. Both teams were handicapped at 4 goals, but the teamwork of the Monmouth riders was too much for Rumson. M. Erlanger was high scorer with 3 goals.

The line-up:

MONMOUTH (8).	RUMSON (6).
No. 1—R. Lehman.	No. 1—E. Harding.
No. 2—C. Carr.	No. 2—A. Borden.
No. 3—M. Erlanger.	No. 3—M. Metcalfe Jr.
Back—W. Seligman.	Back—A. Bronson.

LOS ANGELES, July 26 (AP).—Jack Dempsey has actually started training, bearing out his statement upon his return here that he would begin a ring campaign that would carry him through next Summer. The champion launched his exercise with a twenty-mile hike through the mountains surrounding his home in Hollywood. His plan is to get his legs in good shape with outdoor runs and hikes before starting intensive work with sparring partners in an indoor gymnasium here. While Dempsey expects to win over Greb if this match is settled, he will train as carefully as he did for his fight with Jess Willard in 1919.

TILDEN OVERCOMES JOHNSTON IN 3 SETS

the sixteenth for the match after Johnston twice had saved himself with a lob and a back hand volley return of a cross-court shot. This last shot of Johnston's was the most spectacular of the match.

Miss Charlotte Hosmer of California defeated Miss Marian Leighton of Chicago as the woman's champion. Miss Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., girls' national champion, lost to her in a thrilling final at 6—4, 1—6, 7—5. Some of the volley duels in this match were as exciting as anything in the Tilden-Johnston match. Miss Jacobs led at 3-0 in the final set, but Miss Hosmer rallied and her brilliant backhand shots and beautiful work at the net pulled her through.

Wiener Wins Final.

Sandy Wiener of Germantown, Pa., protege of Tilden, won the junior championship. In the final round he defeated Berkeley Bell of Austin, Texas, 10—12, 6—4, 6—4, 6—4. Bell put up a stiff fight, driving with steadiness and good length from the baseline. Wiener's greater versatility and ability at the net were the deciding factors in a match that was so closely contested that the outcome was in doubt to the last point.

HORDER CAPTURES TITLE CYCLE RACE

McNAMARA ALSO VICTOR

NEWARK, N. J., July 26.—Harris Horder, the brilliant Australian rider, outsprinted Fred Spencer, Artie Spencer, the national sprint champion, and Bobby Walthour in the quarter-mile event, the fourteenth of the twenty-four races to decide the national championship, at the Velodrome here today.

Horder opposed Art Spencer and Fred Spencer in the final. He was off the mark like a shot and gained a lead of fifteen yards. Artie was slow in getting started, and, though he picked up a little ground, was two lengths back of Horder. Fred Spencer came with a whirlwind burst of speed on the homestretch and nipped Art for second place.

In the heat to decide fourth place Walthour beat Pete Moeskops and Cecil Walker. The point standing now is: Walthour 26, Fred Spencer 23, Willie Spencer 22, Horder 21, Moeskops 18, Walker 18, Art Spencer 14, Goullet 7 and Eaton 5.

Reggie McNamara, the gritty Australian, took Caesar Moretti, Italian champion, by surprise and won in straight heats of a mile match race. Alex McBeath, also of Australia, easily won the two-mile professional handicap, defeating Tony Beckman, Gus Lang, McNamara, Goullet, Fred Spencer and Dick Schneider. The miss and out went to Harry Horan, who beat Fred Hill, Willie Hanley, Willie Keller and Norman Hill. Leading almost all the way, Clarence Carman, veteran Jamaica star, defeated Sam Gatman of Newark, Charlie Jaeger of Vailsburg, Frank Cozzolino of Bloomfield and Angelo Vey of Italy in the twenty-five-mile motor-paced race.

SPENCE IS FIRST THRICE IN SWIMS

Walter Spence of the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A. was a triple winner in a water carnival held by the Maxim S. C. of City Island in Long Island Sound yesterday afternoon. He captured the 50 and 100 yard free style sprints over straightaway courses in 0:25 and 0:58 2-5 respectively, then he won an 880-yard swim, also straightaway, with tide favoring, in 9:13.

Spence was hard pressed in the dash by his club mate, Thomas Steen, who was second by inches, but he did not have to extend himself to beat the latter by five yards in the century.

The half mile race brought out a field of twenty-two starters. Spence went to the front soon after the gun, but upon obtaining a safe lead he eased up. He finished fifteen yards ahead of Ernest Drosdick of the Zimnock S. S., who defeated James Hanrette of the New York A. C. six yards for second place.

Three A. A. U. swimming events for mermaids were on the card and Miss Ruth Bracker of the Women's S. A. distinguished herself by swimming the 100-yard free style swim in 1:15 3-5 and finishing a close second to Miss Lillian Moore of the Yonkers A. C. in a 200-yard back stroke test in 4:05.

A 200-yard free style race went to Miss Katherine O'Neil in 3:15 and a fancy diving contest was won by Miss Louise Davidson of the People's Palace of Jersey City with 79.3 points.

IN MEMORIAN IS RETIRED.

Noted Turf Star Goes to Goodloe's Stud, It Is Announced.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 26.—In Memoriam, Carl Weidemann's good handicap racer, has been retired to W. C. Goodloe's stud here, it became known today. In Memoriam thus follows the retirement from racing of Zev, whose greatest rival, In Memoriam, was in 1923.

In Memoriam, by McGee-Enchantress 2d, was unable to stand training this season because of a leg ailment, which trouble prevented him from appearing in colors more than once in 1924, when he finished unplaced.

MISS DELANY WINS MILE SWIM HONORS

MEANY TAKES MEN'S RACE

Special to The New York Times.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., July 26.—Miss Elaine Delany of the Women's Swimming Association of New York won the National A. A. U. junior one-mile free-style championship, held as the feature of a water carnival under the auspices of the Cygnet Athletic Club at Byran Park Bathing Beach here today. Her time was 29:04, but too much weight should not be placed on these figures, as the 440-yard course in open water was measured approximately.

General conditions were poor, in fact. The start was made from a dock not at right angles to the course, so that the contenders at one end of the line had to cover about twenty yards more than at the other, provided all kept in their lanes. A small rowboat marked the turn. In addition, craft of all kinds and numerous bathers obstructed the path of the swimmers.

Seven starters reported for the national title race and for the first quarter they were closely grouped. But on the second lap Miss Marion Bloomer of the Bridgeport Board of Recreation forged to the front, followed by Miss Delany, and they had a clear lead on the field at 880 yards. Miss Maud MacFarlane of the Women's S. A., then in third place, drew up soon after and for a while looked dangerous, but she went off at a tangent at about 1,000 yards and lost any chance she may have had.

Miss Delany increased her pace and caught Miss Bloomer just before the last turn, then they furnished a stirring battle on the home stretch. Miss Delany sprinted brilliantly in the final dash and won by five yards. Miss MacFarlane was third, more than one minute behind Miss Bloomer.

William Meany of Yale's varsity swimming team won a 400-yaard A. A. U. free-style race for men through ability to steer a straight course. Ewald Wildfoster of the New York A. C. and Fred Wenck of Dartmouth College gained a comfortable lead on the first lap of the 200-yard course, but on the way back they shot off at an angle and did not straighten out until about to strike shore. Meany, swimming as straight as a die, passed them twenty yards from the line and won by a safe margin in 5:27 1-5. Wenck nosed out Wildfoster for the place.

Port Chester championships at fifty yards free-style for boys and girls went respectively to Charles Jensen in 0:29 1-5 and Miss Kathryn Rogers in 0:37 2-5.

WOMEN STARS TRY OUT SHENECOSSETT LINKS

Miss Collett and Mrs. Hurd in Exhibition Preparatory to Tourney Today.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 26 (AP).—Many of the leading women golfers of the country were here tonight awaiting the opening tomorrow morning of the seventh annual women's invitation golf tournament on the Shenecossett Country Club links. Two hundred and twenty players are entered.

An exhibition best-ball foursome was played this afternoon with Miss Glenna Collett, Metacomet Country Club, and Miss Marie Jenney, North Hempstead, playing against Mrs. Dorothy C. Hurd, Merion Country Club, and Mrs. H. D. Sterrett, Hutchinson, Kan. The match ended with all even at the eighteenth hole.

Miss Collett had the best individual card, going out in 40 and in in 39. Mrs. Hurd went out in 38 and scored a 44 on the return. Mrs. Hurd played seven holes in par.

The other scores were: Miss Jenney, 47, 46—93; Mrs. Sterret, 47, 43—90.

MAJOR IN NASSAU FINAL.

Defeats Lay, 6-2, 6-2,—Match Between Kuhn and Fisher Postponed.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., July 26.—Cedric Major won his way to the final of the Nassau and Suffolk County tennis championship here today by defeating Donald Lay, 6—2, 6—2, on the courts of the Hempstead Country Club. Major's steadiness and driving power were too much for Lay and he succumbed despite a hard fight. The other semi-final, between Kuhn and K. D. Fisher, was postponed.

Leading the Sports Vogue in Touring Cars
How far the New Franklin Touring has influenced this season's rapid growth in the sport car vogue, no one can say. But there is no question of the impression it has made on all who have seen and driven it. For the first time an open car has been created which equals closed cars in beauty. Its custom features, foreign style touches and fine sports air give it a pleasing personality. High power, with comfort, handling ease and dependability which betters the famous Franklin standard, rounds out a car instantly desired by those with a flair for action, originality and quality. It makes ownership, from every angle, an enduring delight.

MR. BRYAN.

William Jennings Bryan had lived in such a constant and intense blaze of publicity for the past thirty years; his career had been so often reviewed; his personality and character had become so fixed in the popular judgment that his sudden death calls for little except acknowledgment of the extraordinary place which he occupied in our politics. He had, it is true, outlived his chief fame. Even before the Democratic National Convention of last year and his recent display at Dayton, it was evident that the vibrant energy of other days was failing him. His wonted fires burned, but they burned manifestly low. He was no longer the man who first burst upon the American people in his amazing campaign for the Presidency of 1896; who then proceeded to establish a tyrannical control of the Democratic Party, and who kept himself in the public eye by eloquent speeches and by political audacities and vagaries.

It was Mr. Asquith who, after conversing with Mr. Bryan in England, said, in effect, that he thought such a public man could have been produced nowhere but in the United States. If in this there lurked a double meaning, it none the less contained a truth. We have to bear it in mind whether we think of Mr. Bryan's mistakes and perversities or of his good qualities. As he was, America made him. The opportunities which came to him and which he seized to such remarkable advantage were home grown, and of the soil of the Middle West. A wonderful gift for oratory, an instinctive ability to understand the ways in which the common man thinks and feels, an almost infallible eye for a "cause" which could be made to win applause and coin votes—these things were partly born in him, partly acquired, but they were all native American. On that point, Mr. Asquith's judgment of the man was correct.

The great following which Mr. Bryan secured and long held cannot be wholly accounted for by saying that he had the arts of the agitator and the ambitious politician. Among the great multitude who looked up to him were workingmen and farmers, together with masses of good people in the evangelical churches. They could not all have been misguided by false lights. They must have found something in Mr. Bryan that answered to their own, often inarticulate, aspirations. He gave voice to the likings and the repulsions of ordinary folk. And they clung, often with difficulty, to a belief in his sincerity. This is the aspect of Mr. Bryan's career upon which thoughtful and considerate fellow-countrymen of his will prefer to dwell as the news comes of the last of earth for him. He filled a great space in our political history. Unable to reach or to retain important office, he was yet long a powerful and indomitable figure in American public affairs. It is with unaffected sorrow that the people will learn of his death.

A FREE HAND TIED.

Some time ago President Coolidge gave the correspondents at Swampscott to understand that he would tolerate no political interference with General Andrews, now in charge of prohibition enforcement. Realizing the vast importance of the work undertaken by that official, the President let it be known that he thought politics should not be allowed to have anything to do with it, and that General Andrews should have a perfectly "free hand." But the politicians seem to think that Mr. Coolidge said these things with a wink. At any rate, they have descended upon General Andrews and already forced him both to alter and to delay his plans. The system of organization by districts which he had announced displeased some Republicans mighty in Congress. Not only did General Andrews ignore State lines, he ignored political fences. In at least two districts he has been compelled to restore them; and the date set for beginning his battle has been postponed from Aug. 1 to Sept. 1. There is no doubt in the mind of any Washington correspondent that all this has been done as a result of political pressure. Having won the preliminary skirmish, the politicians will doubtless press on in the hope of gaining their main fight, which is to continue to make party spoils of the agencies for enforcing the Volstead act.

It would seem that the case calls for a more direct and explicit statement by the President. Thus far nothing has come except from his ambiguous and elusive "spokesman." Mr. Coolidge has not permitted his own language to be quoted; nor has he written a letter or issued an official announcement of his policy. Until he does one or the other of these things the political game will go on much as before. General Andrews will be hampered in his work, sometimes openly, more often secretly. It is time that the country were clear of all doubt in regard to the true state of affairs.

It is an enormous task which General Andrews has undertaken. Perhaps it is an impossible task, for him or for any man. But he is entitled to the unwavering and outspoken support of his official superiors, especially of the President. For the Administration to indicate in a roundabout manner that General Andrews has a free hand, when everybody can see that the politicians are trying to tie him up, is to provoke suspicion of the entire sincerity of the Government. Mr. Coolidge could end all this by a public statement or letter with his name signed to it.

THE MERIT SYSTEM SUSTAINED.

In 1921 the New York Legislature added to the statute book an act giving the Attorney General certain powers in the direction and enforcement of that class of legislation popularly called "Blue Sky Laws." It provided that > for the purposes of this article, the Attorney General may in his discretion, and without civil service examination, appoint and employ, and at his pleasure remove, such deputies, officers and other persons as he deems necessary, and determine their duties and fix their compensation.

The then Attorney General appointed deputies and assistants. These were paid by the Controller, without examination by the Civil Service Commission. Attorney General Ottinger, though, like his predecessor, he held that the persons in question whose names were on the payroll were exempt from examination, also held that the payroll should have been submitted to the commission for certification to the Controller. Sending the payrolls to the commission, he informed it that the appointments had been made under a section of the statute in question and that examination was not required. The commission refused to honor the exemption. It was impudent enough to decide on its own hook whether examination was or was not consistent with the various new posts created.

It asked the Attorney General for the information. He responded by affidavits and an order to show cause upon an application for mandamus. The case came to the Court of Appeals, which has rendered a unanimous decision, sustaining the commission and the merit system. The opinion, read by Judge Cardozo, is of great moment to civil service reform.

The State Constitution provides that civil service appointments and promotions shall be made according to merit and fitness, ascertained by examination, competitive "so far as practicable"; when impracticable, by "a non-competitive examination unless that also is impracticable." It is the constitutional duty of the Legislature to provide laws to enforce these provisions. The Legislature has not exhausted its power in the matter by the enactment of the existing Civil Service law. Says the Court:

> The Legislature retains the power of selection among means appropriate to the end, but choice must rest upon reason, and not upon caprice. To know the limit of the practicable we must give heed to methods and institutions that are functioning in practice. To mark the frontier of the attainable we must find the line attained. This statute is not an expression of the legislative judgment that the constitutional test is impracticable for enumerated or described positions with known or determinate duties. Its aim is far more drastic. It authorizes the Attorney General, not merely to create the positions, but also to define their duties, and declares in advance that, whatever the definition, there shall be exemption from all examination, competitive or non-competitive. To sustain a privilege so sweeping, the Legislature must have been able to say that neither this Attorney General nor any other could at any time establish any position having relation to this bureau for which examination of any kind, competitive or non-competitive, would supply a practicable test of merit or fitness.

In short, a statute declaring in advance that all posts now or hereafter established under this bureau are not within the purview of the commission and to be filled without examination of any sort "does not enforce the Constitution to the limit of the practicable"; and the exemption which the Legislature tried to make fails. The Legislature violates the Constitution every time it tries to make exempt a place that may "practicably" be filled by a competitive or a non-competitive examination. These Blue Sky jobs are "highly confidential." Very well. Does it follow that a Blue Sky stenographer, taking down hearings or examinations before trial, is invested with such sacrosanct mystery as to be above non-competitive examination? With what iron bonds does a non-competitive examination oppress an appointing officer? He doesn't have to choose the name first on the list. He can throw out the whole list if he likes.

The Court of Appeals, avoiding any judgment as to what classification should be made of the posts in dispute, utters no less this large and foreseeing wisdom:

> We find no reasonable basis for a belief that in all the positions, present or future, that exist or may exist in connection with this bureau, there can be no place for a test of efficiency by any form of examination, even as a supplement to tests more intimate and personal. If the Legislature may so declare as to this bureau for no better reason than the need of secrecy, it may say as much of the employes of the District Attorneys in every county in the State. By a slight and yet inevitable extension, it may make a like declaration as to other bureaus and departments. No such sweeping exemption within the limits of the administrative departments of the Government has ever been proclaimed since the Constitution set bounds to the discretion of the Legislature in the formation of the civil service.

"TRACTION GOLD."

As Mayor Hylan sees his nomination for another term slipping away from him he becomes more bitter and reckless, if that were possible, in his talk. On Saturday his theme was the venality of the press. Two newspaper men had been offered Brooklyn-Metropolitan Transit certificates of stock in blank. These unnamed heroes, the Mayor alleges, spurned "this traction gold." But he fears that other newspapers were offered it and also took it. What other explanation could there be of their attempts to mislead the people about the Mayor and to defeat him for renomination?

Mr. Hylan has been a lawyer and a Judge, so that no one knows better than he how worthless are all such assertions when left in the vague. Let him name his men. Let him specify the newspapers, one or many, that have been bought up by the wicked traction companies. Then the public would have some definite charge to go upon in place of anonymous railing. And then the Mayor himself could make ready his defense in an action for libel.

A TITAN BOTH WEARY AND WORRIED.

The British Prime Minister is a very busy and also a highly useful man, these days. His powers of conciliation are taxed to the utmost, both at home and abroad. In the domestic coal crisis he is doing apparently everything that can be done at present. He has set up a Court of Inquiry, before which both the owners and the miners can appear to plead their cause. At first the Miners' Federation declined to state their case to the Court, or to meet the owners in conference except on the basis of an absolute surrender by the employers; but later this attitude was found to be both unpopular and indefensible, and has been abandoned. There will be a meeting of both sides in the presence of impartial judges, with the endeavor to ascertain the facts.

These, as they are universally admitted, are dark enough for English coal mining. Already many mines have shut down through inability to find a market or make a profit, and at least 300,000 miners are now idle. Reports to the Board of Trade show that a decided majority of the mines still operating are doing so at a loss. Many of the mine owners are hard hit. They have contracted to take, instead of rent, a royalty of sixpence a ton on coal actually mined, but when none is mined they get nothing. Oil, hydroelectric power, and other substitutes for coal, are coming rapidly into use, and the British export of coal has been cut down by 25 per cent. In view of this crippling of the industry, the old fears that the deposits of coal in England might give out seem almost ironic. There is coal enough, but at the increased cost of production, largely caused by the higher wages and short hours of the miners, it does not pay to take it out of the ground. All these facts, together with every bit of evidence bearing on the case, will be taken into consideration by the Court of Inquiry. The result cannot fail to be to enlighten public opinion, and also to demonstrate the utter folly of a gigantic coal strike as things stand today.

Looking across the Channel, Prime Minister Baldwin sees danger of another deadlock, or at least of harmful delay, in the negotiations between Germany, France and England. In his speech on Saturday he urged that the affair be speeded up. There has been a sufficiency of diplomatic notes. Mr. Baldwin would have the few matters still in controversy cleared away by personal conference, so that the security agreement could be completed in time for Germany to be made a member of the League of Nations in September. That consummation, declared Mr. Baldwin, is ardently desired by both France and England. He sees in the League a great instrument of conciliation for Europe and a source of confidence and stability in the relations of all countries on earth. With Germany in the League of Nations, as an equal, though without special favors or the right to make conditions, the British Prime Minister is convinced that the situation of Europe and of the whole world would at once take on "a new and better aspect."

THE LIBRARY'S NEEDS.

There is hope that the City Fathers will look more kindly on the Public Library's request for appropriations this year than heretofore. To be sure, the Library's budgetary demands in the past have always been supported by representatives of the "interests —a thing sufficiently sinister in itself to warrant rejecting the requests without examination. But the demand for more books and more service has grown so steadily that the Fathers are beginning to wonder whether the old notion that there was neither patronage nor votes in the Library may not have been wrong. There are more than ten million demands for books each year. This is not the equivalent of ten million votes, but their influence has been making itself felt through protests against the inadequate supply of books to meet the annual demand. Those prophets who said that the movies would put an end to reading have been confounded. The only thing that can do this is to shut down completely on the supply of books. Every year thousands of volumes have to be discarded because they have been literally worn to pieces by ardent readers. The stock of books has fallen off 45,000 volumes in the five years ending Dec. 31, 1924.

The Public Library finds itself between the devil of inadequate appropriations and the deep sea of readers. So meagre have been the allowances in the past few years that it has been impossible to keep the shelves filled, much less meet the demands of the readers. Furthermore, the pay of members of the library's staff has never been increased in the same proportion as that of other city officials. Most of the workers in minor positions do not get a living wage. Only their devotion to their work and their sense of duty to the community leads them to stay on. The thirst for knowledge and for diversion through books is almost overwhelming, especially among many of the children of the foreign born.

The American Library Association, after surveying the conditions in libraries throughout the country, came to the conclusion that a fair appropriation for library purposes in any large town or city was about $1 a head per year. On this basis New York (excluding the Greater New York areas) should have an annual library appropriation of at least $3,000,000. During the last few years it has been receiving only about one-third of this sum.

The desire of the Board of Estimate to hold all expenses as low as possible is understandable and praiseworthy. It is the duty of its members to see that the city's funds be not wasted. In their work they are accustomed to meet with inflated budgets and to see cunning politicians endeavor to obtain unnecessary and sometimes even illicit appropriations. It is only natural for them to choose the path of easiest resistance in cutting and to pare off where it will least affect political interests. But they are beginning to understand that the needs of the library are not those of a selfish group, but rather of the entire population. In making a thorough study of the library's budgetary demands they may easily convince themselves that these are as low as the public service permits.

LONGEVITY, PERSONAL AND NATIONAL.

Only a few weeks ago the doctors held up before us the terror of long life, pointing to recent advances in the average human span. It seemed imperative to invent a new Methuselah much better than the pallidly emotional and aridly intellectual one of Bernard Shaw. The only sure way out seemed suicide at the age of two hundred and fifty or so. Centenarians will be relieved by the assurance, which comes from both Baltimore and London, that this is not necessary. It is only the average span that is increasing, thanks to modern control of maladies of infancy and certain infective diseases. We are not even in the plight of that former inhabitant of Cape Cod whose tombstone explains his longevity as a result of the New England climate, "which, when it does not kill, invigorates." The more we are protected from loose milk and typhoid, the less likely we are to be forced to suicide. Even really old men are tending to die younger, say at 98 instead of 105.

The English statement comes from the personal physician of King George, Lord Dawson. The increasing toll of death in middle and advancing years he explains on familiar grounds. Material progress "has outstripped the rate of adaptation." Wanderer in the forest and tiller of the earth through biologic ages, man is the victim of his own strife after the novelties of speed and concentration, complexity and intensity of life. The result in human living is "not strength but stress." Slaves of "the spirit of striving and hustle," we have "lost the power of relaxation." Vivid and multifarious as are our activities, the result is "not flexibility" but "fixity." Having himself just recovered from a nervous break-down, Dr. Dawson advises a close watch on the physical and nervous changes that come in middle years, and recommends the services of a physician who is also a sympathetic and familiar friend. What reasonable folk desire is not a great total of years but of enjoyable living and valuable achievement.

Of far wider significance is the Institute for Biologic Research which the Rockefeller Foundation has endowed at Johns Hopkins. Behind the problem of personal longevity, which was stressed in reports of what Dr. Raymond Pearl has undertaken, is the comprehensive question of the relation of biology to national development and decay. We no longer say that the basis of historic change is economic—an idea in which Karl Marx was long anticipated by James Harrington. Those moderns are nearer the truth who say that the primum mobile is race. Common sense no less than what we may gather from history tells us that nations rise and fall with the strength and virtue of their citizens. It is of importance to safeguard the great body of the people against the corrosive influence of our mechanistic civilization, but it is of more vital moment to study the strains of especial biologic excellence within the nation, with a view to their continuance and improvement.

Men used to say that wars are caused by the pressure of population upon food supply. Today only the lower range of citizens increase, and at a rate that seems steadily diminishing. In proportion as individuals rise in the social and intellectual scale they cease to reproduce themselves. What are the precise facts, biologically, and how may they be controlled? The chief problem of longevity with which the new institute is concerned is that of the nation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Commuters Who Still Have Hopes.

In the Westchester towns where the New Haven road is still giving at the old price its reluctant service to the commuters there remains a hope that in some way the advance in railway fares for the daily travelers can be prevented. The several Corporation Counsels are studying the situation, and they think that there is a possibility of heading off a serious blow to that part of the county.

They talk of an injunction and of persuading the Public Service Commission to reopen the case, but the prospect is a gloomy one, in spite of their raising several fairly good points. One of them is that the New Haven officials, for this particular purpose, put the valuation of their property in the county too high—higher than they did when it was a question of taxation.

Another and better grievance brought forward is that the Westchester towns on the New York Central's line which are at the same distances from New York City as are the New Haven's towns will do their commuting from each for two or three dollars less than is demanded under New Haven's new schedule. That, however, is not likely to last long, and it seems a good deal more probable that the Central, encouraged by the New Haven's success in getting permission to increase its rates, will ask for the same agreeable privilege.

That higher commutation rates will hurt Westchester County in several of its most important interests is unquestionable. The tradesmen and the realtors will feel the change first and most, but the harm will get to every inhabitant, either directly or indirectly, and in some measure.

Health and Beauty the Rewards.

It is well that in these days, when from several more or less musty corners scoldings still come about the way that women dress, there should be heard every now and then the voice of somebody not a slave of ancient conventions and brave enough and intelligent enough to say with authority that women, young and old, now dress more wisely and more beautifully than ever before.

The last to do this is Dr. Leonard Hill, speaking at the Medical Conference in Bath, England, in the presence of many eminent brothers in his own profession. As a physician, naturally, he dwelt especially on the present feminine costumes from the standpoint of hygiene. He maintained that only good results from giving light and air free access to as much of the body as possible, and he declared that if men had as much sense as the modern woman they, too, would shed at least half of the clothing they now wear!

It is just a bit questionable if women had hygiene distinctly in mind when they shortened their skirts, set their necks and arms free, and put on stockings that were little more than a silken mist. Whatever the motive, the results are the same, however; and if it was beauty rather than health that consciously was sought, there is nothing wrong in that either.

Remains the charge of immodesty, and there is nothing in it except a confounding of the unfamiliar with the immodest and a lingering of the old notion that as much of a woman's body as possible should be kept out of sight. It is all a matter of custom. There are lands where the habillimentation of our most Victorian spinsters is regarded as highly shocking, and there are others where any clothes at all are held a silly affectation and needless expense.

No Light Meant No Music.

Electricity, no doubt, is the very best of all the illuminants that man has tried since he first decided that it was not necessary for him to go to bed as soon as it got dark. It gives light with next to nothing in the shape of unwanted heat, and with nothing at all in the way of the noxious gases attending the combustion of all the other dispellers of darkness. But electricity does have one bad fault—it is not quite trustworthy, in the sense that there are many large and small accidents in power houses and transmission lines that will cut off the current for longer or shorter periods.

There was such an accident Friday night at the Lewisohn Stadium, just after the last wonderful movement of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony had begun. Instantly the magnificent performance of the great orchestra had to stop, for the musicians could see neither their notes nor their conductor, and, what was still worse, and might have been very serious, a gathering of close to 10,000 people in a place whence departure is complicated by many stairways was thrown instantly into very nearly midnight darkness.

The crowd behaved extremely well, thanks, perhaps, to the wise but inaccurate announcement made to them that the lights would be on again "in a moment." They were not on for nearly ten minutes, and all through that time there was the possibility of large trouble if some hysteric person had acted after his or her kind.

None did. Everybody sat calm and quiet, and at the end of the ten minutes the lights did come on, and the musicians went on from the very note on which they had stopped.

HOMES FOR AGED POOR.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter signed "Troubled," recently published in The Times, voices a need of which I have long been conscious—that of a refined home for the aged who can afford to pay a moderate board and prefer to do so. There are many families where the aged are left alone all day by the workers, whose hearts are heavy with anxiety about what may happen to their loved ones while alone. The inevitable desolation of the solitary is not the least factor in the situation.

At present there seems no alternative but a public institution, with its many rules and its somewhat rigid atmosphere. In most of these places, aside from charity institutions, a considerable sum of money is required for admission, and thereafter the inmate is regarded as a ward, having no voice in the management or environment.

How different would be a group of cottages, each managed by a friendly hostess, where a pleasant, cheerful and homelike atmosphere would be provided for refined and cultured superannuated persons who dread to become burdens on their families. There are many who can pay a moderate board and who prefer to do so, with the knowledge that they can leave at any time without forfeiting an entrance fee. This plan would keep the management in the attitude of trying to please, and would thus avoid institutional rigidity and indifference.

In the heart of one of our generous millionaires I would like to plant a seed that would grow into a modest, attractive group of "homes," set in quiet lawns and shrubbery near the city—a place where an old lady whose life had been spent in refined and sunny surroundings would be glad to find herself in the happy company of others of her own kind who prefer independence and companionship to loneliness and the consciousness of being a care to their families.

Some of the cottages should be for old gentlemen and some for the few old couples who still travel hand in hand toward the sunset. What big-hearted millionaire will enjoy developing such a happy haven for the aged?

Central Park Playground.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your Sunday edition I saw that the Committee on Parks and Playgrounds of the Board of Estimate has recommended:

"As an initial step in the general improvement of Central Park, it is proposed to rehabilitate the southerly section of the park lying between Fifty-ninth Street and the Sixty-fifth Street transverse road, which will harmonize with the playground to be constructed within this area through the generosity of August Heckscher. The committee recommends that $50,000 be appropriated for the general improvement of Central Park south of the Sixty-fifth Street transverse road, and that further appropriations be made for the remaining sections of the park as those first arranged for are completed."

Does it mean nothing that the City Federation of Women's Clubs, comprising over 300 women's clubs from all the boroughs, with an aggregate membership of 300,000 women, and also the League of Women Voters have condemned this plan of placing a formal playground in Central Park? Does this action mean that any millionaire who wishes to be remembered may have a section of Central Park redesigned at the expense of the taxpayers, and, spending a small amount himself, put in a little apparatus and have this section of Central Park connected with his name forever?

I remember reading that Mr. Heckscher thought it would not be wise to have more than one such playground in Central Park. He wanted this one to be an object lesson for rich people to see, so that they might follow his plan in neighborhoods where playgrounds are real needs.

Why should other millionaires be excluded? We might divide Central Park into parcels! Let the city pay for adapting them to the wishes of the individual millionaire, and put a monument in the centre, or as some one suggested for the whole park, have the respective names written in letters a block long across the sections.

A STADIUM CONCERT.

The night, with silent magic, set the stage,
Sifting soft darkness through the afterglow
Till where had been stark surface, harsh outline,
Were pools of dusk and dream towers fair and dim;
And, palely gold, the street lamps bloomed like flowers,
While from a bank of haze the full moon came,
Tranquil, serene, to walk the fields of Heaven.

A crash of chords—the rush of mighty winds—
And with the singing boatmen we went down
The current of the Volga, onward borne
By the wild rhythm of a peasant song.

Then the theme changed, and clear and strong and sweet
The strings soared into light, ecstatic song;
And the hushed thousands, 'neath the music's spell,
Heard, in the woods of Spring, the wild birds sing!

Middletown Philosopher Rejects Legislative "Cure-Alls."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Yesterday I harrowed over a large field where my Golden Bantam sweet corn seed had failed to germinate, and as I dragged my weary frame over to the crossroad grocery store I am inclined to think I wasn't in the happiest frame of mind.

The crowd at the store was attentively listening to an article from your paper Uncle Dan'l was reading, and when he reached that section which said "that artificial stimulation of prices for farm produce through Federal legislation promises to be an issue of political importance in the next Congress" I became so all-fired het up, Mr. Editor, that quicker than two shakes of a lamb's tail I mounted a chair and thus addressed my neighbors:

"Gentlemen, the clipping just read by that venerable patriarch, Uncle Dan'l, is not alone ominous but shows the handwriting on the wall. It also means that we will eventually have to take down our trusty old flintlocks and move on Washington, as it's blood and iron, not loquaciousness, that now counts, as Bismarck is reported to have once remarked.

"As there is a coterie at Washington now working on a bill to be submitted at the forthcoming session of Congress, which will meet with the approval of the advocates of both the Capper-Williams and McNary-Haugen measures, which were shelved at the last session, I will tell you briefly just what those two absurd measures proposed.

"But first I want to say, and you know it as well as I do, that we farmers do not desire special legislation. While many of us are operating our farms at a loss just now, we all realize our only salvation lies in reduced taxation, which means less extravagance by our legislators, a correction in some way and somehow of the many bad features of a burdensome tariff, which makes us pay more for nearly everything we use, while the price of our principal farm products is fixed abroad, and a reduction in excessive wages by organized labor.

"These birds jacked up their wage scale a few years ago when occasion permitted, and while we Eastern farmers have suffered a severe deflation of late years these organized bandits positively refuse to recede an inch.

"As we all know, at this very moment many farmers hereabout have early lettuce and radishes, for instance, which can't be given away, and last week I had to exchange the equivalent of ten bushels of potatoes for a day's work by a town mechanic—he working, too, only eight hours, while we all work from twelve to fourteen hours daily and with a lot of money invested in this farm game besides.

"Now, let me explain what some of those wild-eyed Western galoots proposed in the Capper-Williams bill: This measure provided for a board that would in the first place have the selection of thousands of Federal employes to carry out its provisions. This appointive board, consisting of seven members, was empowered to organize and charter farm cooperative associations, clearing house associations and terminal market associations. We all know, gentlemen, our Eastern Representatives in Congress have slipped across some pretty raw pieces of legislation in years gone by, but nothing like this ever came down the pike before.

"And then, who do you suppose was to pay for all this intricate system? The general public? Well, I guess not. The producers were to pay the bills, as there was a provision for a marketing fee against every unit of produce handled. And this measure was not to be a temporary one, either, mind you. It was to be enacted for keeps!

"Oh, no, gentlemen, this power over agriculture is not to be considered for one moment and I can't understand how any sane and practical man could advocate its passage.

"Now as to the McNary-Haugen bill, this was a pippin, too, only a larger one, as it provided for the formation of an agricultural export corporation, and might lease, own and operate warehouses, processing plants and manufacturing plants, and have complete authority over wool, corn, rice and a few other commodities. And out of an overflowing treasury this corporation was to be provided with a few millions of dollars to carry on its operations and permitted to contract debts to the extent of a billion bucks!

"To a lot of us fellows back here in the woods, who sometimes can't give produce away, all this sounds portentous. This close corporation could establish a ratio price, to be fixed on the first day of each month, and if they found, for instance, that many farmers back here in good old Orange County had a surplus of potatoes, we'll say, they could go into the open market and bid the ratio price until it removed the surplus, thereby controlling the 'tater market."

As I concluded, Mr. Editor, I was given round after round of most vociferous applause, and as Uncle Dan'l hot-footed it homeward (evidently for that old hoss pistol of his'n and to prepare for the march on Washington) some chap from your enterprising village, who fortunately stood near the doorway, nonchalantly inquired if I'd ever heard of a maple syrup surplus, and I hesitatingly admitted that those Vermonters were evidently more thrifty than we New York State farmers.

And as Steve and I walked homeward last night I pointed out Cassiopeia in the heavens, powdering her nose with one hand while she rolled up her off sock with the other; and then Stephen said to me, "Boss, ain't we farmers gettin' buffaloed all around?" And said I, "Yes, my boy, but I'm going to continue to holler like hell until something's done."

Starving Our Public Library.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The appropriation request for the New York Public Library has been submitted to the Board of Estimate. Hearings are to be held in the near future.

May I call attention to the fact that the appropriation for the purchase of books for the Circulation Department of the Public Library has been decreased by $66,500 since 1920? The actual figures are: 1920, $127,500; 1921, $100,000; 1922, $60,000; 1923, 1924, 1925, $61,000. There has been an alarming decrease in the past four years of nearly 46,000 volumes.

New York appropriates for its Public Library only one-fourth as much per capita as Bridgeport; barely one-third as much as Boston, Indianapolis and Portland; less than one-half as much as Des Moines, Detroit and Kansas City. In a list of thirty-six leading cities of the United States, New York stands fourth from the bottom.

Fully one-fifth of the library staff resign each year. It is impossible to live in this city on the salaries paid them.

ENGLISH PROBLEMS AN INSTITUTE TOPIC

Scholars at Williams Will Discuss the Industrial Depression.

WILL TAKE UP WAR PERILS

Professor Leith of Wisconsin Is to Deal With Mineral Resources as a Basis of Struggles.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 26.—After a quiet Sunday, the Institute of Politics will resume its discussions of world affairs tomorrow with several new conferences. In the first of the general conferences of the session, Lionel Curtis, editor of The Round Table, of London, will open his course on "The British Commonwealth of Nations." In view of the impression that England is industrially the "weak spot" of the European situation, because of trade conditions and unemployment, this conference is expected to produce much enlightening information.

Members of the institute are looking forward to the first meeting of the round table conference on "Outstanding Problems in Inter-American Relations," headed by Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Director of the Pan American Union. This conference will deal with what is regarded here as one of the two "sensitive areas" now existing in foreign affairs, the other being the Mediterranean. Dr. Rowe is to advance a program for eliminating strife and increasing friendly relations between the United States and her sister republics to the south.

The problem of mineral resources as a source of struggle between nations and a possible cause of war in the future will be taken up by Professor Charles K. Leith of the University of Wisconsin at his round table on mineral resources as a new environmental factor in world affairs.

Will Discuss Perils to Peace.

Professor Leith will discuss the dangers to peace in the present situation, under which a few strong combinations dominate the world's resources and the various plans for internationalization to prevent monopolies for the protection of nations weak in resources, for the reduction of such forms of competition as might lead to war and for the elimination of abuses in the exploitation of backward countries. He is expected to emphasize the importance of an "open door" policy as a possible solution of the problem if internationally accepted.

Count Antonio Coppico will deliver his second lecture on the Italian Fascist Government's program for control of the Mediterranean. There also will be round table conferences on "International Justice," headed by Professor Jesse S. Reeves of the University of Michigan, and "Some Political Problems in Contemporary Europe," headed by Professor Bernadotte E. Schmitt of the University of Chicago.

Dr. Tehyi Hsieh, Managing Director of the Chinese Trade and Labor Bureau, Boston, who is a member of the "International Justice" round table, spoke in the Methodist Church here today on the present troubles in China, and issued a statement to the press appealing for the release of the Chinese people "from fetters of foreign bondage." He said that the Chinese desired an early modification of the special rights and privileges enjoyed by foreigners in China under the extraterritoriality treaties.

"Extraterritoriality," he said, "is utter derogation of Chinese sovereignty and is considered by young China as a great humiliation. Intense ill feeling between foreigners and the Chinese national movement has its roots right here.

Says It Causes Uncertainties.

"This system gives rise to a multitude of misunderstandings and multiplicity of courts in one and the same locality. The interrelation of such courts perplexes both international lawyers and laymen.

"The law is uncertain, for as a rule the law to be applied in a given case is the law of the defendant's nationality, and so in commercial transactions between two individuals of two different nationalities the rights and liabilities of the parties vary according to which party sues first.

"As the consular officials and assessors by whom the law is chiefly administered are primarily chosen to protect the commercial interests of their own nations, and as they are generally not trained judicial men, the administration of justice is not always just and cannot always be meted out.

"Tariff autonomy is enjoyed by every independent State. The present arrangement in China is undeniably an infringement of China's sovereignty. It hampers industrial development and has a tendency to decrease the power of individual purchase. We can only charge 5 per cent. ad valorem, whereas the United States can levy duty on silk from 35 to 65 per cent. If we manufacture satin by hand at the rate of $2.50 per yard, Japan can manufacture the same by machinery and sell back to China identical material at the rate of one-fourth the price. This kills our industry and prevents the buying power growing."

Dr. Hsieh advocates an international joint conference to adjust the treaties in a way satisfactory to Chinese self-respect.

"China," he said, "belongs to the Chinese."

Dr. Hsieh charged that Japan was the prime instigator of the Shanghai riots.

PLAN ITALY-RUSSIA FLIGHT.

Squadron Leaving Rome Will Go 7,000 Miles, Visit Six Capitals.

ROME, July 26 (AP).—The Epoca says an Italian air squadron will leave Rome on Aug. 5, or soon thereafter, on a flight to Moscow and return. The itinerary of the squadron in the flight, which covers a distance of nearly 7,000 miles, provides for stops in the capitals of six countries.

The route will take the fliers over Turin, Udine, Zagreb, Belgrade, Bucharest, Odessa, Yekaterinoslav, Kharkov, Orel and Moscow, and return via Smolensk, Minsk, Kiev, Odessa, Bucharest, Constantinople, Sofia, and possibly Budapest or Vienna, and thence to Italy.

Airplanes capable of a speed of between 118 and 136 miles an hour will be used. The squadron will be under the command of Commandant Bolognesi, aided by Commandant Terelli and Lieutenant Rossanigo. Bolognesi will have as observer Commandant Sbernadori.

It is understood elaborate ceremonies to welcome the fliers are being made in all the cities they will visit. The flight is arousing great enthusiasm in Italy because the three commanders are known as intrepid airmen.

Commandant Bolognesi today expressed the greatest enthusiasm over the coming flight, saying:

"It is certain to be a great success. Morally and politically I am convinced I will obtain an excellent result. I will be happy if we can humbly, but with great fervor, be the faithful instruments of the noble thoughts of our great leader, to whom Italy owes its present strength and future glory."

MRS. VANDERBILT FIRST TO KISS BRIDE

BUT STOOD WITHIN HEARING

NEWPORT, R. I., July 26.—Whether or not Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt 2d saw her daughter Muriel and Frederick Cameron Church Jr. married was a question that was being discussed in the Summer colony today. It was learned that Mrs. Vanderbilt was not in the room where the ceremony was performed at the time of its performance. She was standing in the music room just outside, and while in hearing it seemed to be a question whether or not she could see the marriage service. However, as soon as the ceremony was over Mrs. Vanderbilt stepped into the room in front of the bridegroom and was the first to kiss the bride as she turned around from facing Bishop Shipman and the Rev. Stanley C. Hughes.

It was also learned today that Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt did take part in the ceremony, as had been planned. While on Friday night and Saturday morning it was thought she was suffering from an attack of appendicitis she was up and around later in the day and was present at the ceremony, stepping up and holding her sister's bridal bouquet while the ceremony was in progress.

The flowers that were used in the decorations at Beachmound Saturday today brought cheer to the patients at the Newport Hospital, the Naval Hospital and the inmates at the Mercy Home and School, the St. Clare Home and the crippled children's camp. The flowers were distributed during the morning to the institutions upon order of Mrs. Vanderbilt.

VOORHIS, 96 TODAY, RECALLS OLD TIMES

POMPTON PLAINS, N. J., July 26.—John R. Voorhis, President of the Board of Elections of New York City and Grand Sachem of Tammany Hall, celebrated the eve of his ninety-sixth birthday at the Van Saun farm here today by entertaining twenty members of the Greenwich Village Historical Society and several other friends from New York.

Mr. Voorhis has been staying at the farm since early in the month recuperating from an attack of influenza. As he showed his guests about the farm today he showed no signs of the attack.

In response to a question as to whether he thought the standard of politics was higher than when he first entered that field, he said after a pause: "I don't think so, and I don't think the rest of the world is any better either."

The delegation from the historical society was headed by Mrs. Catherine Parker Clivette, the President. Her daughter, Juanita, who prefers to be known as "Juanita the Poetess" and is sometimes spoken of as the "Sapho of Greenwich Village," presented to the veteran Tammany chieftain a poem which she had dedicated to him.

Mr. Voorhis smiled as the verses were read and bowed his thanks. He then proceeded to discuss old times in New York and his early days in the Greenwich Village section where he has lived for many years.

"In those days we used to roll hoops where the Washington Square park is now. I was pretty good at rolling them too, but I'm kind of out of practice now."

He told of his entrance into politics, which he said was precipitated by a desire to oust the "Tweed ring," and spoke of his many associates in his years of political life.

Referring to the present evolution controversy, he declared that the discussion of the issues involved would make many religious skeptics. "The controversy will be hard to put down," he said.

Mr. Voorhis said he had made no special plans for the celebration of his birthday tomorrow. He will rise early and then receive the many guests he expects. He said that he would be glad to see them all.

Mr. Voorhis was born here in 1829, but when he was one year old his family moved to New York City. His first home was at 16 Bethune Street, where he lived for thirty years. His present home is at 786 Greenwich Street.

DECLARE PANEL A VERMEER

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 26.—What is declared to be a painting by Jan Vermeer, of Dutch old masters among the most highly prized by connoisseurs, whose canvases are extremely rare, is now on exhibition here.

If the painting is authentic—and it is declared authoritatively to be a genuine Vermeer—it brings the total of paintings attributed to the master up to about forty.

The painting on exhibition at Knoedler's Bond Street galleries is about seven by nine inches, painted on a panel, and represents a young woman, possibly the artist's wife. The experts declare that the creamy touch of lights alone bespeaks the master's work.

The painting has been for about a century in a French collection. It was catalogued at a Paris sale held in 1822.

Celebrate Their Golden Wedding.

Special to The New York Times.

WARREN POINT, N. J., July 26.—Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Wells of Elizabeth, N. J., celebrated their golden wedding anniversary today. After attending mass at the local Catholic Church in the morning they held a reception at their home which was attended by their six daughters, four sons and thirty-two grandchildren.

A Son to S. Bayard Colgates.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Bayard Colgate of 156 East Eighty-first Street, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son at Miss Lippincott's Sanitarium on Saturday. Before her marriage Mrs. Colgate was Miss Anne Burr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Burr of New Canaan, Conn.

Mrs. Morgan Slowly Improving.

GLEN COVE, L. I., July 26.—J. P. Morgan attended services this morning at St. John's Church, Lattingtown, with his daughter, Mrs. Paul G. Pennoyer, and Mr. Pennoyer. The condition of Mrs. Morgan, who has been ill for some time, was said to be "slowly improving."

SOCIAL NOTES

New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Pell are leaving today by motor for Fort Ticonderoga, where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. P. Pell at the Pavilion, their Summer home there. 650,000 AT SHORE; ONLY ONE DROWNING

Threatening Weather Holds Down Usual Sunday Throngs at Coney and Rockaways.

Fred Tag, 2½ years old, of 2,860 West Twenty-fourth Street, Coney Island, who was found crying lustily upon the Coney Island Beach yesterday, promptly dried his eyes, smiled, and shook hands all around as he was led into the police station. It was his sixth visit there. Each time he had been discovered lost and searching frantically for familiar faces. His mother, who has been advised by the police to take better care of Fred, was summoned. Her landlady, however, came to claim the boy this time. The police restored altogether seventy-five lost children to their parents.

The threatening weather with rain in the morning diminished the Sunday crowds, but 500,000 persons, it was estimated, visited the resort. About half the visitors donned bathing suits despite the rough water.

Mayor Hylan, who paraded the boardwalk and made fifteen speeches, was the centre of attraction at the Rockaways, where a crowd of 150,000 gathered. Forty-five summonses were issued to persons who appeared on the boardwalk or streets without proper covering over their bathing suits. About half the number were women. They will appear in Far Rockaway Police Court tomorrow.

John Mahon, 18 years old, of 78 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn, was seized with a cramp and went down in the channel at Sands Bay dock, Canarsie. Samuel Bland and John Landon of 510 Classon Avenue, Brooklyn, nearly perished in attempts to rescue Mahon, but were rescued by the occupants of near-by boats. Mahon's body was recovered.

NORRIS ASSAILS COOLIDGE CHOICES

Says "Big Business" Rules Trade Board—Holds Other Appointments Bad.

HE SEES LAWS NULLIFIED

Commerce Commission and Tariff Board Reactionary, He Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—In a letter made public here today Senator Norris of Nebraska, who recently denied reports that he would assume the leadership of the La Follette group in Congress and indicated that he intended to follow a course in the Senate independent of any party, scored the Federal Trade Commission for the tendencies of its majority members and intimated that he would seek to have it abolished. Senator Norris also criticised recent appointments of President Coolidge to the Tariff Commission.

The letter was written to Basil M. Manly, Director of the People's Legislative Service, who was a close friend and supporter of Senator La Follette. In giving out the letter Mr. Manly said: "Other Senators who have been communicated with are in accord with Senator Norris in denouncing the reactionary tendencies of these appointees, but do not advocate the repeal of the Federal Trade act. They hold that there are simpler and more direct methods of reaching the situation."

Mr. Norris charged in his letter that former Representative William E. Humphrey, recently appointed to the Trade Commission, represented big business and now controlled the commission. According to Mr. Norris, the underlying principle of the Trade Commission of defending the small business man against trusts and monopolies has disappeared through "the appointing power," meaning President Coolidge, putting on men "who have no sympathy with anybody except politicians and big business."

Beginning with President Harding's Administration and "including particularly Coolidge's Administration," Senator Norris declared, there had been a persistent packing of the Government commissions with reactionaries.

Hits Reactionary Rule.

The letter of Senator Norris had as its text an article in The Washington Post. It read as follows:

"I am particularly interested in the articles published in the Washington Post with regard to Commissioner Humphrey and the Federal Trade Commission. It shows how powerful the reactionary element of the country has become. From the beginning of Harding's Administration, including particularly Coolidge's Administration, there has been a persistent system of packing the various commissions with reactionaries. It is not only the Federal Trade Commission, but also the Tariff Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"The Federal Trade Commission has attracted the most attention and I want to give Mr. Humphrey credit for his courage. He is the representative of Big Business and he now controls the Federal Trade Commission. The act creating the Federal Trade Commission was passed with the idea of defending the honest business man of small means against trusts and monopolies. That provision has now disapeared from the law as effectually as though such disappearance were provided by statute. It comes about through the appointing power putting men on the commission who have no sympathy with anybody except politicians and big business, and who always construe the law that way whenever there is a possibility to do so.

Attacks General Electric Company.

"What we ought to do, it seems to me, is to advocate and if possible carry out the repeal of the law providing for the Federal Trade Commission. One of the principal things announced in this article is that they will not follow the resolution of the Senate in the investigation of the General Electric Company. That, as you know, was my resolution.

"You probably remember how it passed the Senate. I had a whole lot of trouble with it. They intended to filibuster it to death without any question and I succeded in passing it because these same reactionary fellows wanted the commission to investigate the tobacco trust. Some of their own faithful Senators wanted this done for the political effect it might have in their States. The resolution of Senator Ernst to investigate the tobacco trust was copied to a great extent word for word from my resolution.

"These reactionary fellows refused to consider my resolution, insisting that it go to the committee, and when it came back from the committee resorted to all kinds of means to defeat it and they intended to filibuster without any doubt. I succeeded in passing it by offering it as an amendment to the Ernst resolution. You have never heard the Federal Trade Commission kick about the Ernst resolution and yet it and my resolution are different sections of the same resolution.

"It was good politics, perhaps, for them to investigate the tobacco trust, but it was not good politics to investigate the electric trust that reaches practically every home and fireside in the United States. It is not so serious, in my judgment, if there is something wrong with tobacco. That is a luxury anyway, but it is quite serious when you pile upon the overburdened common people exorbitant prices for electric current that is in reality one of the necessities of life. But the electric trust is a powerful political factor, as powerful perhaps as any other one in the United States, and now the Federal Trade Commission refuses to investigate.

"I do not care for an investigation of the acts of criminals if those in sympathy with the criminals sit on the jury and preside on the bench. No matter what the law might be, or what justice might demand, we could not get it from that kind of a court.

"Everybody knows that the majority of the Federal Trade Commission, able and honest though they may be personally and individually, is so imbued with reactionary sentiment and so partisan in their make-up that they would not see a wrong committed by a big trust or a monopoly, even though it did appear as 'huge as high Olympus.'

"So what is the use of having a Federal Trade Commission? If we are going to let the big fellows eat the little ones up, why not let them do it directly without burdening the taxpayers with the expense of selecting some reactionary men to give approval to the devouring process?

"What good, after all, does it do to pass laws if the President is going to appoint men to administer them who have no sympathy with them? It is, in effect, the repeal of statute by executive action. It is the destruction of the intent of the law by a process of 'boring from within.'"

MRS. H. H. GARDENER, EDUCATOR, IS DEAD

First Woman to Be Appointed to Civil Service Commission Was Social Worker.

LEADER IN SUFFRAGE CAUSE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Helen Hamilton Gardner, Civil Service Commissioner and the first woman to fill that office, died this morning of heart disease at the Walter Reed Army General Hospital. She was the widow of Colonel Selden Allen Day of the United States Army, who died six years ago, and a remarkable woman. She was an educator and author.

Helen Hunt Gardner was a pen name which she adopted in connection with her extensive literary career. Mrs. Gardner was born on a plantation near Winchester, Va., Jan. 21, 1853, the daughter of the Rev. Alfred Griffith and Katherine Peale Chenoweth. She was christened Alice.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday from her late residence, 1,538 Lamont Street. Interment will be at Arlington National Cemetery.

Mrs. Gardener, who at the time of her appointment to the Civil Service Commission, held the highest position ever occupied by any woman in the United States Government, was from her early youth a rebel against the old order which restrained women from entering the world of public affairs. Hampered by the circumscribed education usually given to girls of her youth, Mrs. Gardener at an early age schooled herself in her father's library on the subject of heredity and other topics of a scientific nature. When only 16 years old she became an ardent student of craniology, her interest being especially centred on the subject of the comparative sizes of men's and women's brains.

At this point in her self-taught curriculum she encountered an article stating that women were physically incapable of higher education because their brains weighed less than those of men. Dissatisfied with this assertion, Mrs. Gardener spent fourteen months finding out what scientific ground there was for the statement. She then submitted a list of questions to twenty brain specialists one of whom was Dr. C. E. Spitzka of New York City. The latter convinced her through laboratory methods that the assertion was unfounded and equipped with this support she wrote an article arguing equal rights for women from the scientific standpoint.

Other articles followed in which Mrs. Gardener emphasized that women's capacities and potentialities be properly recognized. One of these latter, "Sex in Brain," was first read before the International Council of Women in 1888. It caused such a stir in medical circles that it was soon being published in eight different languages.

Among her other more notable works were "Men, Women and Gods," "Is This Your Son, My Lord?" "A Thoughtless Yes," "Pray You, Sir, Whose Daughter?" "Pushed by Unseen Hands," "Facts and Fictions of Life" and "An Unofficial Patriot." Most of these books deal with social and political conditions, a knowledge of which she had previously gained by many years of travel in more than twenty countries.

POLICE FACE INQUIRY FOR FAKE RAIDS

NAMES OF ACCUSED OUT

Three Police Are Under Charges—Indictments Against Others for Extortion Recalled.

Commissioner Enright's Special Service Division, made up of plain clothes men, is facing an investigating, according to the belief expressed in police circles yesterday following the disclosure by Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson and Deputy Police Inspector Camille C. Pierne of fake raids on gambling houses.

The raids were made to give the gamblers a chance to start injunction proceedings against the police, it is charged. The disclosures of police collusion with the gambling element were made by Mr. Nicholson before Supreme Court Justice Levy on Saturday when the Justice granted an injunction to the Steimer Club, 33 Second Avenue, restraining the police from further interfering with that organization, which calls itself a social club.

The three policemen who raided the club on June 6 were revealed by the police yesterday as George T. McNulty, John B. White and Edward J. Tiernan. White became a patrolman in 1919. His regular salary of $2,500 was increased by $400 last Winter. He lives at 4,816 Carolina Street, Woodside, Queens, according to the City Record, which gives the address of McNulty as 6,005 Seventh Avenue, Brooklyn. McNulty joined the department in 1911. The three men are under charges, it is said.

The charge of fake raids follows the recent indictment of one member of the division with two members of the Police Reserves. Patrolman William J. Madden of the Special Service Squad, Arthur Summerville, a Lieutenant of Police Reserves, and Ernest Jacobson, a reservist, were indicted on charges of extortion by the Bronx Grand Jury on July 21.

According to District Attorney McGeehan, Jacobson and Summerville are charged with having used Madden's police shield, posed as members of the Special Service Division and demanded money from a man and woman under penalty of arrest on a charge of violating the Volstead act. Mr. McGeehan further said that Summerville and Jacobson had confessed a plot, involving Madden, to extort money from Bronx storekeepers under threats of arresting them for violating the Volstead act.

Mrs. Lillian Berrar, owner of the Midway Inn, 2,371 East Tremont Avenue, the Bronx, was one complainant. She said that Jacobson came to her place and tried to extort $50 from her. Her husband telephoned for the police, and Policeman Frank Barnes of the Westchester Station came to the inn and arrested Jacobson.

Jacobson agreed to drive Mr. and Mrs. Berrar and his captor to the police station. After they started, he is alleged to have pressed a pistol to Barnes's side and threatened to shoot if Barnes tried to call for help. He is also alleged to have forced Barnes to return Madden's shield, which Barnes took from the prisoner, and then get out of the car. When Barnes left the car Jacobson is said to have fired three shots at him. Barnes returned the fire, but Jacobson disappeared.

Barnes was ejected within a block of the police station, but he remembered the number of the police shield, ownership of which was traced to Madden. Mr. and Mrs. Berrar were let out of the car a mile further on.

Man in a Daze Says He Was Jilted by His Fiancee.

KEARNY, N. J., July 26 (AP).—Spurned by his fiancee, who he asserts broke off their engagement last week, Joseph Claffey, 23, a letter carrier of Jersey City, was discovered dazed early today wading through water near the plant of the Western Electric Company at Central Avenue, in the meadows. He told police he had been swimming and floating for twenty hours. He was badly bitten by mosquitos.

The finding of Claffey, the police say, explains the report that some person had been drowned in the Passaic River at the Lincoln Highway Bridge early this morning.

POLICE LESSEN TAXI EVILS, SAYS ENRIGHT

SEES FAVORITISM OUSTED

All Efforts Have Been Made to Increase Safety of Service, and Results Are Good, He Holds.

A great improvement in taxicab conditions in New York City since control by the police has been effected, according to an assertion by Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright in a statement prepared before his recent departure on vacation. The statement was made public yesterday. Mr. Enright said it was his aim to make New York the safest taxicab city in the world.

"The public must have noticed that we have greatly bettered taxi conditions," Mr. Enright said. "Also it must have noticed that the charges of favoritism that were made against the police were false. Instead of showing favoritism, we have done away with much of it, and have also helped the citizens and the cabmen by establishing sixty-nine new stands for taxis.

"First—and this is of prime importance—taxicabs have ceased to be used in collusion with burglars and bandits. We have divorced the taxicab industry, or rather a very minute portion of it, from criminality. A few months ago it was common to read that a taxi waited for bandits. That has practically ceased. Hold-up men no longer find allies among th taxicab drivers. In fact, greatly to the credit of the hackmen, there have been several recent instances in which they have been active agents in helping to capture criminals. Three months of police supervision has been animated by fairness and helpfulness and has converted thousands of taxi operators from an antagonistic frame of mind to a friendly one, so far as the police are concerned. This has been an important gain for the public.

Says Tests Eliminate Criminals.

Mr. Enright said that the police by their tests and examination of taxicab drivers had already eliminated many former criminals, reckless, or dangerous drivers and those who were physically unfit.

"Does the public realize that we are rejecting one-tenth of the men who seek drivers' licenses?" he asked. "The number rejected so far is 560. This is real protection for the people of New York and the strangers who come here.

"Of these, most were rejected by precinct commanders on reports from our Bureau of Criminal Identification. There have been twenty-two rejections by the medical examiners. We have acted on 1,169 complaints, 808 from policemen and 361 from citizens. The largest single item in these complaints has been overcharge, of which there have been 127, not all of them justified. We have revoked 196 drivers' licenses.

"Three separate organizations within the department, two of them under the Taxi Bureau, are working hard to increase the safety of those who ride in taxis. The public will be astonished at the number of men we have had to take off taxicabs because of physical defects that make them unfit to have the lives of others in their hands. We have eliminated several who were blind in one eye and many under each of the following classifications: one-armed, one-handed, one-legged (such men being entirely unfitted to help their passengers in case of accident), hunchbacked, stiff-kneed and those suffering from heart disease, color blindness, drunkenness, vertigo and the use of drugs.

Gives Examples of Work.

"An instance of the need of such examinations was a recent one of an unexamined taxi driver being seized with an epileptic fit while driving past the Public Library with two old women in his car. That they escaped with their lives, when their cab slued in front of a bus, was a miracle. In addition, we have sent from thirty to fifty drivers a day to their physicians to have eye defects remedied or heart ailments treated."

Mr. Enright declared that complaints against police supervision of taxicabs had come almost altogether from men who formerly made their living by helping the taxicab drivers in their public relations and some of whom now saw their jobs slipping away from them.

"In this connection let me say that the truth about the recent lawsuit to enjoin the police from supervising the cabs has never been told," Mr. Enright continued. "The driver in the case was not suspended for swearing at a policeman, as alleged, but for refusing a short ride fare at a crowded ferry. He said he was engaged, so a policeman watched him and we called on him the next day to prove it. He failed to prove it by the passenger he drove away from the ferry, so he was suspended for three days. Incidentally, his license was waiting for him all the time that the case was in court, and he lost five days through failure to call for it."

HENRY WERBLOW RELEASED

OSSINING, July 26.—Sing Sing authorities announced today that they had released Henry Werblow, one of the Werblow brothers who became notorious for their skyrocketing financial operations. Robert Werblow is still in Sing Sing.

Henry went out Saturday night on bail, after the Court of Appeals had reversed his conviction and granted him a new trial on charges of grand larceny.

He had been in Sing Sing fifteen months on a sentence of from five to ten years on a grand larceny charge. He was indicted in New York. He is 28 years old. It is alleged that he and his brother, in negotiations that passed between New York and China, cheated the Guaranty Trust Company out of about $150,000.

BOY DIES, LOLYPOP BLAMED

Father Says Son Was Poisoned—Doctors Give Cause as Meningitis.

ORANGE, N. J., July 26.—Francis Cullen, 5 years old, of 481 Gary Street, Orange, died today at the Orange Memorial Hospital. Physicians there said the cause of death was either infantile paralysis or spinal meningitis, but the child's father, Lawrence J. Cullen, said his son was poisoned by a lollypop.

The child dropped suddenly to the floor while sucking a lollypop yesterday. He was sent to the hospital at once, but he grew steadily worse. Because of the father's complaint Deputy County Physician William Brien of Essex County performed an autopsy tonight, and found, he reported, that the child died of "meningitis brought about by complicated pneumonia."

HYLAN AT ROCKAWAY WINS 5C FARE 'POLL'

Bathers Shout "Aye" Each Time the Mayor, Balanced on Rail, Calls for Vote.

PRESENTED BY REPUBLICANS

In a Formal Statement He Fails to Tell if He Will Run Independently.

UNDECIDED, SAY FRIENDS

The Mayor Declares That the Issue Is "Dough Versus the People."

Mayor Hylan balanced himself on the Boardwalk railing at Rockaway yesterday and asked all those in favor of a 5-cent fare to say "aye." Republican leaders introduced the Mayor for two of his fourteen speeches and said they were backing him on whatever ticket he ran. The Mayor wore sport shoes, displayed a purple handkerchief in his breast pocket and carried a cane.

Mr. Hylan made no pretense of concealing delight at the welcome he got and declared when questioned as to whether he would run independently of Tammany, "Well, you con say that I'm in the fight till the finish. You can see after today's demonstration that I won't come in second."

In a statement issued in New York Mayor Hylan also indicated his definite intention of running for re-election, but failed to say whether he would run in the Democratic primaries or make his fight as an independent candidate at the November election. The Mayor asserted that the same "moneyed interests" which opposed him in 1917 and 1921 were trying to defeat him now and declared that the issue in the coming Mayoralty contest was whether the people or the "doughbags" would control the government and property of the city.

The Mayor arrived at Rockaway shortly after 3 o'clock with Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield, William Collins, President of the Board of Aldermen; Andrew Kenny, President of the Rockaway Board of Trade, and twelve policemen. David Isenberg, Republican leader of Rockaway, and Frederick Davies, deputy leader, met him on the Boardwalk. He talked with both for some time.

Greetings Along Route.

As the Mayor walked along there were cries of "Hurrah for Red Mike!" "How about garbage pollution?" and "Hello, Red!" The Mayor doffed his hat and smiled affably. Then he climbed over the bandstand rail and made a speech, Mr. Kenny introducing him. He repeated his declaration of last Sunday at Coney Island that if the traction companies could increase the fare to 8 cents they would get $84,000 more in Coney Island fares every week-end.

"All those in favor of having the people keep the 5-cent fare and keep the $84,000 say aye," cried the Mayor. The crowd wanted to keep the $84,000.

The Mayor accused the "traction ring" of having "wrecked the Republican Party in the City of New York, and of now trying to wreck the Democratic Party. "The traction ring is burrowing in from all angles," he proclaimed. "I merely mention this so that you may know what is going on this very minute. They want to get control of the City Government so that they can exploit it to the extent of $240,000,000 a year. They are against improvements unless they can get a rake-off on them somehow, somewhere."

He reminded the bathers that the present Boardwalk had been constructed in his Administration and promised them the "finest boardwalk in the world, seven miles long," if they would elect him again. "All those who will fight for the people's rights on Nov. 3 say 'Aye!'" cried the Mayor.

Balances on Railing.

Mayor Hylan found the people so ready to shout "Aye!" to anything he proposed that he adopted the "Aye" system for the rest of the day. At some points in his walk he would climb the rail, balance himself by resting a hand on the shoulder of Deputy Inspector George Haerle Jr., call as many as he could persuade—and he could not persuade all—to leave the water and listen to him. He would merely ask those in favor of the 5-cent fare to say "Aye" with minor variations. On one occasion the "Aye" worked the wrong way.

"All those in favor of not stopping the traction interests and Wall Street from grabbing the people's dough, say Aye!" the Mayor instructed. With its usual enthusiasm, the crowd shouted "Aye!"

"I guess they got that wrong, your Honor," suggested Mr. Kenny.

"Now, put it this way," said the Mayor. "All those in favor of keeping the 5-cent fare say 'Aye!'" The crowd responded with its usual enthusiasm.

Praises Hylan Rule.

Considerable interest was evinced when it was known that the Republican leader would introduce the Mayor. Mr. Isenberg called the Mayor briefly "the best Mayor New York has ever had." Dr. Davies's introduction was also brief. He said:

"Mayor Hylan is your friend regardless of politics. He's been your friend, and he's going to be your friend for four years more."

The Mayor thanked Mr. Davies "as a good Republican," and later thanked Mr. Isenberg in the same way. From then on, in his various talks, he told his audiences that the fight in the coming campaign lay between advocates of governmental decency, "whether Democratic or Republican," and those who were "out for dough."

The Mayor declared that the Long Island Railroad was like the B. M. T. and the "Wall Street oligarchy," in that "they don't care whether you are a Democrat or a Republican so long as they can get the money out of your pocket." He told the audiences jammed about him at the end of a pier that he was ready to "fight the battle royal."

The Mayor rode the merry-go-round, he boarded a contrivance called a "caterpillar" and threw his arms about the neck of the President of the Board of Trade when it got to going fast. Later, undaunted, the Mayor entered a house called "What Is It?" and everybody laughed when he lost his balance and fell on the floor. The Mayor laughed, too.

With Mr. Kenny, Mr. Isenberg and John W. Wainwright he went in swimming. Many of those in bathing attire who had been driven from the boardwalk by the police now pressed about to shake the Mayor's hand. The party dined at Mr. Wainwright's restaurant.

Say Hylan Is Undecided.

Whether or not Mayor Hylan will make his fight in the Democratic primaries is something not yet decided, according to his friends. The supporters of the Mayor profess to be ready to make a primary fight for him and have informed the Mayor that they can get thousands of votes for him in Manhattan and the Bronx despite the opposition of Tammany and the Bronx Democratic organization, which is now accepted as definite. With the Democratic leaders of the three other boroughs, John H. McCooey of Brooklyn, Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens and David S. Rendt of Richmond, supporting Mayor Hylan, his friends have expressed confidence of carrying the primaries against any candidate who might be nominated by Tammany, but intimate advisers of the Mayor, it was said, have counseled caution.

Insists He Will Run.

Mayor Hylan's statement, which was phrased in reply to the question, "Mr. Mayor, what do you think about the political situation thus far?" follows:

"I have passed through two Mayoralty contests.

"Professional gamblers and their friends and the traction-moneybund interests expended $2,000,000 in an attempt to retain control of the city in 1917. Most of the newspapers were very bitter in their denunciation of me. But the people were not misled. They were victorious in my election.

"Four years later there was a second contest. It was an accounting of the stewardship of my first term as Mayor. The people of the city, Republicans and Democrats, with whom I had stood for good government, loyally stood by me. Although the same vicious interests and the same hostile newspapers were increasingly bitter in their denunciation, the people were again victorious.

"Another Mayoralty contest is soon to be decided. Money has been and is to be liberally expended by the same vicious interests of 1917 and 1921. Millions of dollars is to be scattered broadcast.

"Men and women of all parties, who want a continuance of government in the interests of the masses, will be on one side as they have been in the past. The dough-bag carriers who want to put over the billion-dollar traction deal, will be on the other. There will be the usual misrepresentation of public servants, only more craftily and widely carried on and more heavily financed. Any public official whose one aim has been to live up to his oath of office and serve the best interests of New York's 6,000,000 people, regardless of political, racial or religious lines, must expect to be attacked by those who seek special privileges and who have the money to distribute to character assassins and purchasable vilifiers.

"The People vs. Dough," He Says.

"But the issue in this campaign will be almost identical with the preceding ones. That issue is: Shall the city be saved for the plain people or surrendered to sordid self-seekers? The people versus 'dough' is the issue.

"The coming Mayoralty contest will decide whether the people are to retain the rights and privileges which are theirs or whether the dough-bags shall seize the city, its Government and its property."

If Mayor Hylan decides to enter the Democratic primaries, he may have William J. Flynn, Commissioner of Public Works of the Bronx, as a running mate as a candidate for Controller, it was reported. Mr. Flynn, it was said, had been sounding out organization leaders in the Bronx as to the possibility of receiving their support, and it was reported that he would like nothing better than to join Mayor Hylan in making a primary fight.

Firemen Brave Ammonia Fumes As 5th Av. Throngs Watch

A crowd of churchgoers and early promenaders in Fifth Avenue stopped shortly before 9 o'clock yesterday morning to watch members of the Fire Department rescue squad at work in the fur establishment of H. Jaeckel & Sons, 546 Fifth Avenue, at Forty-fifth Street. A pipe leading from the ammonia plant, connected with the cold-storage rooms, had broken, filling the basement with fumes.

No one was in the building except a watchman and no damage was done to the stored furs. It was necessary to let the fumes escape from the storage tank before repairs could be made to the pipe.

FOUR CENTURIES' ART SHOWN AT COLUMBIA

Art of four centuries is on view in Avery Library, Columbia University. More than seventy etchings comprise the collection, provided for the Summer session by Kennedy & Co., 693 Fifth Avenue.

Three Rembrandts, "Clement de Jonghe," "Sitting on a Stone Sill," and "The Landscape with Ruined Castle," are part of the seventeenth century showing. "La Temple de Concordis et le Forum," and "L'Arc Constantin et Collosseum," both the work of Della Bella, are also there.

Millet's "Shepherd Knitting" and "The Spinner," products of the next century, are displayed. Other interesting eighteenth century pictures are "Le Pont au Change," by Meryon, and "On the Rhine" and "Rhine Landscape" by C. G. Schutz.

Corot, Whistler, Haden and Zorn lead the ninetenth century group; four of Whistler's, "Black Lion Wharf," "The Garden," "The Traghetto" and "The Limeburner," being displayed. "Sunset in Ireland" and "On the Test" are two of Haden's, Zorn's "Renan" and Corot's "Environs de Rome" are also popular.

Others included in this section are "The Chimera of Amiens," Cameron; "La Route de St. Gillis," "Lepers," "La Mort et le Boucheron," and "La Ferme de l'Abbays" Legros.

Familiar scenes in American and European cities are depicted by the many artists of the present century. "A Canyon in Gotham" by Peter Marcus is a realistic picturization of a narrow street of downtown New York flanked by towering buildings. "Gramercy Park—Snow" by Weber is also being shown. There are two Yale scenes by Robert Logan, the "Hartness Memorial" and "Wrexham Tower." "Harvard Yard" by Sears Gallagher is also included.

France has been portrayed by Fitton in his "Street in Rouen," by Caroline Armington in "Notre Dame de Paris," by F. G. Hall in "House in Nantes," and John Morin in "Chartres Cathedral."

Character portrayals are numerous, among them being "Femme Assise" and "Reflection" by Mary Cassett, "The Patch Work Quilt," by Margery Ryerson.

Childe Hassam is represented by "The Church Tower, Portsmouth." There are two works of Troy Kinney, the "Breath of Spring" and "Serenade." Other artists are James McBey, "Flood in the Fens" and "Newburgh"; Muirhead Bone, "San Frediano in Celesto, Florence"; Loren R. Barton, "Custom House, Meig's Wharf"; William Heyer, "The Fish Market."

SIKI, BOXER, KNIFED AS HE STOPS BRAWL

CHANCE FOR HIS RECOVERY

Battling Siki (Louis Fall), light-heavyweight pugilistic champion of France by his defeat of Georges Carpentier and victor two weeks ago in a local bout, was felled by a knife wound early yesterday morning at Forty-first Street and Ninth Avenue, and some time later when found by the police he was unconscious from loss of blood. A physician at the French Hospital at 450 West Thirty-fourth Street, where Siki was revived, said his condition was very grave, with prospect for his recovery if infection can be prevented.

It was found that Siki had been stabbed on his left cheek, which had severed several small arteries, showing a surface wound about an inch and a half in length and deep, but not quite penetrating to the mouth.

The nature of his injury made it difficult for him to give a very authentic account of what had preceded the attack. Siki said he did not know his assailant, but that the stabber was one of two men he had overtaken on the street when he was going to his home at 361 West Forty-second Street. The two men were quarreling and fighting, Siki said, and with the intention of acting as a peacemaker he interfered to separate the combatants.

Siki's Story of Attack.

This is Siki's version of the attack:

"Both men were angered by my interference and both attacked me. I fought them off by knocking one of them down, but the other ran at me as I turned to finish him, and he jabbed me with the knife."

Detective Henry J. Porter of the West Thirtieth Street Station found Siki unconscious, and was hunting around the district for his assailant when he saw a man approach the scene of the attack. He turned and fled when he saw the detective. Porter pursued the runner to a house on Thirty-ninth Street, between Ninth and Tenth Avenues, and captured the suspect on the roof.

The prisoner described himself as Joseph Hanahan, 25 years old, of 441 West Thirty-eighth Street. He denied that he had been concerned in the attack on Siki, but said he had heard a man had been hurt and he went to see about it. In Jefferson Market Court, Porter made a charge of suspicion of felonious assault against Hanahan. Magistrate Silbermann held him for examination today in bail of $10,000.

Whether the injury to Siki, if he recovers, will affect his ring career, physicians attending him last night did not venture to predict. The cut in his face had affected the muscles of his face and neck, but this result may be only temporary. The pugilist, who is 23 years old, is living with his wife and another relative.

Siki is a Sengegalese, and despite his statement regarding the cause of the attack, the police were investigating gang activities in the district in the belief that he may have been attacked by gangsters because of his dark color or some other enmity by the "Hell's Kitchen" gang.

Won Carpentier's Title.

Battling Siki won the world's light-heavyweight championship from Georges Carpentier when he knocked out the Frenchman in the sixth round of their bout in Paris in 1922. On March 17, 1923, Siki defended his title against Mike McTigue in Dublin, Ireland, and lost his crown when McTigue won the decision at the end of twenty rounds. In June of the same year Siki fought Morrelle for the French light-heavyweight championship at Paris and lost on a foul in six rounds.

The Senegalese made his first appearance in a bout in this country in Madison Square Garden on Nov. 20, 1923, facing the rugged Kid Norfolk. Siki lost the decision in fifteen rounds, in which he showed great courage under the terrific hammering administered by Norfolk. Despite his defeat, he continued to be a drawing card and has fought several battles here since, his last one being on Thursday night of last week at West New York, N. J., where he knocked out Jack Francis in two rounds. Siki was born at St. Louis, Senegal, in 1897, and began his ring career in 1913.

Assailants and Companions Flee When Blow Over Heart Fells Leader.

Anthony De Lucca, 17 years old, of 362 East 121st Street, was killed instantly in a fist fight in Thomas Jefferson Park last night when a group of boys of which he was a member got into an altercation with another gang. His assailant, who is known as "Joe," is sought by detectives.

After the gangs had met in the park and words had been passed, the impending conflict was adjourned to the east walk at 112th Street near the East River. De Lucca, as the challenger for his band, took off his coat and engaged a rival from the other gang. He received a blow over the heart and dropped dead. The other boys fled. Patrolman E. J. Meagher of the East 104th Street Station summoned an ambulance from the Harlem Hospital and Dr. Rosenberg pronounced the boy dead. The body was taken to the station house.

News of the accident reached a crowd attending a concert in the park and they rushed to the scene. Police reserves were called out to handle them.

ARREST 'LADY MACKENZIE.'

Tampa Police Hold Woman on Worthless Check Charge.

Special to The New York Times.

TAMPA, July 26.—A woman giving the name of Lady Grace Esme MacKenzie is under arrest here on a charge of passing worthless checks brought by G. E. Bray. The police are investigating reports that she is wanted for similar offenses in several cities.

Bray told authorities the woman came to him last March to buy property for interests which she represented. Just before time to close the deal, he said, she came to him and said she had been called to New York and would wire $10,000 in payment for the property when she arrived. Simultaneously, according to his story, she requested that he endorse a $200 note.

After her departure for New York, Bray said, he had heard nothing of Lady Mackenzie until her recent arrival in Tampa.

Girl Freed as She Gives Up Suicide Idea; Arrested on Pier, Promises to Go Home

Upon her telling Magistrate Jesse Silbermann in Jefferson Market Court yesterday that the thoughts she entertained about committing suicide had been dispelled after spending the morning in a police cell and her promise to go home, a girl who described herself as Betty Burke, 19 years old, "in this city a few days from Poughkeepsie," received a suspended sentence on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Patrolman Max Lobell of the West Thirtieth Street Station told the Magistrate that he first observed Miss Burke at 2:30 yesterday morning as she aimlessly wandered up Thirteenth Avenue. Fearing for her safety in that section at that time of the morning he followed her.

When she reached the foot of West Twenty-fifth Street, Lobell said, the girl sat down on the pier and took from her handbag a small bottle of iodine. As she uncorked the bottle the patrolman snatched it from her hand, he said.

Upon being questioned by the patrolman she refused to explain her act or what she was doing in that neighborhood and Lobell took her to the West Thirtieth Street Station, where she was locked up. Outside of describing herself as Betty Burke she refused all other information.

She assured Magistrate Silbermann she had sufficient funds to take her home and was permitted to go.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 26.—Investigation failed to reveal the identity of the girl giving her name as Betty Burke, who attempted suicide in New York on Saturday. No trace of her could be found in this city and it is thought she gave the New York police a fictitious name and address.

BRITAIN TO HALVE FRENCH DEBT TO HER

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 26.—In addition to notifying her debtors that she expects such proportionate pari passu treatment as may be contained in any arrangement between the European allies and the United States, Great Britain has called attention to the fact that so far she has paid some £80,000,000 to the United States and has received from Germany £20,000,000, and from her other debtors nothing.

The significance of this notice is that England expects to recover on the Continent £60,000,000 arrears in carrying out her promise, contained in the Churchill note, to accept from all her debtors, friend and foe alike, only the sum that she must pay America. This notification is especially interesting in view of the approaching resumption of negotiations between Paris and London on the debt issue.

When these talks were broken off some months ago there was almost a deadlock, with England asking of France £20,000,000 annually and France offering £3,000,000 or £4,000,000.

The evidences are now that England is willing to reduce this annual payment and to accept from France her share of the German reparations payment, but with the understanding that if Germany defaults France stands responsible. But there is no evidence that England will accept the French proposal that the total English credit against her former allies be divided proportionately to furnish what England pays the United States. This means that England regards France as her best allied debtor and therefore expects that a greater proportionate share will be paid by her.

As matters stand it is quite apparent that the settlement made by the United States with France will largely control the settlement between England and France.

The commission of French experts arrived in London tonight and will begin their talks with the British experts tomorrow. Finance Minister Caillaux is expected to come over for a few days two weeks from now. But there is little belief here that there will be any rapid progress, the main purpose of the French being to find out what England means by pari passu treatment and how far she is ready to reduce the French debt.

The English do not seem quite clear about their attitude and are quite plain in demanding pari passu treatment. They do not mean to withdraw the Churchill offer but it seems that what the English really asks is proportionate pari passu treatment. That is, with the debt of her allies reduced to what she must pay America, less what she gets from Germany, England will expect for the remainder at least as good terms as America gets.

In any event the French debt to England stands to be reduced by 50 per cent.

It has been pointed out here that America may grant to France an interest rate lower than that given to England, and therefore the terms of the possible American settlement with France, applied to a theoretical capital sum fixed as representing what England owes America, might not produce enough to meet England's annual payment.

Probably the English will reply to this by saying that they wish to peg their settlement on a year to year basis by which in each twelve months they would receive from the Continent just what they must pay in Washington, plus enough to make up the £60,000,000 England has now paid to America over and above what she has received from Germany on the reparations account.

BRITISH TRADES ASK END OF RUBBER CURB

Manufacturers Cite 250% Price Rise in Three Months and Fear Further Advances.

LONDON, July 26 (AP).—Rising rubber prices have intensified the campaign here against the continuance of legislative restrictions on the export of crude rubber from the Malay Archipelago.

The Indian Rubber Manufacturers' Association, which a week ago issued a manifesto urging the withdrawal or drastic modification of Sir James Stevenson's restriction plan that had been approved by the Colonial office, has started a campaign among members of the House of Commons representing constituencies in which the rubber industry is prominent, with a view to impressing them with the claim that ruin is facing rubber manufacturers owing to the high cost of rubber.

A new manifesto has been issued on behalf of rubber consumers by the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders, the Royal Automobile Club, the Commercial Motor Users' Association and the British Cycle and Motorcycle Manufacturers and Traders' Union, declaring that the price of crude rubber has advanced 250 per cent. in the past three months and that supplies in 1926 will be obtainable only at still greatly advanced prices.

FRENCH DELEGATES LEAVE FOR LONDON

PARIS PRESS AGGRESSIVE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 26.—The delegation of French experts left Paris for London today to discuss with the British Treasury a settlement of the Franco-British debt. The delegation includes MM. Thion de la Chaume, Barnaud and Rousel. These three attachés of the French Ministry of Finance will initiate discussion, but it is highly probable that before negotiations have gained much headway Finance Minister Caillaux will make every effort to go to London and take personal charge of the negotiations for the French Government.

Negotiations apparently are to begin at a moment that is not altogether favorable to either Government. The British Government is confronted by the menace of the miners' strike, to be followed by a serious increase in unemployment. The French Government has the Moroccan war on its hands. The necessity of making vast expenditures for military operations against Abd-el-Krim would necessarily embarrass the French in a request for a moratorium, and it is to avoid any such embarrassment in London and later in Washington that M. Caillaux is lending all his weight in the Cabinet councils to the peace move which now is definitely in progress.

A difficulty of minor importance also confronts Caillaux in the strike of bank employes. This strike, if not brought to an end quickly, could prove detrimental to the operation of the new gold loan. Minister Caillaux, however, confidently expects to see this difficulty, as well as the Moroccan situation, cleared up before Aug. 10, which is the approximate date fixed for his departure for London.

In the initial stages of the debt discussion in London the French experts will seek a definite fixation in the amount of the debt and then will proceed to discuss the method of payment along the lines laid down in the correspondence between Winston Churchill and the former French Minister of Finance, M. Clementel. France is prepared to accept the Churchill view that her payments to Great Britain must be proportionately equal to her payments to the United States, but the point on which the French experts expect to offer battle is the question of how much of these payments must come out of the French budgetary resources and how much out of German reparations under the Dawes plan. In fact, the obligation of France to pay part of her debts from the national budget is expected to form the point in the discussion on which the French experts will insist upon a modification of the British viewpoint.

As always happens when the question of interallied debts is brought to the foreground, French opinion on the subject assumes a resentful and irritated tone. The press rushes forward with the usual arguments that the war was fought for a common cause and that it is unjust to make France bear the cost of victory from which her allies derived as much benefit as she did. A significant feature of this style of comment is that L'Era Nouvelle, the organ closest to M. Caillaux, and often inspired by him, today adopts a similar refrain and is repeating Caillaux's famous phrase of 1920—"They certainly don't intend to make us pay for coats in which our soldiers were killed."

It intimates boldly that the only solution of the whole problem lies in absolving France of her war debts. Contending that the Ruhr occupation failed of its objective, as Caillaux had predicted it would, L'Era Nouvelle concludes as follows:

"The moment for regrets has passed. We must act. The consideration which dominates all else is this: Restore to France her liberty of financial life. A great people cannot live unless it has liberty of financial action. The slate of the war debts, which is constantly under the examination of the statesmen of the world, constitutes a barrier between France and her destiny. The initial duty of the Minister of Finance, who is to fulfill the hopes placed it him, is to secure the sponge which wipes the slate clean."

SMITH LEAVES SHORE TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., July 26.—Governor Smith went for a swim at the Monmouth Beach pool this morning, after attending mass at the Church of the Precious Blood. There was a special music program in his honor. Judge William J. Amend played the organ and John Campbell Jr. the violin. William Gregory sang a bass solo.

After the service Governor and Mrs. Smith took part in an impromptu reception outside the church, where many had gathered to shake hands with them. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nixon, whose guests they were, and afterward went to the clubhouse. The Governor is expected to leave the shore tomorrow.

Dinner for Mary MacSwiney.

Miss Mary MacSwiney will be the guest of honor at a dinner to be given Aug. 2 at the Garden of India Restaurant, 672 Eighth Avenue, by the National League of India of 579 Ninth Avenue. Arthur Warner, editor of The Nation; Herald Robinson, President of the Realty Publishing Corporation, and Chaudery Lall Khan, President of the National League of India, are among the scheduled speakers.

BOY HOLDS UP DAIRY; CORNERED BY POLICE

ADMITS FIVE ROBBERIES

Boasts He Worked Alone, Declaring He Needed No Aid—Says He Robbed Because He "Likes the Girls."

Cornered, disarmed and overcome after a struggle in a cellar at 199 East Mount Eden Avenue, the Bronx, Mariano Rubino, 16 years old, of 1,524 Lurting Avenue, the Bronx, who had just held up and robbed a dairy, told police of the Tremont Station yesterday that he had perpetrated five hold-ups since he had been released from the Catholic Protectory two months ago.

In the hope he would furnish further information, Detective Frank Lenihan asked who was the boy with whom he had worked, but Rubino answered with evident pride that he had worked alone and had needed no help.

"But why do you rob people?" pursued the detective.

Rubino, who is small for his age, well dressed and not ill looking, yesterday afternoon entered Siegel Brothers' dairy at 230 East 174th Street, and ordered a glass of milk from Arthur Kornblau of 322 East 173d Street, a clerk. As Kornblau handed the boy the milk, Rubino drew a revolver and ordered the clerk to "stick 'em up." Kornblau tried to knock the pistol from the youth's hand. They struggled, and the boy hit Kornblau several times on the head, inflicting ugly wounds and finally knocking the clerk unconscious. Grabbing the money in the cash register, Rubino fled, but Kornblau, who had regained consciousness, rushed after him.

THIEVES MAKE 15 KNEEL.

Take $5,000 in Garage in One of Day's Five Hold-Ups.

Five holdups, in one of which fifteen chauffeurs were robbed of about $5,000 in cash and jewelry, were perpetrated yesterday. Two Interborough ticket agents were held up in their Brooklyn stations, a Schulte Cigar Store clerk was forced to hand over $35 from the cash register, and a Brooklyn haberdashery yielded $655 and a diamond ring. There were no arrests.

In Mount Vernon an attempted robbery of the Westchester and Boston Railroad Station at Sixth Street and Second Avenue was frustrated by Louis Wingard, 40 years old, of 596 Halsey Street, Brooklyn, who is in a critical condition as a result of blows on the head with a club wielded by one of the two bandits. Two arrests have been made.

Chauffeurs were playing cards in a room near the front of the Uptown Garage, at 154-160 West 124th Street, near Seventh Avenue, when a touring car bearing a New Jersey license plate and containing four men drew up in front of the place. Intent upon their game the chauffeurs did not notice the men until they were inside the room and had leveled automatic pistols at the card players.

Varying the customary order to "stick 'em up," the bandits ordered the chauffeurs to kneel so that no chance passer-by might see them through the windows. Two of the hold-up men stood guard while the other two went among the kneeling men collecting their money and jewelry. After the first command to kneel no one said anything, the chauffeurs declare. When they had taken all the money and jewelry they could find the hold-up men made a leisurely exit, re-entered their car and drove away. No one pursued.

The Mount Vernon attempted hold-up was more amateurish and resulted in the early arrest of James Kinninade of 19 Burling Lane, New Rochelle, and Norman S. Hamm of 25 East Third Street, Mount Vernon. Kinninade had been employed as ticket agent by the Westchester and Boston Railroad until a few days ago, when he was succeeded by Wingard, whom, it is alleged, he assaulted.

Soon after 2 A. M. yesterday a lone robber, dripping wet, his soaked cap pulled low over his eyes, shoved a pistol into the face of O. C. Sanders, Interborough ticket agent in the station at Saratoga and Lavonia Avenues, Brooklyn, and ordered him to throw up his hands. Sanders, however, grabbed the telephone and dropped to the floor under the shelf. He signaled the Interborough operator, who notified the police. The hold-up man, meanwhile, reached through the grated window and took $29.50 lying on the shelf. When the police arrived he had escaped.

A few minutes later, at the next subway station on the line, at Rockaway and Lavonia Avenues, a man answering the description given of the Saratoga Avenue Station bandit, held up the agent, S. Steinberg, and escaped with $56. The police believe both agents were held up by the same man.

Richard Dorsa of 213 Tenth Street, Brooklyn, had just opened the Schulte store at Forty-second Street and Eighth Avenue, Manhattan, when his first customer, who bought a package of cigarettes, turned after starting away and with drawn pistol ordered him to hand over the contents of the cash register. He did so, but said nothing about a much larger amount in the safe. The bandit seemed satisfied and quietly walked away.

While the sidewalk in front of the Parkway Men's Shop at 1,723 Pitkin Avenue, Brooklyn, was well filled with pedestrians yesterday afternoon, four men entered the store with drawn revolvers and held up Samuel Zweifter, one of the owners, and two other persons who were in the store. They escaped in an automobile.

From the cash register the men got $400, from Zweifter they took $80, from Harry Schiff of 257 Grafton Street, Brooklyn, they took $125 and a diamond pin, and from Benjamin Guiner of 1,270 Broadway, Brooklyn, they obtained $51.

Three of the men stood with drawn weapons while a fourth, apparently unarmed, collected the money. All held handkerchiefs in front of their faces, Zweifter said.

Charles Miller, one of the owners of the Pepper Pot, a restaurant at 146 West Fourth Street, told the police yesterday his Saturday receipts of $1,200 had been stolen. He had been counting the money shortly before noon yesterday, he said, when he was called to the kitchen for about five minutes by the chef. When he returned the money and the cigar box in which he placed it were gone. He declared there had been no customers in the restaurant at the time.

Walter Kelly, 27, of 69 West 128th Street, and Anthony Calane, 30, of 251 East 125th Street, were held without bail yesterday by Magistrate Thomas F. McAndrews in Harlem Court, on charges of attempted burglary, violation of the Sullivan act and malicious mischief. Carmo Orocco, who operates an establishment at 2,114 Lexington Avenue, told the police the two men kicked in his door and tried to hold him up.

Jack Green, 27, of 279 Livingston Street, Albany, N. Y., alleged to be one of the men who, on March 30, held up and robbed the wholesale jewelry store of Tebel Kaleko, at 45 Maiden Lane, of $60,000 in uncut diamonds, was held in $50,000 bail yesterday by Magistrate George W. Simpson in Tombs Court. He will be examined tomorrow. Green was arrested in Albany on information furnished by the New York police. Billy Grubb is held in $50,000 bail and Lawrence Harold is held without bail in connection with this robbery.

Skeptics Condemn Chef For Fantastic Fish Story

SWARTSWOOD LAKE, N. J., July 26.—The Association for the Advancement of Skepticism of this town adopted resolutions last night condemning Emil Johnson, chef at the Swartswood Lake Hotel, for his latest fish story.

Johnson asserts that while he was rowing on the lake on Saturday afternoon a four-pound Oswego bass leaped into the boat. The fish began jumping about, whereupon Johnson seized an oar and struck the bass such a blow that it fell into the water stunned.

Then, the story goes, Johnson was seized with remorse, so he dived into the water, seized the fish and climbed back into the boat with it. He took it home for supper, he says.

MOTORCYCLE HIT BY TROLLEY; 1 DEAD

CONEY CROWDS ARE HALTED

Miss Anges Johnson, 32 years old, a domestic, of 1,180 East Eighteenth Street, Brooklyn, was killed and Alexander Madsen, 25, a dock builder, of 421 Pacific Street, Brooklyn, was painfully cut and bruised last night when a southbound Smith Street trolley car in Coney Island Avenue at Avenue L, Brooklyn, crashed into Madsen's motorcycle, in the side car of which Miss Johnson was riding.

Madsen had stopped his motorcycle on the southbound track in order to let a northbound car pass. The crowded southbound car, coming at a good speed, carried the motorcycle about fifteen feet, dragging the wreckage under the fender. Madsen was thrown from his motorcycle and thereby escaped more serious injury, but Miss Johnson was caught in the wrecked side car and imprisoned under the trolley with it.

Firemen of Hook and Ladder Company 276, under Acting Battalion Chief John Burdock, aided by a wrecking crew from the Coney Island terminal, worked more than an hour to get Miss Johnson's body from under the car. Meanwhile the three surface car lines that operate over Coney Island Avenue were tied up and 150 or more cars were standing end to end. The heavy Sunday night automobile traffic was halted and then diverted, but the crowd grew so dense police reserves had to be called from the Parkville Station to handle the curious and excited people.

After Madsen and Motorman Walter Douglass of 388 Court Street, Brooklyn, in charge of the trolley car, had been questioned at the Parkville Station Douglass was held on a charge of manslaughter.

Miss Johnson, whose body was taken to the Kings County Morgue, was a maid in the home of Isaac Silverman, at the East Eighteenth Street address. She and Madsen were returning to the Silverman home after an outing in Prospect Park.

Geraldine Bree, 6 years old, of 69 Stanhope Street, Brooklyn, was instantly killed yesterday by an automobile that ran her down as she was crossing Stockholm Street, near Evergreen Avenu, Brooklyn. Peter Petersen of 153 Withers Street, Brooklyn, said to have been the driver of the car, was arrested on a technical charge of homicide.

James Nolan, 52, a taxicab driver of 95 Ryerson Street, Brooklyn, was held by Magistrate James Barrett in West Side Court yesterday in $12,000 bail for examination today on charges of felonious assault, intoxication and fleeing from the scene of an accident. Nolan, it is alleged, ran his car into one driven by John Kerrigan, forcing Kerrigan's car to strike Mrs. Marian Blanch, 24, a hairdresser of 446 West Forty-fourth Street. She is in Bellevue Hospital with a fractured spine. The accident was at Forty-fourth Street and Eighth Avenue.

COOLIDGE WRITES HAYS ON MOVIE PROGRESS

President Hails Advance in Education and Entertainment as an Achievement of Century.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 26.—President Coolidge said in a congratulatory letter to Will H. Hays that the progress made in education and entertainment through the moving picture enterprise is an outstanding achievement of the opening years of this century. The letter was as follows:

Swampscott, Mass., July 23, 1925.

Dear Mr. Hays:

My attention has been called to the fact that you are taking the twenty-ninth anniversary of the moving picture industry as an occasion to inaugurate a greater movie season campaign. Such a movement to emphasize the desirability of worthy motion pictures will be of real public value.

The progress that has been made in both education and entertainment in this tremendous enterprise is an outstanding achievement of the opening years of this century. I congratulate you and wish you a continuation of your success.

Very truly yours,
CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Hon. Will H. Hays, 469 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

DRIVER REFUSES SUMMONS.

Wants to Be Locked Up or Let Go—Arrest Spoils Vacation.

Because he refused to accept a summons for failing to obey a traffic policeman's signal and demanded that the policeman either lock him up or let him go, Albert Martens, 22, of Mile Square Road, Yonkers, lost his chance to take a vacation with his family at a Summer resort, when Judge Charles W. Boote placed him on probation for three months yesterday.

Martens must report to the probation authorities of the court in person at least once a week. Patrolman Cecil Cooper, who was on traffic duty at Elm Street and Nepperhan Avenue, Yonkers, arrested him and he was paroled until the hearing.

Taxi Men Must Have Police Slips.

The Empire State Taxicab Chamber of Commerce in a communication yesterday pointed out that it was now necessary for taxi men to first obtain slips from their precinct Police Captains, and present such slips at the Taxicab License Bureau, 230 West Twentieth Street, before their licenses would be issued.

PRESIDENT RESISTS TARIFF PRESSURE

STUDIES FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Will Discuss Their Bearing on Domestic Situation With Herrick and Houghton.

GERMANY SEEKS HIS AID

Britain Also Urges Unofficial Cooperation in Obtaining Settlement on Security Compact.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 26.—The international situation in its relation to American affairs is being carefully studied by President Coolidge, who is now learning at first hand the attitude of the foreign Governments toward their debts, the security compact and another conference for further disarmament.

It is becoming apparent to the Administration that with the money centre shifted to the United States and Europe owing the United States more than $12,000,000,000 in direct loans, in addition to large private loans, there is a demand for modification of the policy of this Government to permit repayment of the war loans and the settlement of trade balances.

The first thing that has suggested itself is the lowering of the tariff to enable debtor nations to sell their goods in the United States. Such a policy is not acceptable to President Coolidge and the Republican Party.

Even the present tariff, with the schedules reasonably high, has not been able sufficiently to aid the American farmers and the New England textile manufacturers, it is held. New England is suffering from reduced employment more than any other section of the country. Just this week another 10 per cent. reduction was made in the wages of woolen workers in nearly all the New England mills, affecting all the employes in the American Woolen Company's plants as well as the independents. The wages in some of the shoe factories at Lynn and elsewhere, it has been announced, will be reduced shortly unless trade conditions improve.

Tariff Suggestions Rejected.

So the suggestion which has been made by foreign economists and advanced by American students that the tariff schedules should be reduced will not be accepted by the Administration, which is proceeding along the opposite line and raising the rates wherever possible through the flexible tariff clause. President Coolidge last Friday declared his opposition to a tariff revision in the next Congress.

The American Ambassadors who have come here have emphasized to President Coolidge the belief that most of the countries owing war loans to the United States can begin funding their obligations, but not upon the terms Great Britain is now paying. There seems to be no difference of opinion on the subject that most of the countries, France and Belgium particularly, will require longer maturity and better interest rates than were given to Great Britain. President Coolidge is represented as not opposed to such conditions but is insistent that the loans shall not be reduced and that all the countries shall arrange for funding terms before Congress meets in December.

The Administration recognizes that before success of the Dawes plan can be assured the debt question must be settled and Europe arrange for a security compact. The developments in the latter dispute, it has been learned by President Coolidge, have made the chief nations of Europe hesitate about attending another conference proposed by him for a further limitation of armaments. There have been no favorable replies to advances made by Secretary Kellogg on this subject.

These developments are leading in one direction—the bringing of the United States into a position where she may use her prestige to aid in the solution of the security dispute. England and Germany are both represented as doing what they can to secure the cooperation of the United States in an unofficial way in the security compact question.

In the meantime President Coolidge is studying these questions with their bearing upon domestic problems and getting the latest information from American Ambassadors home on leave. He will see Ambassador Herrick shortly and hopes to have a long conference with Ambassador Houghton before his vacation ends here. He is known to be making a more thorough study of foreign affairs than he has ever done before in his Administration. A visitor said of him the other day:

"The President is directing all the foreign policy in an active way since Mr. Hughes resigned as Secretary of State."

Evolution Touched On in Sermon.

President and Mrs. Coolidge, with their son John, today attended services at the Congregational Tabernacle, Salem, where they have worshipped since coming here. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. C. H. Beale of Milwaukee, who, in the course of it, touched upon evolution.

"The greatest fact that the human mind can contemplate, apart from the being and presence of God," the Rev. Dr. Beale said, "is the stupendous movement that has been continued for countless ages, from energy to atom, from atom to molecule, from molecule to the masses of matter that form the physical universe—from matter to life, from simple to complex forms, through vegetable to animal, from beast to man, from savage to barbarian, from barbarism to civilization.

"Concerning the movement we call evolution, whether this evolutionary process was steady and continuous and gradual, or whether it consisted of sudden leaps after long processes of slow growth, there is a division of opinion.

"My own thought is well expressed by W. H. G. Holmes, who said: 'The low of the spirit's action is this: He descends in order that He may lift.'

"In the dim past there has been a series of such descents. Something descended upon the dull earth and the soil was lifted up into the fragrant lily or rose; something descended into the vegetable world and it was lifted into the animal. Something descended into the animal and it was lifted up to be a man, a creature that reasons and loves and prays. The spirit of God descended upon the Man of Nazareth and therefore it is written:

"'The holy thing that shall be born of thee shall be a son of God.'"

CALLS AGNOSTICISM GREAT WORLD HELP

SAYS HIS FAITH IS SUBLIME

He Sees Scopes Lawyer as Exponent of Belief That Has Done More for Humanity Than Any Other.

Agnosticism was defined as "a great spiritual philosophy which has done more for human beings than any other belief," by the Rev. John Haynes Holmes in the Community Church of New York, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, yesterday before the news of Mr. Bryan's death became known here. The subject of the morning's discussion was Clarence Darrow and agnosticism. The Chicago lawyer, a Scopes attorney, was described as "compassionate, tender, gentle and full of infinite pity for mankind," whereas his late antagonist, Mr. Bryan, was pictured as being "cruel as the inquisitor of 500 years ago."

"My blood runs cold," continued Mr. Holmes, "to think of what Bryan would do if he had the power. He is consumed with pride, for he has talked to God. Darrow is tolerant and does not want to suppress. Bryant would silence any one who did not have the stamp of Bryan. Darrow is not afraid. Bryan is in terror, for he sees Christianity tumbling to pieces, and with it he thinks the whole world is coming down.

"Agnosticism is not an absence of knowledge," said Mr. Holmes. "There is more ignorance to the square inch in the Christian Church than in any other institution in the world. Agnosticism is the result of reading too many books. It is the result of too much education. In fact, ignorance seems more symbolic of the Christian faith than of agnosticism. Most of the learned men of all times have been agnostics. Agnosticism has nothing to do with disbelief. I think that Clarence Darrow's answer to Mr. Bryan's question about his belief in miracles is the most sublime affirmation of faith that will fall from the lips of any man. Darrow said, 'I believe that the universe acts and always has acted in accordance with immutable laws, and whatever may be back of the universe has never violated these laws.'

"Neither is agnosticism to be confused with atheism. I don't know how often these two words were used synonymously in the recent trial in Dayton. What do we mean by agnosticism? We mean, I think, a perfectly frank confession that knowledge is not commensurate with reality. Man hasn't got a mind adequate to the job. The universe is so vast that the mind of man cannot conceive of it. As a school of religion we must be eternally grateful to agnosticism for all it has done for us. It has presented the essential unity of the universe. Bryan sees the world in two parts, the natural and the supernatural. The world of science is the natural part, and Mr. Bryan sees it as the devil. This idea has played hob with the minds of men for the last 2,000 years."

GENESIS AS IDEAL OF LIFE.

Dr. Arbuckle Says It Records Fact of Creation Not Method.

The Rev. Dr. Charles N. Arbuckle of the First Baptist Church of Newton Centre, Mass., in a sermon yesterday morning at the Park Avenue Baptist Church, Sixty-fourth Street and Park Avenue, discussed the story of creation in the Bible. He read the chapters of Genesis dealing with the creation, but made no attempt to refute so-called contradictory theories or to reconcile them with the scriptural story of creation.

"The Hebrew priest who wrote this portion of the Bible said nothing about God's method of creation, because he could not understand such things," Dr. Arbuckle said. "The writer was interested only in the fact that God had created the universe, had created it for the benefit of mankind and had looked upon his work and found it good. The chief lesson to be derived from Genesis is not a theory about creative methods but rather an ideal of how to live. God looked on His work and found it good. Let man look upon life and find it good, instead of finding it dull and futile and hopeless."

In elaborating this theme Dr. Arbuckle praised Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor-elect of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, as "a man who has done much to inspire his followers to see the work of God as good."

TALKS ON CHRISTIAN LOVE.

Dr. Davis Says Fellowship With God Is Goal of Mankind.

"The Witness of the Christian Love," was the text of the Rev. Dr. C. M. Davis's sermon yesterday in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Incarnation, Madison Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street. The love of God revealed in Christ, he asserted, is not an abstract truth to be discussed or debated, but one by which we live.

"Christ came into the world," he said, "to show forth in terms of human life the meaning of God's love. We are living in a world of things and much of our time is of necessity taken up with securing food, clothing and housing. They are not the end and object of our existence, and we lose their purpose if we make them the chief end of our being. We are made for fellowship with God and with our fellow-men; and Christ, who is the way and the truth and the life, calls us to be sharers with him in making known that the one thing in life that counts is love."

Dr. Davis emphasized the missionary work in Japan, China, Mexico and the American colonies, and said that American interest and gifts were helping to make the message of the church known in those countries.

BIBLE AS DIVINE DYNAMITE.

The Rev. Mr. Rittenhouse Says It Has Blown Up Many Social Evils.

The Rev. George Rittenhouse occupied the pulpit yesterday at the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Madison Avenue and Sixtieth Street. He stressed the power of the Bible.

"God's Word is Divine dynamite," he said. "It was used to blow up the slave trade, it smashes the rum traffic, it cleans out dives. Sometimes it would seem that nothing less than a stick of dynamite would start some people heavenward. Wherever the gospel is preached victory is gained over vice, crime, social evil, avarice, superstition and many forms of sin.

"There are many hardened sinners in New York that need to be shaken by divine power through sorrow, bankruptcy, or bitter experience before they will be brought to God. Some of the bootleggers, divekeepers, dope panderers, yes and the self-complacent, worldly, greedy, licentious men of wealth and social position need to be held over the pit of hell and smell the fumes before they will realize their need of salvation in Jesus Christ."

THOMAS REGRETS LACK OF LOVE AND TRUTH

The failure of men to practice the love and truth that they preach so much about was decried in a sermon yesterday morning by the Rev. Norman M. Thomas, Socialist candidate for Governor of New York in the last election, in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, at Seventy-third Street.

"From the passages in the Bible a life of love and freedom could be built," he said. "A man from Mars, coming down to our world and going to our churches Sunday after Sunday, would wonder what a life of love and freedom we must lead. But let him go out into the world and see it as it is and then he would wonder where is the love in which men believe.

"He would come to view the nations and the relations between them and would see their preparations for strife. Nations fight not for truth but for prestige. In Morocco, in China, men who talk of love and truth fight the people for prestige. Perhaps after hearing about love and truth and all the other things he would observe the tenements, the slums and the shacks in the country and wonder whether we strive for love and truth. After seeing all this he'd wonder how to reconcile it with the love and truth he hears so much about Sunday after Sunday.

"Our visitor would be more astonished because this struggle is unnecessary. The world is greatly populated. It is filled with men skilled with their minds and hands; it has the technical skill. So that it is not necessary for us to fight in order to get enough to live. The days when man had to live with his bare hands have passed, so that our folly seems still more stupendous.

"The art of being kind is anything but easy. The love we talk about should be a love including the mind. In social relations hate is stronger than love. Yet we have won much freedom by observing the truth.

"Human progress has come about not because of the survival of the fittest but because men learned to cooperate more than did other animals. No other animal, however, has come so near to suicide by reason of hate existing among social groups."

WOULD REJECT EVOLUTION.

Carlyle Haynes Says the Theory Will Destroy the Bible.

Christianity must reject evolution or be destroyed by it, according to Carlyle B. Haynes, President of the Greater New York Book and Bible House, who spoke on Saturday at the Seventh Day Adventist Temple, Lenox Avenue and 120th Street.

"In addition to losing the Bible, in case this evolution theory be true, we lose everything else that is Christian," he said. "If there were no direct creation by God, but only gradual evolution, then there was no Garden of Eden, there were no such individuals as Adam and Eve, there was no temptation by the serpent, there was no fall, there was no curse of sin. And if there was no fall there is no redemption, there is no gospel of salvation from the fall. There is no atonement. None is needed without a fall. There is no Saviour, no sacrifice of Christ.

"Thus the whole gospel is made unnecessary and non-essential by the evolution theory. Such a thing as a Christian evolutionist is an absurdity. Christianity must reject evolution or be destroyed by it. There can be no compromise between them."

TALKS ON COST OF ADVANCE

Rev. O. T. Gilmore Says Every Apostle of New Truth Has Suffered.

The cost of progress was the topic chosen yesterday by the Rev. O. T. Gilmore for his sermon at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, 133 West 104th Street. All advances, he said, have been made at a tremendous cost of mankind.

"Seemingly," he said, "the most needless price we have paid is in the field of philosophical, scientific and religious progress. Criticism, ostracism, persecution and death have been the lot of all who have taken positions not traditionally held, whether it was the maintenance of the idea that the world is round or opposition to the idea that there is in the body of man a 'resurrection bone'; whether it was the establishment of the open Bible or Jesus's own position on truth and the way of life. Every possible apostle of new truth has suffered.

"It is a great challenge that comes to us of today to push forward in the fields of mechanical invention and improvement and of scientific discovery and in the realm of truth-seeking in philosophy and religion. It is an even greater challenge that comes in the fields of education, government and applied brotherhood in industrial, social and international relationships. Ignorance, prejudice, superstition, selfishness, hate still clutch at the throat of every man. It takes life blood to fight these but the joy of the conquest exceeds that of all other battlefields."

PICTURES CHURCHLESS MEN

The Rev. Henry Proctor Details Reasons for Affiliation.

The man without a church was pictured as "a pathetic object" by the Rev. Henry Hugh Proctor in his sermon yesterday at the Nazarene Congregational Church, Herkimer Street and Troy Avenue, Broklyn. He characterized the non-affiliated person as "a spiritual Ishmaelite."

"There are three classes without the church," said the pastor, "and they are the man who has never entered it, the one who entered it and left it, and the one who is in it but not of it. The church is the ordained ark of the covenant for humanity; all else is the flood.

One reason why God commands us to come into the ark of the church is for the sake of the church itself. It needs every man, woman and child in the community. Another is for the sake of others. The church is the key to the inter-racial cooperation of the community. The other is for one's own sake. Not only does the defeated man need the church, but also the successful man, that his success may be sustained and sanctified."

DR. REILAND ON COMPASSION

He Calls Sympathy the Great Burden-Bearer of Humanity.

The Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church, dwelt upon "Compassion" in his regular weekly message yesterday. In part he said:

"One of the surprising things about human nature is the ease with which many of us become adjusted to surroundings. The fact enables us to endure burdens when put to it greater than we believed ourselves capable of sustaining, and that is its great use. The fact also lulls us to compliant indifference toward many things the neglect of which steals away life's richness and beauty, and that is its great abuse. This ability in adjustment is therefore leading either to good or evil. We become victors with it or victims under it. To keep himself sensitive to the distinction, to wise choices, to careful training in properly using this wonderful faculty, taxes one's best powers of mind and heart. There is a way in which the faculty works very badly. If we permit it we can become hard and unsympathetic and lose the attribute of compassion."

SAYS MANY PASTORS ARE EVOLUTIONISTS

CHURCH IN 'MIDDLE GROUND'

Speaker Adds That Lutheran Belief Is Between That of the Catholics and the Reformed Churches.

There are no Fundamentalists in the Lutheran Church, and neither are there any Modernists, the Rev. Dr. William Freas, Executive Secretary of the Inner Mission Board of the United Lutheran Church in America, 437 Fifth Avenue, declared yesterday afternoon at the West Side Y. M. C. A. Lutherans, he said, occupied a middle ground.

It was the last of a series of lectures on the various denominations of the Christian Church, and the topic of Dr. Freas was "The Genius of the Lutheran Church." At the close of the lecture, following his custom, the speaker answered questions.

In answer to one query Dr. Freas declared he thought the vast majority of Lutheran ministers in America believe in evolution and that a great many of them were believers in Darwin's theories. Asked if a man could be a Darwinian evolutionist and still be a Christian, Dr. Freas said that such was possible.

"I don't think it matters a snap of your finger how you came into the world, but it does matter that God has given you a soul," Dr. Freas declared.

"We don't have any Modernists in the Lutheran Church," he added. There was a short pause, and then he went on: "And then it is just as true that we have no Fundamentalists in the Lutheran Church. In the technical sense, we are in between. Yes, we have a great mass of pastors who are betwixt and between. However, we are absolutely loyal to the Bible. But we don't go to either extremes. In the preaching in the Lutheran Church you won't find much variation. You will hear declared from our pulpits the old Gospel which was delivered to the saints."

In opening, Dr. Freas said that the Lutheran Church occupied a midway position between "the great and ancient Roman Catholic Church and the Reformed Churches."

"The Lutheran Church took the ground at its start that anything which was not forbidden by the Scriptures should be retained, whereas the other Reformed Churches took the ground that everything should be eliminated which was not commanded by the Bible," said Dr. Freas. "The Lutheran Church made all its doctrine centre about Christ. The Reformed Churches emphasized the sovereignty of God. The Lutheran Church emphasized the atonement of Jesus Christ.

"The Lutheran Church represents 70,000,000 souls, which is aboue one-half of the Protestants in the world. In the United States there are 3,000,000 Lutherans. If the Lutheran Church had been able to maintain its ranks, there would be about 30,000,000 in the United States, for that many come from Lutheran stock.

"I know congregations of other denominations in the city in which three-fourths of the members according to heritage should be Lutherans.

"I am convinced that the Lutheran Church has the wisest view of the Lord's Supper. The Roman Catholic Church believes that when the priest consecrates the bread and wine in the mass it becomes the real body and blood of Christ. The majority of the Reformed Churches hold that the Lord's Supper is simply a memorial. The Lutheran Church teaches that while our bodies receive the bread and wine through faith our spirits receive the body and blood of Jesus Christ."

POTTER ASKS MISSIONS TO LIBERALIZE SOUTH

Before an audience which filled the West Side Unitarian Church the Rev. Charles Francis Potter, religious expert for the defense in the Scopes case, last night sounded the call for a missionary campaign to introduce liberal religion to the South. After paying a brief tribute to William Jennings Bryan, whom he described as "a great-souled paladin of a bygone age, a Don Quixote riding the ancient raw boned Rosinante of Fundamentalist theology," he declared that liberal religion had failed of its duty in not instructing the people of the South that evolution and immorality were not synonymous.

In response to a question from the floor Dr. Potter declared that plans were being made for the "Evolution Society of America," which should include modernist leaders, prominent scientists, and possibly newspapers, for the purpose of spreading the knowledge of evolution and of its reconciliation with religion. "Why not send into the Tennessee mountains, into Kentucky and all through the backward parts of the South a new variety of colporteau, with books on evolution in his pack?" he asked. "Give him a Ford and equip him with a moving picture projector to show the various films on evolution now appearing on Broadway. These colporteurs should be Christian gentlemen with understanding hearts and an ability to give spiritual interpretation of evolution. A new religion is a-making and calls for the best minds of the age. The pathos of this thing is that these men are afraid of education for fear that it will take their religion away from them. What an indictment of the churches!"

He discussed the personalities in the trial, paying high tribute to George Rappleyea, the geologist who instigated the matter, and to Clarence Darrow. "I think that Darrow is the closest approach of any living man to Abraham Lincoln," he said. "He is like him physically and in his agnosticism. I do not think that any one who closely studies Lincoln can doubt that he was an agnostic. They are alike in their soil-smacking philosophy of love and service."

He also paid a tribute to Howard Byrd, who was ousted from his church for his liberal attitude toward the case, and took up a collection which realized $291 to be used for Byrd's education in order that he may continue as a liberal minister.

CARDINAL HAYES RETURNS.

He Attended the Funeral of Cardinal Begin at Quebec.

Cardinal Hayes arrived home late last evening from Quebec where on Saturday he was one of the officiating prelates at the funeral of Louis Nazaire Cardinal Begin, archbishop of Quebec and primate of Canada.

Cardinal Hayes was accompanied by Monsignor Stephen J. Donahue, his private secretary. They were met at the Grand Central Station by the Rev. J. Francis McIntyre, assistant chancellor of the archdiocese.

Cardinal Hayes is due to leave town again early this morning.

VICAR IS GLAD FLEET WENT TO AUSTRALIA

Dr. Giles of Salop, England, Says It Is an Evidence of Friendship and Good-Will.

The action of the Navy Department in sending the American fleet to Australia was praised by the Rev. Dr. R. Abney Giles, vicar of Sheriffhales, Salop, England, in a sermon yesterday morning in Trinity Church. Dr. Giles spoke as a representative of the World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches.

"I think that the visit of the American fleet to one of the outposts of the British Empire is of deep significance," Dr. Giles said. "I heartily concur with the writer of an editorial in one of your papers, yesterday, in his appreciation of the bonds of friendship and good-will which the American nation recognizes as existing between the two great countries."

Explaining the objects of the World Alliance, Dr. Giles said that it is in no sense a pacifist organization, but that it has a message to the world, "that there are methods for settling international disputes and world unrest other than with battalions of infantry and legions of cavalry and colossal artillery." "The real method is the Christian method," he added. "There are twenty-eight nations represented in the World Alliance for International Friendship, which I am here to represent. That alliance has a very powerful committee here in New York and we have a powerful committee in London.

"The whole object is to teach to the economic world and to the financial world the brotherhood of man to man. We distinctly ally ourselves with the League of Nations, although we are in no way officially connected with it."

Dr. Giles credited the League with accomplishing much good in Austria, in helping to stamp out typhus and typhoid, in helping Russian refugees and in curtailing the opium trade. At the close of his sermon, Dr. Giles asked any of the congregation who felt so disposed to send him a contribution toward the expenses incurred in repairing his church, which, he said, had been remodeled four times. It dates back to 1316. He said the repairs had cost £4,000, of which £1,200 remained to be paid. Due to the heavy taxation and unemployment in England, he said his own people were unable to meet this, and that he would be happy if he could take home that amount. He explained that he was making this appeal without the knowledge of his church officials, and asked that all contributions be sent to the University Club, where he will have headquarters until he sails on Aug. 26.

WANTS MOCK TRIAL OF EVOLUTION HERE

Dr. Straton Says Plan Would Give Foes of Theory the Latitude Denied Them at Dayton.

The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton told his congregation last night in Calvary Baptist Church the things he had planned to tell on the witness stand at the Scopes trial in Tennessee. He urged that a forum or mock trial of evolution be held in this city so that the foes of the theory might have the latitude the pastor felt they failed to get at the trial.

In the course of his sermon Dr. Straton assailed Harvard University and the University of Chicago as "infidel schools." He mentioned the name of Professor Mather of Harvard and that of Professor Newman of Chicago in discussing the universities.

"I wish now," he said, "to point to the fact that the schools from which these professors come are hotbeds of infidelity and unbelief. The University of Chicago, for example, from which Professor Newman comes, is notorious in this respect. When I was in that institution myself as a student, and later during my pastorate in Chicago, I knew case after case where students in the Divinity School had given up their training and left the ministry because of the wreck of their faith by what they were taught in that institution.

"Professor Mather, who was posed as such a religious leader and who is a teacher of science at Harvard, is doubtlesa one of the causes that have produced the unbelief in that student body. I have visited Harvard and addressed the students there several times in recent years, and the amount of radicalism and religious unbelief that I found in the institution was amazing."

Dr. Straton said he regarded evolution as "positively anti-Christian." He cited passages from the works of "orthodox scientists" to offset the conclusions of other scientists and said that the data on evolution based on the strata of rock was valueless, since "the whole scheme of stratification of rocks, upon which the geologist and evolutionist base their tremendous conclusions, is a purely imaginary and artificial scheme."

ASKS NO AID FOR RELIGION.

Dr. Field Declares It Needs No Policeman's Club for Defense.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, L. I., July 26.—The Scopes trial at Dayton, Tenn., was reviewed this morning by the Rev. Dr. Elliot Field in his sermon in the Springfield Presbyterian Church. He saw in certain phases of the trial "a comedy of errors."

"Christians throughout the United States and the world," he said, "are hanging their heads in shame that such a thing could happen. Religion has become a momentary target for the cartoonists and has slipped over to the funny page. The tremendous responsibility for this must be laid at the door of those who have so mistakenly tried to bolster up a mediaeval creed by legislative enactments. Religion should always and everywhere be given a free hand, unhampered by restraint and free from attack, but it does not need political favors. The Bible does not need the policeman's club to defend it.

"Clarence Darrow is a religious agnostic. It is very galling to have the free spirit of the religious majority of the country represented by a man whose confessed personal beliefs are almost a cipher. It is a sad paradox that the cause of religious liberty and of scientific freedom should be placed in the hands of a man whose main outlook upon the tremendous questions affecting the reconcilement of faith and doubt is that of 'I don't know.'"

SEES FAITH TAKEN LIGHTLY.

Rev. I. W. Gernert Says Churchgoers Fail to Bring Purses.

Many parents treat religion so lightly that they forget to bring with them to church not only their attention and their children but even their pocketbooks, the Rev. Irwin W. Gernert of Nashville, Tenn., said yesterday morning in a sermon at the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Advent, Broadway and Ninety-third Street.

He rebuked Christians who "put on an air of religion" on the Sabbath and forget all about their beliefs during the six other days of the week. "Some persons even go so far as to figure out their business accounts with pencil and paper during services," he said.

BERGER NOT AFTER LA FOLLETTE'S POST

IS AGAINST "YOUNG BOBBIE"

No Room Here for Crown Princes, He Adds—On His Way to Labor Convention in France.

Congressman Victor Berger of Milwaukee announced yesterday that he would not be a candidate "next Autumn at any rate" for the United States Senate to succeed the late Robert M. La Follette. In an interview at the Hotel Alamac, Broadway and Seventy-first Street, he also declared that the Socialist Party of Wisconsin, of which he is one of the leading spokesmen, would not fuse with the La Follette, or Progressive, Republicans to elect Robert M. La Follette Jr. to the Senate.

"About Young Bobbie—we always speak of him as Bobbie in Wisconsin—well, I don't know," mused Mr. Berger. You see he is about 30 years old. I believe young Bobbie ought to take time to earn his spurs.

"Furthermore, this is not an inherited monarchy, especially in Wisconsin. Why should we have to take a crown prince? Also, young Bobbie's chances are against him in the matter of inheriting genius. You can't show me a single instance where sons have inherited the genius of great sires. However, I am willing to grant it, if he will prove it. Now regarding my own candidacy—I am not going to run—next Autumn at any rate.

"There has been a lot of talk by the La Follette Republicans of running Mrs. La Follette. I also believe that that is a foolish trend in our country. I grant that women have brains and in many cases are just as capable as men in the legislative and executive branches of our Government. But if you elect them, please elect them not because they were the wives of Congressmen, but on their own merit."

Mr. Berger declared that the Socialists of Wisconsin had practically agreed a week ago that they would nominate John McClellan Work, former member of the Executive Committee of the National Socialist Party, and an editorial writer on The Milwaukee Leader, as their Senatorial candidate.

Mr. Berger is in New York en route to Marseilles to attend the International Socialist and Labor Convention from Aug. 22 to 29. He sails Thursday morning on the steamship Thuringia.

About the convention the Congressman said: "I believe that the main thing that will come up will be the reconstruction of Europe. England is facing a tremendous calamity. You know there are too many people out of work. The storm cloud hovers over German industry, which in this case means Germany. You will have not only the strike threatening England, but a great many more until things return to normal."

Mr. Berger said he did not believe the Dawes plan ever would work, because it was not possible "to keep 65,000,000 white men at work for foreign exploitation," particularly when those men were working for 65 cents a day.

"You can keep it up for a short while," said Mr. Berger, "but you can't keep it up when they are no longer hungry. It is an attempt to do the impossible."

Three and a half years ago Fireman Albert E. Guiness, President of the Uniformed Firemen's Association, went to city authorities with the proposition that firemen's wages should be increased from $1,400 to $2,500 a year. This met with Mayor Hylan's open opposition in a Board of Estimate hearing in October, 1922. The Mayor told Guinuess that he was "through running the Fire Department."

Following Guinness's agitation he was transferred from a post in Manhattan to City Island. Guinness lived, and still lives at 950 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn. The transfer meant a daily thirty-four-mile ride for Guinness to and from his post.

Yesterday Guinness reported for duty to Engine Company 235, at 203 Monroe Street, Brooklyn, quite near his home. The Fire Department made no announcement of the shift, and Guinness himself had nothing to say about it.

Others suggested that the transfer, coming as a favor to the President of the Uniformed Firemen's Association, might be regarded as an effort on the part of City Hall to curry the good-will of the Fire Department for the coming Mayoralty campaign.

WIVES OF 2 BROTHERS ELOPE WITH BROTHERS

COLUSA, Cal., July 26 (AP).—A double love triangle in which two young women married to brothers deserted their husbands to elope with two other brothers, was brought to light here last night with the arrest of Cecil and Homer Waymire, 30 and 20, respectively, and Mrs. Bessie and Mrs. Oli McClelland, 22 and 21, respectively, all of Barstow.

The women say their husbands were cruel and neglectful, and give this for the reason for the elopement.

TO EXTEND BLAUVELT CAMP.

Week-End Training Planned by Army for Reserve Officers.

The reserve officers' contact camp at Blauvelt, three miles southwest of Nyack, has proved so successful that the authorities of the Second Corps Area are planning to increase its scope and place it on a permanent basis, according to a statement by Colonel Clement A. Trott yesterday at Governors Island.

The camp is intended to give the personnel of the organized reserve an opportunity to spend their week-ends in a military atmosphere, with regular army officers as instructors on any military subject which interests them. Colonel Trott said that he expected at least 500 reserve officers would take advantage of this opportunity this Summer.

A staff of regular army officers under the command of Colonel Peter E. Traub, Chief of Staff of the Seventy-seventh Division, is in attendance at the camp to instruct the reserve officers. Although lacking funds, the army is endeavoring to increase the accommodations at the camp.

WILLIE AND 'PRINCE' BACK FROM HOSPITAL

BOY HAS ONLY ONE REGRET

Heard Pet Called a Mongrel—"He's a White Poodle," He Insists—"Yes, He's White," Says Father.

Willie Rabinowitz, the nine-year-old boy whose dog followed him from his home at 2 Second Place, Brooklyn, to the Long Island College Hospital at Amity and Henry Streets on Saturday and refused to be kept out of the institution while the boy was undergoing an operation for the removal of his tonsils, was brought back home yesterday in an ambulance. While Willie is not yet able to be about the house his complete recovery is only a matter of a few days.

With Willie in the conveyance was the faithful animal whose persistence won for him a place by the bedside of the little patient. "Prince," as he is informally referred to by Willie and his friends but whose formal title is "Prince of Wales," sat in Willie's lap during the short ride home from the hospital. He wagged his tail and licked Willie's hand and in general acted as if he was the tonic that brought about his young master's speedy recovery.

When Willie arrived home he was placed in bed and "Prince" assumed his position at the side of the bed just as he had done in the hospital. Willie's small friends in the neighborhood came in to congratulate him, and his brother, Jacob, 2 years old, laughed and chuckled with joy at seeing him back again. But while the friends and brother came and went from the sick room "Prince" remained at his post continually. The others might be friends, but Willie was his master.

The boy told his father, Jacob Rabinowitz, who conducts a stationery store at 600 Henry Street, that he enjoyed his visit to the hospital and that everybody was very kind to him, but that he was more pleased with the appearance of "Prince" than he could be at anything that he could think of. There was only one regret that he had concerning the great adventure of himself and "Prince," and that was when some one in the hospital referred to "Prince" as a mongrel. Willie attends Public School 123, across the street from his home.

"My Prince ain't no mongrel, is he, papa?" he asked of his father after he reached home.

"He is a real white French poodle, ain't he?" persisted Willie.

"Well, he is white all right," answered the father with a glance toward the animal which showed that he shared to a great extent his son's feeling toward the "Prince of Wales."

OPPOSES OUR ENTRY INTO WORLD COURT

Tinkham Writes Borah That American Adherence Means Joining League of Nations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Representative George H. Tinkham of Massachusetts in a letter to Senator Borah, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, opposes America's entry into the World Court, which he attacks as "a creature of the League of Nations," declaring "it is not a free and independent court."

In his letter, made public today, Mr. Tinkham, who has been a vigorous opponent of prohibition and the Volstead act, says the nation is in danger of organized minorities. He also takes a fling at what he terms "internationalism." At the outset he said:

"An audacious and last desperate attempt is being made by the internationalists and occult foreign influence to force the United States into the League of Nations by way of the League Court. Those who are frankly promoting this attempt are confessed and open advocates of the entry of the United States into the League of Nations, and are being assisted by those who are furtively in favor of this policy or those who are not familiar with the implications of the proposed entry into the League Court.

"The peril of our Republic today is the flagrant coercion of affectible and timorous public servants by highly organized and heavily financed raucous minorities. These minorities have attacked successfully our liberty and our Constitution, are trampling under foot the cardinal American doctrine of separation of Church and State, would abolish patriotism and attempt to supersede all principles and policies which have been distinctly American.

"Can nothing effective be done so that a decision whether we are to continue an independent nation or are to become a part of an international State be made by the American people themselves? Should not the people decide whether we are to remain American or not?"

Mr. Tinkham goes on to argue that the Court is a creature of the League of Nations.

"The United States can not join such a court and not become entangled in the political questions of Europe and surrender its pre-existent rights as an independent nation under international law.

"It is proposed that our representatives shall sit with the League of Nations temporarily to elect Judges. This is a partial entry into the League of Nations and must by the irresistible logic of circumstance lead to final and permanent membership by the United States."

R. H. BURNSIDE'S PLAYS.

"Merry and Bright," Musical Comedy, Among His Productions.

Two plays and a musical comedy are announced by R. H. Burnside for production next season. The first will be "Merry and Bright," a musical comedy by Julian Gordon with music by Raymond Hubbell. The others include a play entitled "Burnt Ashes," by Charles H. E. Brookfield, which Mr. Burnside will present in association with A. H. Canby, and "Sea Robber," a play adapted from the German of Ludwig Fulda.

PLANS WAY TO SELL STOLEN SOVIET ART

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 26.—The Soviet endeavor to sell Russian art treasures abroad has been handicapped hitherto by the fact that the knowledge had been allowed to leak out that the treasures offered for sale had been—to put it politely—"requisitioned" by the Soviet authorities.

This was too much for "squeamish" would-be purchasers in Occidental Europe, according to a dispatch from Riga, whereupon the Russian art treasure business became very bad. In order to cause gold from this source again to flow into Soviet coffers a group of Russian and foreign antique dealers—according to the same source—has addressed to M. Krassin, Soviet Commissar for Foreign Trade, "a concrete proposal" naively offering to help start a new sale of the above-mentioned treasures by concealing the fact that they had been—to put it brutally—stolen.

This group, it is stated, complained to M. Krassin about the report in The London Times last year to the effect that the director of the famous Hermitage Gallery in Leningrad has set aside 4,000 articles in the museum for sale at "a great European auction." This fact should never have been allowed to leak out, says the group in making its "concrete proposal." It now informs M. Krassin that since "it helped the foes of the Bolsheviki abroad to create a hostile atmosphere to the sale" it is proposed to hold two big auctions, one in Paris and another in London.

The most important step, M. Krassin is informed, is to "acquire a clean commercial reputation abroad and thus wean European dealers from their prejudice against the Russian treasures offered for sale." To accomplish this a clear statement is asked from the Soviet Government that the Russian treasures which have remained unnationalized in the hands of private Russian citizens will not be seized.

A company will then "honestly purchase" the works of art and rare antiques in the private Russian market. In each case the private seller is to sign a photograph of the article sold, testifying that he has sold it voluntarily.

As soon as foreign confidence is thus re-established, M. Krassin is told, "the company can also begin cautiously to work directly for the Russian Government by selling the surplus stocks of the Heritmage Museum and the other museums, as well as what remains of the enormous quantities of artistic and antique rarities and the articles of luxury accumulated by the Russian Government."

It is further stated that the best Russian treasures will fetch the best prices in Europe, whereas the second best—the gilded and gaudy articles of luxury—will go strong in Australia and South America, where persons long on wealth and short on artistic taste will snap up such objects, to the great profit of the Bolshevist Government and its middlemen.

APPLAUD VAN HOOGSTRATEN

An audience, anxious to say a temporary farewell to William van Hoogstraten, who concluded his third week last evening, blocked to the Stadium and manifested their appreciation by recalls and an ovation after the Brahms Symphony. It was Mr. van Hoogstraten's last appearance till Aug. 17.

Without counting lesser works, Mr. van Hoogstraten has conducted fifteen symphonies, including Beethoven's Ninth, twice; several first times at the Stadium, including Schilling's "Victory Ball," and Honegger's "Pacific 231," and has given pleasure to thousands each evening.

His program comprised works by Beethoven, Wagner, Mozart and Brahms' Fourth Symphony, and in this company Mr. van Hoogstraten had placed Honegger's "Pacific 231." As chance would have it, just as he began its preliminary measures four fire engines roared past the Stadium, whistles blowing and bells clanging. It gave an air of realism to the scene that would have done a stage manager great credit. The audience was quick to seize the connection and recalled Mr. van Hoogstraten several times at its conclusion.

Tonight Nikolai Sokoloff, conductor of the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, will make his first appearance as the leader of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

Crashing Storm Breaks During Wagner Festival Performance.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BAIREUTH, July 26.—Crashing thunderstorms, which could not have been better timed even by expert stage management here, broke above the theatre in the first scene of "Die Walküre" at the fourth festival performance today, dying away properly before the stirring rendition of "Lenzli ed Lauritz" by Melchoir, the new Metropolitan tenor.

Melchoir and Friedrich Schorr, the Wotan, carried the performance through a series of magnificent climaxes, concluding the striking magic fire scene with a ten minutes' enthusiastic ovation from the audience after the opera.

Ring enthusiasm is at its height, with the two longest operas yet to come.

Civic Opera League to Try Voices.

The Popular Civic Opera League which is planning to give a series of grand opera performances in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, during September, will hold voice trials Thursday between 11 and 1. Application should be made to John Bellucci, Suite 702, Calvert Building, 1,452 Broadway. The Popular Civic Opera League plans to give ten operas and about twenty-five performances.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Caesar and Cleopatra," instead of ending its New York engagement last Saturday night, will remain another week.

The musical version of "The Fortune Hunter" will be known as "The City Chap." After a two weeks' run in Philadelphia the production opens in New York late in September. Richard (Skeets) Gallagher is featured in the cast.

"It All Depends," which John Cromwell and William A. Brady Jr. are producing, opens in Asbury Park tonight.

Roberta Arnold will be featured in "Playthings," a comedy by Frederic and Fanny Hatton which A. L. Jones and Morris Green, in association with Thomas Wilkes, will produce in Los Angeles next month.

The English cast of "A Night Out" arrives on the Andania today. The company will open in Boston on Sept. 7 before coming to New York. The cast is headed by Toots Pounds, Norman Griffin and Andy Tombs.

Temporary offices of the Anderson-Milton School of the Theatre will be at 129 East Fifty-eighth Street.

"Mercenary Mary," after ending its New York engagement at the Longacre on Aug. 8, will reopen in Chicago on Aug. 16.

Hassard Short will stage and produce Marilyn Miller's new musical comedy, "Sunny," for Charles Dillingham, which opens in New York late in September. Rehearsals start on Aug. 3.

Felix Edwardes will come to America to stage the new Bolton-Thompson-Gershwin musical comedy for Aarons & Freedley.

A WOMAN'S FAITH, from the novel, "Miracle," by Clarence Budington Kelland, with Alma Rubens, Percy Marmont, Zasu Pitts, Jean Hersholt, Hughie Mack, Andre de Beranger, Cesare Gravina and others, directed by Edward Laemmle; The "China Rose" Girls, with Betty Compton and Charles Elbey; Rosalinda Rudko in "Ave Maria." At the Colony Theatre.

In a misguided moment they turned a frenzied sub-title writer loose on "A Woman's Faith" and he or she has played havoc with the first section of the photoplay. It must have been a persuasive person, for even the director has fallen under the spell. Now if there is any justification at all for the high salaries said to be paid directors it lies in their being able to go off into a corner and think up this and that for their actors to do by way of telling what the story is all about. Mr. Laemmle has not done as much of that kind of thinking in this picture as one might desire.

What we get most of the time in the beginning is a series of long titles telling what is going on inside the brains of the leading characters. When that is done, the actors come on and more or less illustrate them with gestures and attitudes. The task is frequently too much for them. Their characterizations emerge on the screen with all the dramatic fire associated with the human figures that appear in a "scenic" to supply something within the spectator's vision which moves.

It is not until the picture is well started on its second half that the proceedings take on weight enough of their own to make the title writer's ministrations less ubiquitous. At that point the picture takes on an emotional appeal which endures to the end. Would it had come sooner, for this is the kind of material one would like to see exploited in the movies more often than it is and there is room for regret every time it is attempted and not handled as well as it might be. In "A Woman's Faith" you find only a fair picture when you might have found an unusually good one.

The story tells of a man disillusioned and made a cynic by an unfortunate love affair. He retreats to the Canadian wilds. There he meets a girl who is wrongfully charged with having killed her brother. The man gradually falls in love with her. He is blinded in a fight to protect her. She induces him to go to the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, where her prayers effect the miracle of restoring his sight and his regeneration is complete.

The theme is worth while. Unfortunately, however, the telling of it here is far from subtle. The overworked title writer has a clumsy hand and the director has seized only on obvious events to picture. Perhaps the latter feared to be too subtle, feeling his audience would not follow him if he were. That is a fear which has a certain legitimacy in the movies, but one questions whether there are not more opportunities lost in production through underestimating the intelligence of the audience than there are mistakes made through overestimating it. The worth-while director is the one who is ingenious and imaginative enough to find the piece of action that will convey the thought to even the more unresponsive among the spectators. In this picture, for instance, when the peasant girl weeps to her lover, "He will make you hate me," it conveys more vividly the hero's state of mind than tons of titles could.

The acting of Alma Rubens and Percy Marmont is the saving grace. Mr. Marmont is handicapped in his earlier scenes by the crude and forced action that is demanded. At first he has little to do but stand around and look disagreeable, the titles telling you why he is doing so. Later as the piece takes up its movement this necessity disappears. Both he and Miss Rubens do simple and effective work and the concluding moments have a strong appeal. The supporting cast is excellent and there are some charming scenic backgrounds in the old Canadian village. The miracle sequence at St. Anne's is also atmospheric and effective.

Saying It With a Chuckle.

EVE'S LOVER, from the story by Mrs. W. K. Clifford, with Irene Rich, Bert Lytell, Clara Bow, Willard Louis and others, directed by Roy Del Ruth; 'cello solos by Naoum Dinger; duet and solo numbers by Mlle. De Lara, soprano, and Frank Johnston, baritone. At the Piccadilly.

Add one more to the exhibits which prove that if a photoplay is put on well the audience will be content not to worry overmuch about what is in it. "Eve's Lover" hasn't very much in it. But it has a cast and a director. The director told the cast lots of things to do to make life more interesting for each other and they did them. They did them well. Hence a very entertaining, and therefore successful, photoplay.

It tells us that which we have been told before. There is probably not one new idea in the story itself. But they make you forget that. It is all about the business woman—this one runs a steel mill—whose property is wanted very badly by a business rival. He persuades an impecunious Baron who has passed a bad check on him to court the woman, hoping to get the mill through him. She falls in love with the Baron. He falls in love with her. Later she learns all about his nefarious scheme. She leaves him. Then her business is threatened with ruin and he proves to be a hero and saves it, her and them. Curtain!—that is to say, fade-out!

You might really just as well tell that to the marines as to an audience, mightn't you?—that is, provided you tried to tell it seriously. The producers apparently realized that as well as any one else, so they decided they would not try to tell it seriously. They called in Bert Lytell and Clara Bow and Willard Louis, actors and an actress who can dance the light fantastic with stories, as it were, and put the thing largely into their hands.

They also got Irene Rich for their heroine. That is because Miss Rich is very happy in rôles that have a touch of melancholy to them, melancholy touched with dignity. Miss Rich, as the lady mill owner, has to be dignified while she is owning her mill, and later she has to be melancholy when she is owning her Baron. The only touches of seriousness the play has are provided through her, and the producers have shown considerable discretion in making their lapses from lightness to seriousness.

Well, with this excellent quartet of actors they get things started and let them roll gayly along. They show they are clever producers and entirely worthy our respect and regard by doing natural things in an unusual way. You generally know about what is going to happen, which makes you comfortable these warm days, but you know you do not know exactly how it is going to happen, which keeps you interested. Roy Del Ruth, the director, evidently has a fresh vein of humor of his own and he keeps his people darting down delightful little side paths. This is all as it should be.

The actors play well into each other's hands and they play well individually. Willard Louis, of "Babbit" fame, shows that knack of poking fun at the heavy business man which is individual with him. Bert Lytell adds more to his recent reputation as a deft comedian. Clara Bow is pretty and vivacious and a little more. Irene Rich supplies capitally a tone which is difficult for an actress to catch and which is indispensable as a background for the piece. Nor must we forget one of those little clerk bits supplied by Arthur Hoyt.

Admiration for what they have done with "Eve's Lover" is multiplied tenfold by the thought of what would have been the result if they had taken it seriously. There are lots of producers who would have. In fact, there are lots who have, for it has all been done before in other forms. We suspect that after this they will have to give up doing it for a while at least.

Other Films.

Feature films at other Broadway houses this week include "The Half-Way Girl" at the Strand; "Not So Long Ago" at the Rivoli; "Never the Twain Shall Meet" at the Capitol; "The Ranger of the Big Pines" at the Rialto; "The Fighting Cub" at the Broadway; "Night Life of New York" at the Cameo; and "Don Q, Son of Zorro" at the Globe.

RADIO FANS HONOR 'ROXY' IN FAREWELL

Leader of Capitol "Gang" Thanks All and Says It Is Only Au Revoir.

S. L. Rothafel, nationally known as "Roxy," said adieu to radio fans last night through Station WEAF from the Capitol Theatre studio. Before he did so he received a huge birthday card signed by six New England Governors, sick and disabled veterans and crippled children. The birthday card was presented by Edward Ligon, 13 years old, a cripple, who brought the card from Boston.

Major Edward Bowes, Vice President of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures Corporation and managing director of the Capitol, introduced Mr. Rothafel shortly after 8 o'clock. "Roxy" stepped before the microphone and said: "I am eternally grateful to all my friends in New England as well as elsewhere. I am not going to say good-bye, but only au revoir. I have worked three years here—seven days a week. And now I am tired. I want to take a rest.

"I want to thank all those who have assisted me—the management of the Capitol Theatre, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and the entire personnel who so wonderfully assisted me—all those I want to thank. I will always cherish their cooperation.

"After my return from Europe I will carry on in my new theatre, which will be named after me, when it is completed in October, 1926. From there I hope to keep my old friends and make new ones. To all those on the radio tonight, au revoir and God bless you.

"I'm turning over to you my gang," he continued, as he turned to Major Bowes. "It is a great responsibility and a beautiful obligation. You will be affected by their loyalty many times, the same as I have been."

After "Roxy's" au revoir, Major Bowes introduced Edward Ligon, who said that all the signers of the birthday card wanted to show their thanks to "Roxy," especially the crippled children who had been cheered by his programs. At the close of the boy's speech, Major Bowes broadcast: "And now with a sob in our hearts we will endeavor to continue the program."

No successor to Mr. Rothafel will be appointed, it was announced at the Capitol Theatre. Major Bowes will assume direction of the large theatre, including [illegible] and special attraction programs, [illegible] the radio activities.

ARYAN PLAYS FOR VIENNA.

German Nationalists Plan Productions With Aryan Actors.

VIENNA, July 26 (AP).—German Nationalist circles in Vienna have established a theatrical organization for the production of purely Aryan plays with Aryan actors, for exclusively Aryan audiences, composed of the members of the organization and their families. The productions are expected to begin in the Fall.

The Jewish Theatre of New York, directed by Jacob Adler, after three nights' performance here, has stopped further productions in Vienna. Owing to the hot weather and small audiences the productions were a financial failure.

Emerson Whithorne Going to Naples

Emerson Whithorne, American composer, President of the American section of the International Society for Contemporary Music, is sailing for Naples on the Conte Verdi Aug. 1 to attend the international festival to be held in Venice Sept. 3-9.

Mr. Whithorne's symphonic poem, "In the Court of Pomegranates," was played by the Colonne Orchestra in Paris at the Salle Gaveau on June 20 with marked success. A Chinese song of his with orchestral accompaniment entitled "The Feast" was also sung on this occasion by Eugenia Van de Veer, soprano, with Lazare Saminsky conducting. Other songs of this composer have been sung at the Paris Revue Musicale concerts at the University of Lyons and at the Faculty of Arts recitals in London this Summer.

PRODUCTION LEVEL HIGHER THAN IN 1924

AUTOMOBILE TOTALS DROP

Wholesalers' Report Best June in Five Years—Reserve Banks Carry Discounts to Year's High Level.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 26. — The summary of general business conditions for June and early July issued today by the Federal Reserve Board shows a further small seasonal decline in industrial production, but no serious recession, and a production level considerably above the comparable period a year ago. Factory employment declined in June while freight shipments and the volume of wholesale trade increased, and wholesale prices, after declining for two months, advanced in June.

Production in basic industries, as indicated by the Federal Reserve Board's index, declined about 1 per cent. in June to the lowest level since the Autumn of 1924, but was 17 per cent. above the low point of last Summer. Output of pig iron, steel ingots, lumber, news print and petroleum and mill consumption of cotton declined in June, while production of bituminous coal, sole leather and wheat flour increased. The number of automobiles manufactured during June was slightly less than in May.

Factory employment declined 1 per cent. and factory pay rolls over 2 per cent. between May 15 and June 15, reflecting substantial declines in the automobile, boot and shoe, textile and iron and steel industries. Building contracts awarded during June were larger in value than during May and almost equaled the peak figure for April. In square feet of floor space the June awards were a little smaller than those for May. Residential contracts for June were the smallest for any month since February, but greatly exceeded those of a year ago.

Crops Show Improvement.

The Department of Agriculture estimate of the condition of all crops combined on July 1 showed some improvement over the month before, the board says. The corn crop forecast places it at approximately 550,000,000 bushels above last year. The July 15 cotton crop estimate was 13,588,000 bales, compared with a forecast of 14,339,000 bales on June 25.

Freight car loadings were larger during June than during May as is usual at that season, and also considerably exceeded the figures for June, 1924, the low point of last year. Sales at department stores during June were seasonally smaller than in May, but totaled 5 per cent more than last year. It should be borne in mind, however, that in June of this year there were four Sundays as compared with five in the preceding month as well as in June, 1924. Mail order sales were six per cent larger than in May and exceeded the amount for June, 1924.

Sales of wholesale firms were five per cent greater than in May and larger than in any June in the last five years. Department store stocks were reduced further in June but were slightly larger than a year ago. Wholesale stocks of groceries, shoes and hardware were smaller at the end of June than a month earlier, but those of dry goods and drugs were larger. Compared with a year ago, stocks of groceries, and drugs were larger in value, while stocks of dry goods, shoes and hardware were smaller.

Wholesale commodity prices advanced one-quarter of 1 per cent. in June, according to the index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, following declines in April and May. The largest increase for any commodity group was for the miscellaneous groups, which include crude rubber; prices of farm products, foods and fuel, and lighting also advanced, while prices of building materials declined considerably. In the first half of July quotations on flour, beef, hogs, wool, copper, petroleum, hides and rubber increased, while prices of sugar, bituminous coal and hardwood lumber declined.

More Loans on Securities.

At member banks in leading cities the volume of loans on securities continued to increase after the middle of June, and during the first half of July was at a higher level than at any previous time. Demand for bank credit for commercial purposes was relatively inactive and the volume of commercial loans at reporting member banks remained near the low level for this year, although considerably above the amount for the corresponding period in 1924.

At the reserve banks the seasonal demand for credit and currency was reflected in increased borrowing by member banks, which carried discounts at the beginning of July to the highest level in more than a year, and notwithstanding the subsequent decline the total on July 22 was still at a relatively high level. Total earning assets on that date showed little change as compared with the figures for four weeks earlier.

Firmness in the money market at the close of the fiscal year was followed by an easing of money after the first week of July. In the latter part of the month there was again evidence of firmer money conditions. These changes were reflected chiefly in the movement of rates for call money, quoted rates on prime commercial paper and on bankers' acceptances remaining throughout the period at 3¾ to 4 per cent. and 3½ per cent.

POLICEWOMAN KILLS HERSELF; WAS MOODY

Found in Bed With Bullet Hole in Temple—Had Heart Trouble for Eight Months.

With a bullet hole in her right temple Mrs. Mary Kane, 45 years old, a policewoman attached to the East 104th Street Station, was found dead in bed yesterday morning on the sixth floor of 445 East 166th Street, Bronx, in the home of her son-in-law, Detective Patrick Gallagher of the Eighth Detective Squad, with headquarters at the East Twenty-second Street Station.

According to police of the Morrisania Station, Mrs. Kane took her own life. She had been in poor health for the past eight months.

Detective Gallagher and his wife were aroused shortly after 7 o'clock yesterday morning by Mrs. Florence Veroro, who occupies the apartment beneath the Gallaghers. She said that blood was seeping through the ceiling of one of her rooms.

Gallagher hurried to his mother-in-law's room and found her lifeless body with a revolver clasped in her hand.

Mrs. Kane became ill with heart trouble about eight months ago and spent four months in St. Luke's Hospital, police said. During the past four months she had been attended daily by Dr. Louis D. Riggio of 222 East 116th Street. She was able to return to work but was moody on account of her continued ill health, Detective Gallagher said.

DRIVE NEXT WEEK TO SELL COINS HERE

Stone Mountain Committee Aims to Dispose of 1,000,000 in Northern States.

The Stone Mountain Memorial Coin Distribution Committee announced yesterday that a campaign to sell 1,000,000 of the memorial coins recently minted by the Government would be launched in the Northern States beginning next Sunday. The proceeds will be devoted to furthering the Stone Mountain Memorial in Georgia, designed to pay tribute to the valor of Confederate soldiers.

Robert Adamson, Chairman of the local committee, said that Governor Smith had offered his help. He has accepted appointment to the Committee for the Second Federal Reserve District.

"On Sunday next," said a statement, "many of the churches will give utterance to an appeal in behalf of this monument, and running through the entire week some particular feature will be publicly presented intended to centre the public thought upon the monument and with a view to securing support for the memorial half dollar which was minted by unanimous vote of Congress, and which is now being placed in the hands of all the people.

"Five million coins have been minted and next week prominent banks, trust companies and department stores will call attention to the coins with the hope that at least 1,000,000 coins may be sold in the North at a premium of 50 cents each. This coin is to be sold for $1 each because of its restricted mintage and its value will appreciate with the years. The Plymouth Tercentenary coin issued in 1920 is quoted today at $1.50. This is merely an example of how the souvenir coins appreciate as the years run."

The New York City Committee announced that the National Committee had decided that all persons who subscribed $10,000 to the movement would be designated as founders, and that those who gave $5,000 should be known as patrons.

"The names of founders and patrons, it was decided by the National Committee," said the statement, "should be carved into the face of the mountain just below the great sculpture of Lee and his Generals, there to be preserved for all time and to bear testimony through the years as to those who had liberality of thought and charity enough to stand back of the enterprise with their money and their names, so that the mountain itself—a huge block of granite 1,000 feet high—should stand through the ages as the greatest piece of testimony in the world to the unity of the American nation.

"The sponsors of the Stone Mountain Movement in the North reflect the pick of the men from the financial and business world—most of them having had forebears who fought in the Northern Army, and others having forebears who opposed them in behalf of the Southern cause. So much misinformation has been broadcast regarding the Stone Mountain enterprise that it does not seem amiss to state the truth, which the Northern people, of course, will duly appreciate."

TO SEEK STANDARD RIVER POWER RATING

A joint technical committee is now being organized to bring about national uniformity in the methods of rating the water power of rivers, according to an announcement yesterday by the American Engineering Standards Committee. At the present time a given water-power development may be rated at 10,000, 20,000 or 40,000 horsepower by different engineers, according to the point of view from which the work is done.

It was pointed out that the first figure might mean that the power is practically available all the time without provision of any storage basin, that the second might mean that this power is available for a certain percentage of the time, and the last figure might indicate that under certain conditions, as for example if a storage reservoir were provided, the most efective use of the riverflow would be achieved when this rate was reached.

At the instance of the Geological Survey the committee made an investigation, and found that many different groups were interested in bringing about national uniformity in the rating of rivers, including light and power companies, financial groups interested in power development, consulting engineers and Federal authorities, such as the Federal Power Commission, Geological Survey and Reclamation Service. This investigation was carried out by a special investigating committee under the chairmanship of Charles A. Mead, and a questionnaire was sent to all interested technical and industrial groups.

The subject was discussed at length at the world power conference in London in 1924, when it was recommended that the subject be taken up in the different countries and if possible reach an international agreement.

WOMAN FALLS TO DEATH.

Police Believed She Walked in Her Sleep—Body Found in Yard.

The body of Mrs. Theresa Jelinek, 69 years old, of 406 East Seventy-first Street, was found in the back yard of the adjoining house early yesterday morning. Police believe she fell from the roof of her own home, where she lived with her son, William, 40 years old, while walking in her sleep.

According to the son, his mother was in good health and good spirits when he saw her before she retired on Saturday night.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 26.—The disturbance that was over the Middle Atlantic States Sunday morning has remained practically stationary during the last twelve hours, a centre having developed over Eastern Virginia. The disturbance that was over Minnesota Sunday morning has advanced to Eastern Ontario. Pressure is high southeast of Bermuda, over the Canadian Northwest, on the North Pacific Coast and relatively high over the Ohio and Middle Mississippi Valleys.

During the last twenty-four hours scattered showers and thunderstorms have occurred over the southern plateau, the Plains States and the Missouri Valley, the lower lake region and the Atlantic and East Gulf States. It has become slightly cooler in New England, the western lower lake region and over the Northern Plains States and the extreme upper Mississippi Valley, while warmer weather has overspread the northern plateau and North Pacific States.

The outlook is for showers on Monday in the Middle and North Atlantic States and the lower lake region, and for showers and thunderstorms Monday and Tuesday in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States. It will be cooler on Tuesday in the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley and the interior of the Middle Atlantic States.

COUNTRY-WIDE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M., and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

SEAMAN HELD FOR HOMICIDE

Accused of fatally injuring a man during a drunken quarrel last night in the café at 170 Fifty-seventh Street, Brooklyn, Ernest Hoff, cook on the United States Army transport Chateau Thierry, docked at the Army Base, was arraigned in the Fifth Avenue Court, Brooklyn, yesterday on a charge of homicide. Magistrate McGarrigle held him without bail for examination tomorrow.

Witnesses told Assistant District Attorney John T. Eno that four men were fighting in the café and that two of them left after George Rutledge of 5,701 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, was knocked down. He got up and went to a bench, where Mrs. Annetta Priola, the proprietress, later found him dead. Dr. Dressler of the United Israel Zion Hospital said a blow on the head had caused Rutledge's death.

Public Utility Securities

SINCE the earliest days of the public utility industry we have been underwriters and distributors of conservative securities of this type.

Our clientele interested in public utility securities is, we believe, second to none, both in point of numbers and in volume of purchasing power.

This evidence of the important position which we have occupied in the development of what has come to be one of the leading industries of this country should inspire the confidence of investors in our recommendations.

Our "Investment Suggestions" will be furnished on request. Write for Circular No. 1597.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Prices for Securities and Commodities Maintain an Upward Trend—Business More Active.

Firmer prices in many directions and more active markets generally, evident during the past week, would seem to indicate that the doldrums of the Summer have passed and that markets as a whole are pointing toward the Fall. There has been no appreciable change in sentiment during the past fortnight. Fluctuations of stocks and commodities as well have been over a remarkably wide range. Nevertheless, the net result of the week's trading was to leave most of them at higher levels than prevailed at the end of the preceding week. A great deal of "backing and filling" is always to be looked for at this season. The outstanding fact, however, is that prices are firm; that there is better inquiry for goods of all sorts, and that price concessions, from the seller's standpoint, have been practically eliminated.

The most stable commodities in the markets at the present time may be enumerated as rubber, cotton, copper, hides and textiles. Peculiar conditions prevail in each of these industries. The strength in rubber, for instance, is attributed to the manner in which exports have been "doled out" from the principal plantations controlled by Great Britain. Cotton has been under the influence, during the past week, of a remarkable reversal in Government statistics. The last week's report of the Department of Agriculture placed the ultimate 1925-1926 crop at 13,588,000 bales and placed the condition at 70.4 per cent. Last year's crop, a particularly large one, will doubtless not be exceeded by the one now growing. As a matter of fact, one must go back to the tremendous crop of 1916, when more than 16,000,000 bales were produced, to equal the record of last year. Despite increased acreage there are many adverse conditions to be taken into consideration in the cotton situation, all leading to the belief that the year's outturn will hardly be as large as last year. In the meanwhile, our exports of cotton are some 2,400,000 bales ahead of last season and our domestic consumption about 500,000 bales greater.

Current fluctuations in the money market are hardly of a nature to be construed as marking any very considerable change in the situation. There were days during the week in which the money rate ran up sharply. However, in each instance the open market rate for money returned to its previous level. It was evident at the end of the week that money was a little firmer, due mainly to the recall of funds from interior institutions which have been heavy lenders in this centre. The reservoirs of credit have been overflowing of late. It is not unnatural that the surplus supply of credits should be withdrawn from the financial centres even though the demand from industrial and business sources is not yet an imperative one.

It might be said, so far as the general industrial and commercial situation is concerned, that sentiment is much more cheerful than a fortnight ago. There is as yet no disposition evidenced to abandon the policy of "hand-to-mouth" orders. Nevertheless, even these orders are somewhat larger than a week ago, and in many lines of industry there is a tendency to anticipate higher prices as the Autumn approaches. One of the best examples of this tendency is the fact that for eight consecutive weeks the index number of wholesale quotations, compiled by one of the commercial reporting agencies, has been steadily advancing.

The stock market has developed into one of the most peculiar and perplexing of recent months because of the fact that quotations for the majority of stocks have been steadily advancing in the face of industrial reports which, while cheerful, have not been such as to warrant enthusiastic demonstrations in stocks. Nevertheless, on no less than three different days during the past week the averages established new high records for all time. Some of the advance, of course, must be attributed to speculative activities; some of it, on the other hand, is no doubt prophetic of good business this Fall. Professional activities prevail to a very large extent at present on the Stock Exchange. This has been true for several months and it remains a question whether or not a "buying public" may be later induced to come into the market. That, at least, it may be stated, appears to be Wall Street's plans.

Developments of the past week in the foreign situation, from a financial standpoint, have been such as to allay apprehension as to the ability of leaders of finance in France and England to cope with situations which have developed during the past few weeks. The Bank of England, despite difficulties which have arisen incident to the re-establishment of the gold standard, is able to report a reserve of 31.36 per cent., the highest since June 21, 1916. The Bank of France during the last week made exceptionally large reductions in its circulation and "advance" account. These may be considered "straws in the wind," emphasizing betterment in the foreign financial situation. At any rate, it may be said that so far as the British and French situations are concerned, extremely strong hands seem to be at the helm.

GOLD INFLUX EASES MONEY IN LONDON

Expansion in Note Circulation Is Due to Transfers to Redemption Account.

AUSTRALIAN LOAN HELPFUL

Most of $75,000,000 Raised in New York Will Be Available in England.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 26.—The feature of the financial situation is the easy monetary position produced by the gold influx. Thursday's Bank of England return showed gold holdings at the new high record of £163,234,260, being an increase on the week of £1,667,258, and nearly £35,000,000 above a year ago. The note circulation is more than £17,000,000 greater than in 1924. The Bank's reserve was £1,424,203 higher for the week, at £39,592,625, with a ratio of reserve to liabilities up from 29.8 in the previous week to 31.3 per cent.

A year ago the reserve was £31,747,003, with a ratio of 18.5. The week's expansion of the Bank of England's note circulation was £243,055, but this was due to the transfer of £500,000 Bank of England notes to the currency note redemption account. The currency note issue expanded at a much greater rate this year than last. Total notes now outstanding are £298,935,737, or £6,633,778 more than a year ago.

Issue Below Maximum.

The present total gives a fiduciary issue of about £5,000,000 below the legal maximum, but if the demand for currency notes for the approaching August holidays is on anything like last year's scale the legal fiduciary maximum will be passed without the addition of more Bank of England notes to the redemption account.

The week's transfer of £500,000 of Bank of England notes to the currency note redemption account is by way of preparation for the large holiday expansion. The use of more Bank of England notes as cover, of course, weakens the Bank of England's reserve to that extent, but in the present favorable position this can be faced with ease. Nevertheless, the discount rate for three months' bills, which had fallen to 4⅛ per cent., is now rising again owing to the sharp reaction of sterling at the week-end and because the effect of an expanding currency note issue on the Bank of England's reserve had been generally overlooked.

Money Situation Favorable.

Generally speaking, however, the money situation is favorable. It now appears that the bulk of the money raised for Australia in New York will be used in England, so that something like $75,000,000 will be available as dollar credits for those who want them. This is equivalent to putting £15,000,000 in gold at the disposal of British debtors to the United States and will very considerably relieve the usual Autumn pressure on exchange.

The total of currency notes now outstanding, which aggregate £298,935,737, compares with £298,070,155 one week ago and £297,336,995 two weeks ago. This represents the highest point of the year to date. The lowest point was £281,165,917, on Feb. 28. The highest on record was £368,331,000, on Dec. 22, 1920.

HOLLAND INCREASES HOLDINGS OF BILLS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, July 26.—There was no change in the gold situation during the last week. Foreign bills, however, increased by 2,000,000,000 guilders, according to the Bank of the Netherlands statement. The outstanding currency notes are covered 51 per cent. by gold and silver. The real covering percentage, however, is much higher. As against 454,000,000 guilders of gold, the bank holds 216,000,000 of foreign bills, and about 40,000,000 of balances abroad.

Gold exports to London since the resumption of gold payments have aggregated £7,052,000. This strengthening of the position of the Bank of England as a money centre is considered here as a necessary safeguard for the monetary situation. Therefore, we have no hesitation in sending our gold to England.

REICHSMARK RESERVES RISE

BERLIN, July 26.—The Reichsbank return for July 15 showed further improvement in the financial status. Discounts fell by 53,000,000 marks to 1,526,000,000. Advances declined by 2,000,000 to 13,000,000, and circulation by 145,000,000 to 2,298,000,000. The gold reserve has now risen to 1,068,673,000 marks, against the lowest point of 441,000,000 marks in April, 1924.

The reserve of foreign exchange valid for note cover is 356,224,000 marks, against 253,202,000 at the end of 1925. The bank's holdings of gold in foreign central banks has been slightly increased to 93,099,000 marks.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, July 26.—There has been a sharp reaction in the rubber stocks caused by profit-taking, but the general situation as to crude rubber shows no change. The free percentage export of the British colonies for the next quarter has been increased from 65 to 75 per cent.

Moreover, 5,000 tons will be exported from Singapore, against payment of the extra port duty of a shilling per pound. The total stock to be exported on this basis from the Federated Malay States is 6,000 tons. This caused a sharp reaction in rubber prices to 4s 4½d.

Large Profits In Sight.

There is no cause for uneasiness about the Dutch Indian Company. They never profited much because of future contracts made before the recent wild advances in rubber. The cost price is now about 40 cents per half-kilo (about 1.10 pounds). The price for immediate delivery is $2.80 and for twelve-months delivery, $2 per half-kilo. Profits of 500 per cent. or more for these companies are in sight.

Present quotations for permanent rubber companies are as follows: Amsterdam Rubber, 285; Hesser Rubber, 380 India Rubber, 283; Kendeng Lomboe, 277; Oost Java, 295; Servadjadi, 273. There is a strengthening belief that the rubber movement has stopped only for a short time and that there will be a renewal of advances as soon as weak holders are out of the market.

LONDON, July, 26.—The boom in the rubber shares seems to have fizzled out for the moment, but a steadily improving market is looked for. Last week's settlements on the Stock Exchange was one of the heaviest in recent years owing to the rubber activities. The rubber position remains intrinsically sound. The nerves of speculators, however, have been jarred by a certain press campaign against the restriction scheme and also by the release of 6,000 tons of uncouponed rubber in Maluya. This extra supply would relieve undoubtedly the strained position which has developed, but for all practical purposes it is nonexistent.

The States are finding difficulty in supplying even that rubber they are allowed to export under the restriction scheme so that the clamor for extra exports appears futile to those who know the agricultural side of the rubber trade, which includes the British government, and who of course, keep well informed of the position. A large proportion of the 1926 crop has already been sold at high prices which may result in premiums and high prices for crude rubber for a long period ahead.

FRANCE IS HEARTENED BY BOND CONVERSIONS

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 26.—After voting the budget Parliament disbanded for the Summer vacation. A great deal of relief has been expressed at the recent real improvement in the political situation, which has brought about renewed confidence generally, and the recently matured Government bonds were mostly converted into bonds of defense without much prejudice to the Treasury.

In spite of the extra credits for Moroccan operations, which naturally make a burden for the Treasury and the bank, the return shows that capitalists generally have recommended investments in bonds of defense.

Events prove that the recent lowering of the discount rate was opportune, because far from being besieged by new demands the Bank of France has since had to discount fewer bills, easier conditions prevail generally in the money market, and it is susceptible to further improvement.

ITALIAN STOCKS DEPRESSED

Markets Are Still Affected by Political Situation.

ROME, July 26.—The stock markets are going through a period of depression, after the grave losses sustained last month, especially after de Stefani's decrees on the Stock Exchanges. There is little prospect of immediate improvement.

If in the political situation, through an understanding between the Fascismo and the so-called "Aventine" opposition a feeling of lasting peacefulness should be generated, it would have a beneficial influence on the internal markets. Even State securities are suffering from a general depression. A further factor is the high discount rate and increased interest on short-term Treasury bonds.

BRITISH EMPLOYMENT GAINS

LONDON, July 26.—The calculations of the Minister of Labor on the cost of living beginning with July show an average level of retail prices of 73 per cent. above July, 1914, against 72 per cent. at the beginning of June, 80 per cent. last January, and 70 per cent. a year ago.

The percentage of unemployed among 11,500,000 working people in Great Britain and Northern Ireland on June 22 was 12.21 per cent., against 11.42 a month earlier, and 9.4 a year ago. The weekly returns, however, indicate some improvement recently.

BIG CROPS DEPRESS PRICES IN EUROPE

BERLIN, July 26.—The latest German crop reports forecast an extraordinarily good crop, particularly of rye. As a result of this week's warm weather all the crops have developed rapidly and the quality is described as extremely good. The price for rye at loading stations dropped from 228 to around 193 marks per metric ton, but though the wheat crop also is very good, wheat prices rose about 10 marks per ton as a result of transatlantic reports.

The Russian reports are increasingly favorable. The Commissariat of Agriculture estimates the crop of the entire Soviet Republic at 4,000,000,000 poods. (The pood is equal to 36.07 pounds.). This estimate, based on local reports of July 15, shows that the quantity and quality per acre are about the same as in 1922, since when, however, the sown area has increased by 30 per cent.

The official Ekonomitchesttaya Zhizn reports sharp drops in prices wherever the new crop appeared on the market. In the Ukraine, rye prices dropped 15 per cent., and on the Volga 10 to 12 per cent. The same journal says that local dealers are attempting to retard the movement to ports in the hope of a price recovery.

The Polish crop report is less favorable, particularly oats and barley, and the yield is estimated at 10 per cent. below the June forecast. The Rumanian official estimate of the yield of wheat is 2,870,390 metric tons, against 1,960,540 tons in 1924. Finnish crop conditions are good, wheat and rye registering as between "over the average" and "good."

Crop Increases Are General.

ROME, July 26.—The European crops, especially cereals, vegetables, fruit and wine grapes, are satisfactory. The Rumanian crop will amount to 28,000,000 quintals (about 101.43 pounds) against 20,000,000 last year, and a ten-year average of 23,000,000. Spanish wheat will show an outturn of 34,000,000 quintals against a ten-year average of 33,000,000.

Despite damage by parasites, the crop of France is foreseen as considerably greater than the average. The Italian wheat crop will amount to 58,000,000 quintals. Imports this year are foreseen to be about 22,000,000 quintals, as compared with 28,000,000 last year.

PARIS, July 26.—No official prognostications concerning the harvest have been made, but doubtless the increased area sown and the present excellent climatic conditions will provide a much larger harvest this year than last, perhaps sufficient for national requirements. Sugar stocks also promise well in view of the suitable weather recently.

On the whole, the agricultural situation is very good and it is generally believed that the exchange market will not suffer this year from the effects of heavy purchases of foodstuffs abroad.

AMSTERDAM, July 26.—European crop reports remain favorable, giving rise to more cheerful views concerning the European exchange balance of payments and the exchange situation in Germany.

Dutch horticultural circles are still uneasy about Germany's proposed increased import duties which are very unfavorable to our export possibilities. However, negotiations have begun with the hope of bringing about an alteration of Germany's plans.

Crops Factor in Money Situation.

LONDON, July 26.—An important factor in the Autumn money situation is the position of European crops. Quite generally, the agricultural outlook is good. The monetary position is the exact opposite of what was foretold by those who feared and condemned the reversion to the gold standard. It has been responsible for the substantial recovery in gilt edge securities during the past few months. This recovery has been greatly assisted by the absorption of large blocks of stocks left with the underwriters owing to excessive borrowing.

FISHER INDEX IS STEADY.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, July 26.—Professor Irving Fisher's index number of American commodity prices last week, based on 100 as the average of 1913, is 160.4, which compares with 160.5 a week ago, 159.3 two weeks ago, 158.9 three weeks ago, and 159.5 four weeks ago. The highest weekly average reached this year to date was 164.4 on Jan. 31, which was also higher than any point reached in 1924; the lowest was 154.1, on May 2. Last year's high point was 156.7 on Dec. 27; its lowest 142.3 on June 29. The highest percentage since the war was 247, in May, 1920; the lowest, 130, in January, 1922.

Crump's British index number as cabled for the past week was 151.9, compared with 152.1 the week before, 151.5 two weeks before, 151.4 three weeks before, and 149.6 four weeks before. The average of 149.6 on June 27 was the lowest point reached this year to date; the highest was 166.5 on Jan. 10.

ITALY TO MAINTAIN SURPLUS IN BUDGET

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, July 26.—The first statement of Finance Minister Volpi, recently chosen, on the Italian financial situation, does not differ much from the declarations made, just before he retired, by former Minister de Stefani. The budget shows a surplus of more than 200,000,000 lire. This surplus will be maintained next year and the public debt decreased by 6,000,000,000 of revenue. The budget shows a constant increase in expenditures, but these are chiefly for new public works. National savings have increased greatly. The new point in the statement was that there has been an increase in the circulation on June 30, 1925, over May 31, 1924, of 1,200,000,000 lire.

Not a great deal of importance is attached to this phenomenon in financial circles. It can be explained largely by seasonal variations. In some quarters the belief is expressed that the increase in production, the expansion of the traffic movement, and the constant economic development of the nation render the previous limit of about 20,000,000,000 in the circulation insufficient for the needs of the market.

The country seems to be rapidly reaching a position of monetary stabilization. Some economists maintain that this condition could be brought more quickly by following the example of the Argentine in 1899, where the bank of guarantee or conversion fixed the guaranteed convertible value of paper money, which continued to be used for trading in ordinary life, but had a limit of devaluation so as not to permit, for instance, the purchase of buildings or land at "mad" prices or the cornering of stocks at prices out of all proportion to the dividends.

The Dawes plan teaches that in order to insure efficiency in depreciated currencies it is necessary for creditor countries to help the debtors with financial subventions in order that they may reach stabilization through adequate metallic reserve, or its equivalent.

BRITAIN IS HOPEFUL OF COAL AGREEMENT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 26.—Our markets were startled on Friday when sterling suddenly dropped after a period of several weeks' steadiness from 4.86⅝ to 4.85¾. This movement caused considerable excitement and was generally attributed to fears of a coal strike in England.

The Continent appears to take little fright at this prospect and much of the sudden demand for dollars came from that quarter. The effect of a long coal stoppage would be disastrous, especially in view of England's weakened power to export. The agreement reached on Friday to meet for a conference again next Wednesday has relieved the situation somewhat, and it is hoped that there will be a compromise which will avert the strike threatened for July 31.

STINNES LIQUIDATION PROCEEDING RAPIDLY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 26.—Liquidation of the Stinnes concern is proceeding rapidly. Large sums are being realized for the settlement of the Stinnes obligations. In this process the intervening banks act almost autocratically and disregard the wishes of the Stinnes family.

A total of 7,500,000 marks of stock in the Berlin Handelsgesellschaft Bank, which was one-third of the bank's total capital of 22,000,000 marks, has been sold. The liquidators have further sold the whole export department of Hugo Stinnes Company for Navigation and Trade in Hamburg, and will also sell the company's import business.

The story that the Harriman interests of New York and the Hamburg-American Line are buying the Stinnes Shipping Company, which has 125,000 tons of vessels, has not been confirmed. The Prussian State has purchased the holdings of the Stinnes, amounting to 12,000,000 marks, in the Rheinish Westphalian Electricity Corporation. Negotiations are under way for the sale of the 20,000,000 marks stock holdings in the Stinnes Riebeck Oil Corporation. The Hugo Stinnes Corporation for Eastern Trade and Industry is also being parted with. These transactions have no visible effect on the Bourse, as no Stinnes stock came upon the open market.

PARIS EXCHANGE IS FIRMER.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 26.—The exchange market has been dull and idle in the last few days. It can be said that there has been no governmental intervention in the exchange market lately. Sufficient exchange is in hand for purchases of cereals abroad to tide over until harvest. Traders, and manufacturers, too, are said to have sold sufficient exchange for the next two weeks' business.

The tendency is toward firmness and stabilization around the present dollar-sterling rates. The speculative position is practically nil. It is thought this stability in the franc will continue anyhow until the close of the loan issue on Sept 5.

Business and Property: The Company and its subsidiary and affiliated companies own, control or operate public utility properties which have been in continuous successful operation for varying periods up to 73 years. The Associated Group supplies electricity, gas and/or water to over 200,000 consumers, serving a total population estimated at more than 1,000,000 in over 450 communities in New York, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Maine, Connecticut, Vermont, Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, and the City of Manila and suburbs.

The properties include electric power stations with generating capacity of 113,000 K. W., 1,268 miles of high tension transmission lines with additional lines under construction, gas plants with a daily capacity of 4,435,000 cubic feet and 241 miles of gas mains.

Consolidated Earnings:

	CALENDAR YEARS 1921	1922	1923	1924	12 Months ended May 31, 1925

150,000 Shares of Original Series Preferred Stock ($3.50 Dividend)				525,000	859,000
Balance for Retirement Reserves, Other Dividends and Surplus					$ 1,406,331

Of the net earnings (before taxes and retirement reserves) for the 12 months ended May 31, 1925, 74% was derived from electric light and power. In such period the amounts set aside or expended for maintenance and renewals and replacements averaged 15% of gross operating revenues. Based upon their inspection, the engineers reported under date of July 9, 1924, that the operated properties were well maintained and adequate to meet all demands made upon them.

Franchises and Management: Franchises and rights appurtenant to the various properties are without burdensome restrictions and afford ample protection to the Company. The properties are under the supervision of The J. G. White Management Corporation, insuring efficient and economical management. The operating companies enjoy favorable relations with the consumers.

The legality of the issuance of this stock has been passed upon by Messrs. Roberts and Montgomery, of Philadelphia, and Messrs. Travis, Spence and Hopkins, and Messrs. Everett, Clarke and Benedict, of New York. The books of the Company are audited annually by Haskins & Sells. Engineering reports on the properties have been made recently by Edward J. Cheney, Esq., and, in connection with previous financing, by Day & Zimmermann, Inc.

This issue of $7 Dividend Series Preferred Stock has been acquired from private sources.

The Alpine Montan Steel Corporation

The close proximity of vast deposits of high-grade iron ore, coal and limestone to the Corporation's blast furnaces has made Alpine Montan the leading steel and iron producer in its territory, self-contained from mine to customer.

The Iron Mountain

is carried on the books of the Corporation at the nominal value of one cent. Containing more than 200,000,000 tons of purest iron ore evaluated at more than $10,000,000, the Erzberg has been written off out of profits.

The Alpine Montan Steel Corporation

produces 100% of the iron and 70% of the steel of Austria, and is enjoying the most successful year since 1912. Exclusive of the Iron Mountain, property value is 7½ times mortgage debt.

CAILLAUX LESSENS TREASURY BURDEN

Seasonal Incomes Help Swell Cash Resources Available for New French Bonds.

BANK RETURNS FAVORABLE

Loan May Reach 15,000,000,000 Francs, Greatly Improving Financial Position.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 26.—The first known results of subscriptions to the new loan with guaranteed exchange are most satisfactory. It may be noted that the issue coincides with the collection of large amounts of house and farm rents by property owners. The season also approaches when agriculturists are selling their next crops. Therefore, the large proportion of cash resources which abound normally on the money market at this period will be free for investment in the new loan, thus shifting the burden from the Treasury.

This satisfactory position moreover, has been confirmed by the bank returns. This favorable effect on the Treasury has been made possible by holders of bank notes being able to subscribe to large amounts of bonds of defense, and later to convert them into the new 4 per cent. perpetual loan. Bankers spare no effort to persuade customers to exchange as many bonds as possible.

Considering the authorization of Finance Minister Caillaux to exchange three, six and ten-year Treasury bonds deposited for reimbursement on their maturities of Sept. 25 and Dec. 8, the calculation can be made that the amount of bonds convertible reaches about 70,000,000,000 francs, including more than 50,000,000,000 bonds of defense, and about 20,000,000,000 of three, six and ten-year bonds. Accordingly, in view of the dates fixed for repayment of the bonds of defense and information from bankers concerning the amount of Treasury bonds deposited for payment, it is possible to estimate that the loan may reach 15,000,000,000, which would improve the general financial position, greatly diminishing the burdens which are liable to weigh heavily on the Treasury.

The Bank of France return last week showed great improvement. The Treasury repaid 450,000,000 francs against advances. Circulation decreased by more than 300,000,000. It is now apparent that the recent redemption of the national credit bonds, amounting to nearly 2,000,000,000 francs, has not had the unfavorable effect on State advances and circulation which was feared in some quarters.

BERLIN, July 26.—June imports aggregated 1,071,788,000 marks, against 1,083,794,000 in May. Exports were 687,712,000 marks, against 732,176,000 in the preceding month.

Food imports increased by 52,000,000 marks, imports of raw and half-finished material declined by 32,000,000. The export of goods declined by 19,000,000. Exports of manufactured textiles were unchanged, but exports of iron ware declined by 6,000,000,000.

Outlook Good for Corn—Rye Harvest Is Smallest Since the War.

CHICAGO, July 26.—Agricultural conditions are spotted and rain is needed over a large section of the Middle West and Northwest to keep the crops growing well and for filling the small grains. Temperatures were most favorable in the past week and black rust in the Dakotas has not spread. Losses from that source have been comparatively small, while frost and heat damages have been severe.

One of the authorities on Northwestern crop conditions estimates the damage in the western third of North Dakota ranging up to 40 per cent., in parts of Montana 45 per cent., while South Dakota deteriorated 20 to 25 per cent. and Minnesota 20 per cent., as compared with July 1.

Harvesting of Spring wheat is on in Southern Minnesota, South Dakota, and will start in North Dakota within the coming week. Oat harvesting is on with irregular yields. Rye harvesting is completed, with the crop the smallest since the war.

Corn generally is doing well. It is tasseling over the greater part of Iowa and in other States in the same latitude. There has been damage by heat and drought in Western Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma. Official reports from Iowa say that the condition is decidedly better than a year ago and above the average.

In Illinois, Indiana and Missouri corn is generally fine and ahead of last year, the crop tasseling and silking.

TARIFF COMPROMISE REACHED IN GERMANY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 26.—The Cabinet prospects of getting through a legislative program before the Reichstag disperses for the Summer holidays are now very much improved. On the food-duties question, the Government parties have achieved a compromise whereby the proposed minimum grain duties, which were opposed by a part of the Centre faction, have been definitely abandoned. This means that grain duties may be indefinitely reduced in exchange for concessions from grain-exporting countries. The United States would benefit from any such reductions under the "most favored nation" agreement.

As against this concession an irreducible minimum of 13 marks per 100 kilos weight has been imposed on live cattle and sheep, and 14½ marks on hogs. Until April 1926, other duties per 100 kilos are: Bacon 24 marks; lard 6 marks; fresh and frozen meat 21 and 24 marks; canned milk 40 marks. The tariff law will lapse altogether on July 31, 1927, by which time it is expected that definitive revisions of the 1902 tariff will be completed. The agrarians accepted this compromise because the European crop reports have been increasingly favorable, and had no agreement been reached, the whole tariff bill might have collapsed, leaving them without any food duties at all, and with a prospect of falling prices.

COLONIAL BORROWING REVIVED IN ENGLAND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 26.—Conditions in the security market are again just about normal. Large applications for the London portion of the Australian loan received about half the portions asked for. Preparations are now being made for further Colonial issues. A South African loan for £4,000,000 in 5 per cents. at 99½, has just been underwritten. This is one per cent. dearer than the Australian loan, allowing for the bonus in the first interest payment contained in the Australian issue.

Revival in Colonial borrowing on the London market caused some setback of gilt-edge securities at the close of the week, and all markets weakened on the critical turn taken by the coal mining dispute.

HALF YEAR'S TRADE PLEASES THE WEST

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 26.—A better feeling existed in business and financial circles as a result of the satisfactory showing made by leading lines of trade for the six months of this year, which have sufficiently exceeded expectations to make a change in the ideas of those who have been pessimists. Various industrial corporations have declared good dividends on the six months operations and trade reports on the whole are more encouraging as to the future. The steel industry record for the first six months of this year is close to its high mark.

The fact that production in all lines of industry for the past six months was at a good average and in omst instances in excess of last year, with the consumption keeping pace with production and with no accumulation of stocks, is considered as indicating a most healthy condition.

Operations of the steel industry in the Chicago district are around 20 per cent. in excess of last year's, and while the mill output is cutting into tonnage on the order books at a fair rate, leaders in the steel industry believe that buying, which in a small way has featured operations of consumers for many months, will be enlarged.

Railroads are figuring on a fair tonnage in steel rails and track supplies, but are buying few new cars. The fact that purchases of new equipment have been light for so many months leads car builders to the belief that buying will enlarge in the later months of the year. Steadiness in steel values is noticeable.

Implement makers are in the market for the largest tonnage of steel since 1920, while automobile manufacturers, who are among the largest consumers of steel, are curtailing their output. A reduced production and an increased consumption of petroleum oil had a strengthening influence on values. Although this is the season for quietness in the general commodity trade, there were more buyers in the market for dry goods than last year and the general aggregate of sales compared favorably with last year. Retail and mail order sales are making a fair showing. At no time in years has there been the activity in building operations and as heavy a consumption of materials as at present, with indications of a record season for the entire building industry in Chicago and the West.

TEXAS COTTON SUFFERS.

Drought Also Is Causing Setback in Oklahoma.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, July 26.—Cotton conditions in the greater part of Texas have gone from bad to worse since July 16, as there have been no rains of any value since that time. It is also certain that the droughty conditions in Oklahoma have extended and that the crop in that State is now in poorer condition than it was at the time of the returns for the Government report of Thursday were turned in.

General rains in the West in the near future would undoubtedly improve the situation to some extent but it seems pretty certain that over a considerable area in Central and South Texas the crop is entirely beyond salvation.

International Utilities Gross.

In connection with the expected financing by the International Utilities Corporation, earnings for the five months ended May 31 are made public today. They show gross of subsidiaries of $2,605,982, and net applicable to Federal taxes, depreciation, dividends, &c., of $540,910. For the year ended May 31 gross was $5,475,576 and net $844,045.

VALORIZATION FIGHT CONTINUES IN BERLIN

REDEMPTION PLAN OUTLINED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 26.—Agitation against the valorization law continues. The creditors' association announces that it will contest the validity of these laws which, it alleges, violate the constitutional guaranty against expropriation of property. There is general disappointment that State and municipal loans were materially better treated than other loans. The law allows a slight opening for better treatment in the future. Holders of State bonds will receive 25 reichsmarks of the new loan redemption debt for every 1,000 marks of the old loan handed in. Where the holder is "new," having acquired his bonds after June 30, 1920, his loan redemption debt will not be repayable and will bear no interest until the reparations have been fully paid.

All of the loan redemption debt issued to "old" holders, will be amortized during thirty years, plus five-fold premium, plus 4½ per cent. simple interest on the combined capital and premium. This means that the "old" holders of 1,000 marks nominal will ultimately be repaid 125 reichsmarks in cash and interest thereon up to the date of amortization.

The treatment of municipal loans is identical with the exception that the interest rate is 5 per cent. and that the premium may be doubled from five to tenfold if the debtor municipalities' financial position is good. In this case, "old" holders of 1,000 marks of municipal bonds would get 250 reichsmarks plus interest, but must wait for both until his bonds are drawn for amortization, possibly waiting thirty years.

Heavy American buying of German municipal bonds took place in the first half of 1920, and those who still possess these bonds will come out pretty well in view of the fact that the dollar was then appreciated ten to twentyfold. All bonds, however, whether Federal, State or municipal, in the hands of "new holders" must be considered as practically repudiated.

GENERAL MOTORS SETS A RECORD IN EARNINGS

Earnings of the General Motors Corporation for the six months ended June 30, 1925, established a record, according to a statement issued by Alfred P. Sloan Jr., President of the organization.

Mr. Sloan announced that the earnings were $46,082,236, after allowing for all expenses and reserves for taxes and depreciation. After allowing for the regular dividend requirements on the preferred stock there was a balance equal to $8.19 a share on the outstanding common stock. In the corresponding period last year the company earned $27,066,990, which, after preferred dividends was equal to $4.57 a share on the common.

The statement further points out that General Motors' equity in earnings of the Fisher Body Corporation and General Motors Acceptance Corporation in excess of dividends received for the first six months was $4,280,863, equivalent to 83 cents a share on the common stock of the General Motors Corporation.

The General Motors Corporation reports that cash and government securities held on June 30, 1925, aggregated $139,375,062 against $30,552,452 on the same date last year. The company reported no current liabilities other than current account.

STEEL PRICES STIFFENING.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 26.—A week ago the point was made that for nearly a month there had been no quotable decline in any important steel mill product, that being, of course, the longest period without change since the market started softening last February. The charm has since been broken, as plates are quotable down $1 a ton and shapes $2. The price news is not all in one direction, however, for sheets are notably stiffer again and wire products are quite steady in the major portion of the territory, which it is not certain was the case two or three weeks ago.

The heavy melting steel scrap market, whose price changes are often barometric of changes in the rate of steel mill operation, has advanced $1 in the week, making a total advance of $2.50 since early May, following a decline of $6 since the top point of Jan. 1. Two mills in the district have bought rather freely and another is on the verge of buying. These mills are assumed to see better operating prospects than were visible to them a month ago.

The cleaning up of Connellsville coke loaded on cars, reported a week ago, has been followed by an advance in the spot market, sales in the past week having been at $2.90, including one lot of twenty-five carloads, while the market for several weeks had been at $2.75 to $2.85.

The pigiron market in the general Pittsburgh district remains dull, as it has been since the buying movement of June, but is more clearly firm than it was two or three weeks ago, with Bessemer at $19, basic at $18 and foundry at $18.50 to $19 at valley furnaces.

Rail Earnings in the West Fair.

CHICAGO, July 26.—Western railroads are making a fair show of earnings, with traffic in excess of that in June. Grain loadings have increased, particularly in the Southwest. Coal, oil, building materials and miscellaneous freight loadings have enlarged. There is no scarcity of cars and railroads are in excellent condition for handling all freight. The only drawback is that there is not enough business constantly pressing for transportation from point to point to keep all the equipment in active operation.

California Pays $2,239,106 Claims.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 26 (AP).—Checks totalling $2,239,106 were mailed by the State yesterday in payment of claims against the State of California for animals and property destroyed during the foot and mouth epidemic. The largest check issued was for $512,500 to cover the claim of the California Bankers' Association for cash advanced.

BUSINESS IN STEEL KEEPS ON A LEVEL

FAIR BUYING IN MANY LINES

Pipe Mills Are Busy at a 75 to 80 Per Cent. Rate—Rail Bookings Slow.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 26.—Steel mill operations this month, in terms of ingot production, are likely to average about 65 per cent. and may possibly exceed that figure by a couple of points, thus proving better than expected. June ingot production was at 71 per cent. and the six months through June showed an average of 82 per cent. Operations seem to have been a trifle heavier, on the whole, in the past week than in the early part of the month. At any rate, there is no progressive decrease.

As to the trend in the volume of buying, there is a mixed condition. Heavier buying is reported in some lines, but there has been lighter buying in others. There is no reason to suspect that the month's business as a whole will fall measurably below that of June, while there may be a slight increase. There was little if any decrease from May to June and thus a level stretch has been reached after the sharp decreases in market activity earlier in the year. According to all precedents, this presages an early and marked upturn in buying, unless consumption decreases greatly, and of this there is no prospect. In all consuming lines, except that involving the railroads, there is no prospect of any substantial decrease in steel consumption, comparing the second half with the first half, and it is by no means impossible that some lines will have increases.

New Buying Awaited.

In general terms, the buying of steel since May 1 has been running at a rate representing nearly if not quite 50 per cent. of the productive capacity. Shipments at slightly over 75 per cent. in May, slightly over 70 per cent. in June and probably fully 65 per cent. this month, represent recent buying, which has been nearly all for prompt shipment, and old business. The latter is, of course, gradually working out, hence some increase in buying, over the recent rate, will be required to maintain mill operations at their present rate. This is expected, but it can be seen it is no foregone conclusion that steel mill operations will increase next month.

Since the downturn in oil production began June 1, there has been only one week of an increase, and the net decrease has been substantial, fully justifying the heavier drilling operations that have been planned in the past three months. Buying of oil country goods, in casing, tubing, drill pipe, &c., has continued heavy. Operations at two or three pipe mills have decreased in the past fortnight, but this has been due solely to completion of certain line pipe orders. Line pipe buying rises and falls according to exigencies, being in itself no indication whatever of the state of trade. Buying of merchant pipe, by jobbers throughout the country, continues at a very fair pace. Pipe mills operations are now estimated at 75 to 80 per cent., against 80 to 90 per cent. in June, and a low rate of about 70 per cent. May 1.

The automobile industry continues to make a showing of tapering off less in activity than would be expected for this season of the year. The high point was in April. Buying of steel by this trade is practically continuous, as there is little disposition to make forward commitments, and lower prices are nearly always being sought. Some automobile makers are using reductions they have made in car prices as an argument that steel mills should help them.

Railroad Orders Slow.

Railroad buying of steel has been light for several months, presenting the only distinctly poor prospect the steel industry has. There may not be any decisive improvement in that respect now, but railroad buying is a little more in evidence, with the 47,000-ton rail orders of the Norfolk & Western and active inquiry by two other lines. Not a little steel is being taken for freight car repairs and buying of freight cars is not entirely lacking.

The Department of Commerce report of fabricated structural steel lettings in June fully bears out the reports during the month of there having been an upturn in this activity. June, with its 88 per cent. bookings, was in fact the best month for a longer period than it would be fair or really informing to mention. It is more instructive to note that lettings were 18 per cent. greater in tonnage in the second quarter than in the first, while the half year was 6 per cent. better than the first half of 1924 and just equal to the second half of the year. As to the amount of business still to be executed at the steel mills and fabricating shops, the shipments in the first half of this year exceeded the bookings by only 3 per cent., so that fabricating shop order books were practically as well filled on July 1 as on Jan. 1. Bookings have been running considerably lighter since July 1, but that makes only a short-term comparison.

BEEF MOVES UP IN PRICE.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 26.—Cattle raisers with choice heavy steers and long yearlings are getting the best prices of the year, as well as the highest since 1920, while the ordinary-to-common run of beef steers, especially those showing a good deal of grass, are 25 to 50 cents lower for the week, and fancy steers are 10 cents higher. Choice heavy beef steers sold at $14.60 in the Chicago market; yearlings at $14.65 for an average of 1,002 pounds and choice heifers touched $13.25, an advance of 40 cents for the week. The average of beef steers was $12.25, gaining 25 cents for the week, and compared with $9.65 last year. Butcher stock closed easy to 25 cents lower, while feeders, which were in limited demand, were off 15 to 25 cents.

Hog values were irregular, but advanced to $14.50 on Friday, or within 25 cents of the highest price of the year. The average for the week was $13.25, or 40 cents lower than the previous week, compared with $8.45 last year. The average weight was 243 pounds, as in the previous week, and four pounds heavier than last year.

Fat lambs closed 75 cents to $1 higher with a top of $15.50 and an average at $15 at the finish. The week's average was 60 cents lower at $14.40, against $13.45 last year. Highest prices on sheep were $9, and the average $8, a drop of $1 for the week and a gain of $2 over last year.

Receipts of cattle at Chicago for the week were 47,000 against 56,834 last year; hogs, 104,000, the lightest in some time, compared with 138,000 last year; sheep, 62,000, against 77,874 last year. Estimated receipts at Chicago for this week are—Cattle 50,000, hogs 115,000, sheep 55,000. Receipts last year—Cattle 47,556, hogs 146,871, sheep 71,022.

CERTAIN-TEED PROFITS $1,008,228 THIS YEAR

First Six Months Showed Great Increase—June Business Broke All Records.

The Certain-teed Products Corporation, for the six months ended June 30, reports net profits of $1,008,228 after all expenses and charges, including dividend payments on both classes of preferred stock. These profits were equal to $7.45 a share earned on the outstanding common stock. In the same period last year the company reported net of $503,607, equal to $2.64 a share on the common stock. June, according to the company's statement, broke all monthly records both from the standpoint of gross business and net profits.

George M. Brown, President of the company, in a statement to stockholders said: "The balance sheet reflects the best financial position in the history of the company, net quick assets being $8,196,216, against $5,757,346 on Dec. 31, 1924. The ratio of current assets to current liabilities is 6.20 to 1, against 4.66 to 1 at the close of last year. The proceeds from the sale of 40,000 shares of additional common stock, which were issued May 19, were used for additional working capital. The company has no borrowed money.

"Since Jan. 1, 1925, the corporation has purchased and retired $180,000 par value of its first preferred stock under operation of its sinking fund, which makes a total of $1,170,000 par value retired since the corporation was organized. On May 1 $240,000 bonds matured and were paid.

"In view of the excellent showing and prospects the directors resumed the payment of dividends on the common stock by declaring a quarterly dividend of $1 a share, which was paid July 1 to stockholders of record June 16. It is expected that a rate at least equal to $4 a share may be maintained for an indefinite period. Past records indicate that the last half of each year is almost invariably larger in volume of business and net profits than the first half. We are very optimistic regarding the outlook for the remainder of the year."

FACTORS IN TAX CUT OUTLINED BY BANK

Commerce Monthly Sees Reduction in Military Expenses as Chief Help.

Reduction in annual expenditures for military purposes has been the chief factor in retrenchment during the past four years, the National Bank of Commerce in New York says in its August issue of the Commerce Monthly in discussing the budget operations of the Federal Government.

The bank outlines the reductions in total yearly expenditures, in discussing the predictions that future reductions will be difficult, it is suggested that the low point of expenditures will not necessarily determine the final limit of tax reduction.

"It is worthy of note," says the bank, "that the expenditures during this past fiscal year were 36 per cent. less than during the fiscal year ended 1921, immediately preceding the adoption of a budget. It should not be inferred, however, that the budget was wholly responsible for the tremendous reduction. For, after all, a budget system is not a miracle worker. It is merely a device for the orderly allotment and control of Government receipts and expenditures."

A practical consideration, the bank points out, is the effect of Federal expenditures on income tax rates. Already the taxpayer, it says, has experienced relief in the Revenue acts of 1921 and 1924. "The hope today is for further tax reduction in the near future. The surplus of ordinary receipts over expenditures amounted to $250,000,000 for the fiscal year just passed, and promises at the present rate of taxation to reach $373,000,000 for the fiscal year ending 1926. This indicates that tax receipts are in excess of monies needed, despite the two reductions in taxation already made."

SEES SLIGHT RUBBER CRISIS

Garthwaite Says High Price Will Not Fall on Motorists.

"Notwithstanding the almost prohibitive price of rubber which exists at this time, it can be said that the motoring public is not being asked to pay for tires a price commensurate with the existing price of rubber nor does it seem they ever will be," Albert A. Garthwaite, Vice President and Treasurer of the Lee Tire and Rubber Company, said yesterday. "It is commonly said that today there is a crisis in rubber on account of its high price, but there was a far greater crisis in 1922 on account of its low price when it fell to 16 cents a pound. Such a condition threatened to bankrupt rubber plantations the world over and it was to safeguard the production of a commodity for which the world has a myriad of uses that the British, who control the bulk of rubber plantations, framed the so-called Stevenson Restriction act, effective Nov. 1, 1922, providing for a standard production.

"The Stevenson plan, despite its critics, is saving the rubber growing industry and stabilizing the rubber market. The United States, consuming 75 per cent of the world's rubber, should be vitally interested in its conservation plan. The low rubber prices of a year ago carried its corrective in a further restriction of exports. The high prices of today will automatically bring about increasingly larger releases from the plantations on Aug. 1, Nov. 1, 1925, and Feb. 1, 1926, by which time releases will be normal and on May 1, 1926, the restriction scheme will automatically lapse, barring another slump in rubber under 24 cents a pound.

"It is generally conceded that 30 cents a pound is a fair quotation for raw rubber. If in the future rubber sells for what it is actually worth, there will be no criticism of the Stevenson plan, as it will never be in operation and rubber growing will continue on a stable basis with an output sufficient to meet the growing world demand."

SEES GOOD TONE TO TRADE.

Summer Lull Less Pronounced Than Expected, Bank Finds.

Increasing confidence characterizes the business situation, according to The Guaranty Survey, published by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, which says that although the usual midsummer lull in many of the important branches of trade is in evidence, it is less pronounced than was anticipated earlier in the season. "And as an indicator of future trends," the publication continues, "it is overshadowed by such factors as the improvement in the prospective crop yields, the advances in stock and commodity prices, the firmness of money rates and the unusually active movement of seasonal goods."

In comparison with the situation last year, it is pointed out, present conditions "appear in an especially favorable light. Nearly all indexes show greater activity in production and trade than a year ago. Indeed, in some lines the recession of the last few months has given way to expansion, in spite of seasonal influences."

COTTON DOMINATED BY CROP ESTIMATE

PRICES REACH NEW HIGHS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 26.—The report of the Government on the condition and indicated yield based on data collected on July 16, which was issued Thursday, was naturally the dominating feature in the past week's trading in the cotton market. Even before the report was issued the market was within its shadow, and as the trade had been led to expect a condition average in the neighborhood of 73 to 73.5 and an indicated crop of 14,000,000 bales or over, the trend of prices prior to the issue of the report was downward.

At the time the trading was suspended five minutes before the flashes giving the main figures of the report were received, October contracts were trading at 23 cents, although they had been as low as 22.92 earlier in the morning. The figures as they came over the wires created astonishment, and it is not unlikely that had trading been in progress, as was the custom formerly, prices might easily have advanced the full limit of 200 points. As it was, the first trade on the resumption of business was at 24 for October, a full cent advance, and the very next sale of that month was 24.50, while the market finally advanced to 24.55 before the upswing was checked. The actual advance from the lowest point for October was 163 points.

New High Recorded.

Although the market reacted about 40 points in the late trading on Thursday, it made a new high on Friday at 24.64 for October, and that, too, in face of a threatened strike involving 135,000 textile operatives in Lancashire. Whether the advance which has already taken place represents the full response of the trade to the Government report may be doubted.

In the first place, much skepticism still exists over the accuracy of the Government's deductions, although it must be admitted that the continued drought in the West is converting many to the view that, after all, the Government may be correct and that despite the record acreage and the good start which the crop made, the country may nevertheless be confronted by the prospect of a crop somewhat smaller than last season's when 13,619,000 equivalent 500-pound bales were ginned.

The Government now declares that a crop of only 13,588,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight is indicated for this season, or an average yield per acre much smaller than last year.

Figures Cause Surprise.

The low condition average given was due almost entirely to the bad conditions in Texas and Oklahoma. Although the trade was fully aware of the fact that the crop had gone back heavily in Texas and was beginning to deteriorate rapidly in Oklahoma, it was not prepared for such low condition averages as were given, particularly in the case of Oklahoma, which State showed a falling off of 12 points compared with June 25. As the crop east of the Mississippi River is generally believed to be making excellent progress, it is difficult to conceive that the crop promise has gone back 5.5 points in condition in the past three weeks, as well as 751,000 bales in prospective yield.

For the second consecutive time this season the private bureaus have differed widely in their findings from those of the Government. Three weeks ago their average predictions were much too small, both in the matter of condition and crop promise, and their estimates of acreage fell far short of the estimate given out by the bureau. Last Thursday's report, on the other hand, fell far below the lowest of the private authorities, both in condition average and indicated yield.

TRADERS IN WHEAT ARE MARKING TIME

8-CENT LOSS IN THE WEEK

Rye Is Nearly 5 Cents Lower—Corn Depends on the Turn of the Weather.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 26.—The wheat market has reached the stage where there are three important factors which are to act largely as shaping the course of prices. Crop damage from the Northwest has lost much of its influence as a bull factor and favorable weather conditions for the next three weeks will, it is said, remove all the bullishness that survives. The other two important influences are the size of the movement of new Winter wheat and the extent of the milling and export demand.

Cash premiums have dropped to about a delivery basis in Chicago. Millers are buying the cash wheat here and particularly in the Southwest, and it begins to look as though they were reaching the saturation point, as the demand for flour is not brisk. Chicago had more than 2,000,000 bushels of wheat last week and indications are for a larger run for the coming two weeks. Export buying has revived slightly but is spasmodic.

Most of the big professional traders say that they see nothing in the market for the time being and prefer to wait until the Spring wheat harvest is over and the size of the stock on both sides of the international line is determined.

The Murray crop report, which appeared on Friday, estimates the Spring wheat yield at 255,000,000 bushels, or 21,000,000 bushels less than the Government's July 1 returns. As the par basis of Spring wheat advances more than two bushels per acre for the four Northwestern States, and they have 17,193,000 acres, it offsets a large percentage of the damage that may have come to the crops in the past three weeks by heat, drought and rust.

Hedging against purchases of cash wheat by elevator and milling interests is creating a weight on the market which requires increased speculative buying to overcome. Traders have the impression that wheat is worth around the present level, $1.50 a bushel, and, with Chicago relatively lower than any of the Winter wheat markets, there is a disposition to buy here on all declines.

The corn market has been heavily oversold by local professionals, with December and May new crop futures down to the lowest of the season with a sharp rally. For the present the corn market is largely a weather affair. The crop is one to two weeks earlier than last Summer and prospects are good over most of the big States.

Crops of old corn are decreasing and a reduction is expected to be seen in the visible supply in Monday's returns, while wheat supplies are to increase, the first gain in months.

Closing prices compared with a week ago show losses of 5¼ to 8⅝ cents on wheat, 1⅜ to 4 cents on corn, ¾ to 1½ cents on oats, and 4¼ to 4⅝ cents on rye.

FREIGHT CAR SURPLUS LESS

Number of Available Carriers in Good Repair Falls 2,012 in Week.

Class 1 railroads on July 14 had 309,560 surplus freight cars in good repair and available for service, according to reports just made public. This was a decrease of 2,012 cars under the number reported on July 7.

Surplus coal cars in good repair totaled 111,449, a decrease of 807 in a week, while surplus box cars totaled 150,237, an increase of 1,922. There were 21,724 surplus stock cars, a decrease of 733, while the decrease of surplus refrigerator cars was 2,307, leaving a total of 16,134 such carriers.

LABOR BANK PLANS INCREASE IN CAPITAL

BRADY TELLS OF GROWTH

Resources Now More Than $11,000,000, He Says—Stock Is on an 8% Dividend Basis.

Stockholders of the Federation Bank of New York, representing nearly every branch of organized labor, will meet at 8 o'clock tonight in Washington Irving High School, to vote on the recommendation of the Board of Directors to increase the bank's capital and surplus to $1,500,000. Peter J. Brady, President, will report on the increase in the bank's business which now reports resources of more than $11,000,000.

At the same time resolutions will be offered to limit the amount of stock to twenty-five shares for individuals and fifty shares for unions or associations, which is in line with the policy of the bank since its inception to spread its ownership among the greatest number of unions and individuals and to keep it the "most representative bank in the United States," Mr. Brady announced.

"Without making a direct drive," he said, "we have already on hand applications for over 3,500 shares of the proposed 5,000 additional shares from original stockholders, depositors, labor unions and friends of labor. More than 125 unions, including organizations national in scope, State bodies and local unions are now part of the bank.

"Many applications made after the original stock was purchased have been on file for two years awaiting the new issue that our stockholders are expected to authorize. The addition of another $1,000,000 in capital and surplus will give an opportunity to every labor organization and other groups friendly to organized labor to participate in ownership and control of the bank.

"Stockholders as heretofore, will be expected to agree to the limiting of profits not to exceed 10 per cent. on their investment. The capital stock has been put on an 8 per cent. dividend basis, and three quarterly dividends have already been distributed to our stockholders and the bank is building up a splendid reserve fund for emergencies.

"The stockholders will have thirty days after the legal meeting to exercise their rights to subscribe for the new issue. Under the purchase plan the first payment on all stock applications, to the extent of 50 per cent., will be made on or before Aug. 15, and final payment on or before Sept. 1, so that the new stock will be ready for distribution by Oct. 1, according to the recommendations to be laid before the meeting tonight."

ASKS NEW FACTORY RULES.

India Acts to Protect Cotton Growers There, Exchange Hears.

New cotton ginning and pressing factory rules, designed to protect the interests of the growers of better grades, have been proposed by the Government of India, the Cotton Exchange here has learned. If approved, they will go into effect Aug. 1.

A report of the Japan Cotton Spinners' Association says that consumption of raw cotton in Japan during April was 197,000 bales of 500 pounds gross, an increase of 12,000 bales over March.

The new Liverpool contract for empire and miscellaneous cotton will become effective Sept. 1, for delivery in October and later, according to advices received by Secretary Thomas Hale of the local exchange.

OIL STOCKS HERE EXPECTED TO DROP

Bank Foresees Substantial Cut in Both Crude and Gasoline Accumulation.

While the petroleum industry of the country has been laboring under large stocks of crude oil and gasoline in the past few years, developments of recent weeks give promise of a substantial reduction in these accumulations, according to a study of petroleum trade conditions undertaken by the Guaranty Survey, published by the Guaranty Trust Company. Stocks of gasoline, owing to unprecedented consumption for the season, have shown less than the usual increase in the Spring months, according to the Survey. Interpretation of the most recent data, it is added, is made difficult by changes in the system of official reporting. But what will probably prove to be this year's peak gasoline stocks, holdings at the end of May, were only slightly above the maximum reported last year.

"Because the variations in crude oil output are so largely governed by the element of chance there is, of course, no assurance that the downward trend will be long continued," says the Survey. "But it is a significant fact that the output of light oil has declined this year while the flow of heavy grades was increasing. The tardy response of production to changes in current demand seriously complicates the problems involved in the maintenance of inventories, introducing an unwelcome degree of speculation.

"Prices of crude petroleum have advanced since May. A considerable decline in average prices of gasoline in that month was recorded. But more recently these prices also have risen. The supply situation is such that drastic price advances are not in immediate prospect. Sooner or later, however, it appears that the rapid depletion of the unmined domestic reserves will materially modify the balance between supply and demand, resulting perhaps in permanently higher prices for oil and its products.

"This conclusion is supported by the fact that increasing reliance upon 'cracking' processes in the production of gasoline tends by reason of their costs to raise the price of this product. Moreover, as the most accessible pools are drained deeper drilling for crude oil, with its added costs, becomes necessary.

"If resort is made to greatly increased importation of crude, this must be expected to entail greater costs. And the same is true of more extensive working of the shale deposits, which represent the country's immense secondary reserves. The extent and rapidity of the anticipated rise in prices will depend upon the uncertain results of mining and the growth of demand.

"Until about fifteen years ago kerosene was the chief refinery product. Now, although exceeded somewhat in quantity by gas and fuel oil, gasoline is by far the most valuable of the four main petroleum products. The reversal in the relative importance of kerosene and gasoline was due to the development of the internal combustion engine, particularly in the automotive field.

"The remaining oil resources of the United States were estimated in 1922 by The Geological Survey at approximately 9,000,000,000 barrels. Such estimates are highly conjectural. Future discoveries may materially modify the known reserves. Deep sands, as in the Smackover field, may here and there be found to contain hitherto unknown reservoirs. But, in any event, the underground supply is diminishing at the rate of more than 700,000,000 barrels a year. With an increasingly insistent demand for petroleum products, American refiners undoubtedly will rely more largely in the future upon imported supplies of crude.

"There are vast beds of bituminous shales in this country with an oil content many times as great as the petroleum reserves. These are being worked to some extent already, but unit costs of the products are high. Nevertheless, it is possible that ultimately a large part of the nation's oil will be produced from these shales.

"Meanwhile, no oil famine is in immediate prospect. But only unforeseen substitution of other fuel can, it seems, prevent an ultimate material rise in prices."

Fluctuations in last week's cash markets, which revealed the grains at sharp declines, while spot cotton and printcloths soared in value, were a direct result of the sensitiveness of both groups to recent estimates of the Government for both crops. In addition, the bountiful Canadian yield of grains, which would indicate surplus stocks for export in competition with our own, also conspired to react to the detriment of the cash options.

Wheat, corn, rye and flour all tumbled from the previous week's closing, while oats barely managed to stay above that limit by a fraction. On the other hand, spot cotton rose 125 points, to 25.75 cents, which places middling uplands within 30 points of the year's high. Printcloths gained ⅛ cent, to 6⅝ cents. Price changes elsewhere included advances in coffee, copper, zinc and butter, while lead, tin and rubber yielded. Firmness was found in sugar, eggs, lard, beef, pork, iron and steel billets.

TO THE PREFERRED STOCKHOLDERS, ELECTRIC FINANCE CORPORATION

Notice is hereby given that the balance of the unpaid subscriptions to the preferred stock of Electric Finance Corporation amounting to $50.00 a share is hereby called for payment, as provided by the terms of said preferred stock as follows:

$10.00 per share to be paid on or before August 15, 1925.
$10.00 per share to be paid on or before September 15, 1925.
$10.00 per share to be paid on or before October 15, 1925.
$10.00 per share to be paid on or before November 15, 1925.
$10.00 per share to be paid on or before December 15, 1925.

The right is conferred upon every stockholder to anticipate payment of the entire sum of $50.00 by making the same in one instalment on or before August 15, 1925.

Checks for the above unpaid subscriptions should be made payable to The Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities, Agent, and mailed to said Company at its office, Packard Building, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, not later than the dates on which the subscriptions are payable, as above set forth.

Each preferred stockholder should likewise send his preferred stock certificate or certificates with the first check covering the subscription to the same Trust Company, which will deliver its receipt therefor and endorse on the reverse of the stock certificate notation of payment of each instalment when and as received, and upon completion of the last payment return the certificates to the several stockholders.

ELECTRIC FINANCE CORPORATION,

GENERAL RAILWAY SIGNAL COMPANY

First Mortgage Twenty-Year 6½% Convertible Gold Bonds
REDEMPTION.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned, pursuant to the provisions of Article III of the First Mortgage dated April 1st, 1924, executed by the GENERAL RAILWAY SIGNAL COMPANY to The Mechanics & Metals National Bank of the City of New York, as Trustee, has elected to redeem, and hereby calls for redemption and payment on October 1st, 1925, all of said Bonds now outstanding secured by said First Mortgage.

Holders are hereby notified to present their Bonds with coupons due October 1st, 1925, and subsequent thereto attached, for payment on October 1st, 1925, at the principal office of The Mechanics & Metals National Bank of the City of New York, Trustee, No. 20 Nassau Street, New York City, New York, at which time and place, as provided in said First Mortgage, said Bonds will be paid at 110% of the face amount thereof and accrued interest.

Interest on said Bonds will cease on October 1st, 1925. The right to convert said Bonds into Common Stock will expire at the close of business on the same date, unless written notice of the election to convert shall have been given to the above mentioned Trustee, and the Bonds referred to in such notice shall have been deposited with the said Trustee for such conversion on or before October 1st, 1925.

By George D. Morgan,
Vice-President & Treasurer.
Dated, Rochester, N. Y., July 27th, 1925.

TO THE HOLDERS OF FIRST AND REFUNDING MORTGAGE 5% FIFTY-YEAR GOLD BONDS OF NORTHERN NEW YORK UTILITIES, INC., DUE JULY 1, 1963.

The undersigned, successor trustee under the mortgage given to secure the above described issue of bonds, desires under authority of said mortgage and mortgage supplemental thereto, dated March 11, 1915, to expend the sum of Forty-One Thousand Eight Hundred Four Dollars and Fifty-Six Cents ($41,804.56) in the purchase of bonds of said issue for the sinking fund, provided such purchase can, in its opinion, be now made advantageously.

Sealed offers of said bonds may be sent to the Columbia Office of the undersigned, Trust Department, 60 Broadway, New York City, on or before August 10, 1925, at twelve o'clock noon.

Bonds accepted must be delivered on August 12, 1925, or security furnished that day, if required, that delivery will be made within ten days. The right is reserved by the undersigned to reject any and all offers.

GOVERNING FACTORS IN BUILDING COSTS

FUEL CRISIS IS FEARED

How Investors Account for Falling Off in Projected Operations at This Time of Year.

Governing factors that are capable of affecting building costs during the next five to eight months are being closely studied by building investors, writes Allen E. Beals in the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

Fuel, labor, shifting speculation from one type of building to that of another, building material supply and market demand, legislation affecting taxes and politics as they affect subway construction, all have a part in accounting for the increase in the value of building contracts awarded, as opposed to the diminishing volume and value of plan filings for prospective construction.

Reports from almost every building material industry show current shipments to be in excess of those of last year at this time, particularly of common brick, cement, structural steel and lumber.

The extraordinary demand for these building materials is explained in part by the fact that contracts awarded in Northern New Jersey and New York State, as reported by competent authority, in June figured $121,000,000, as compared with $81,000,000 in June of last year.

On the other hand, the New York State industrial report for May shows that conditions affecting plan filings throughout the State conform to those that affect plan filings in New York City. State plan filings in May showed 30 per cent. drop from the month of April, 1925.

Permits issued throughout the State in May, 1925, were $9,000,000 over the May total of 1924, and the value of contracts awarded in May, 1925, represented $132,000,000, as against $109,000,000 in May, 1924. On the other hand, the value of contracts awarded in the first six months of 1925 was $130,000,000, below the first six months' total of 1924.

While available statistics are not yet wholly conclusive in marking the definiteness of the trend of construction and its effect upon building supply and demand, the fact that important building financiers are taking precautions, at least until after the effect of election and forthcoming legislation can be more accurately discounted, is raising questions in the minds of professional speculators as well as investment builders as to what will happen to material prices if, in the present rush to ship, production lags to a point where fuel shortage, in the event of coal mine clashes, might catch building material supply so far below demand when construction again catches its stride next year that it will be unable to adequately restock before the rush subsides.

Some attribute the lull in plan filings to indecision among speculative builders as to the type of building that will be most in demand at completion some time next year. Others say they are waiting for definite subway construction activity, thinking that there still may be changes in route that would leave their investments stranded.

Commercial construction and industrial plant building are too firmly in the grasp of large companies to feel the influence of the speculator who in recent years devoted himself to housing development, but this type of builder is greatly concerned with the probable development of warehouse, cold storage and truck garage construction in Manhattan and New Jersey in proximity to the vehicular tunnel, to industrial construction in the Bronx and Queens and to the possibility of successful $9 and $10 a room apartments in the outskirts of Brooklyn following the report of the profitable experiments made by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

There are those who believe that the present situation with respect to building construction establishes beyond all question that the housing emergency of the country has passed finally into history and with it have gone, probably for a long time, most of the causes that brought about the nation-wide boosts in building costs.

This does not imply, necessarily, that the topmost pinnacle of building construction activity in this country has been reached. It means, rather, that the long stretch back to normalcy is at last clearly distinguishable, that the day of better building practice is at hand mainly because competition will demand it. It also means that building material prices will decline in exact proportion as uniformity of demand justifies the substitution of machinery for hand power at manufacturing points, as well as in the assembly of these materials into finished buildings.

NEW OFFERING FOR PUBLIC.

George H. Burr & Co. will shortly offer for public subscription a block of 7 per cent. cumulative convertible first preferred stock of the New York Merchandise Company, Inc., at $100 a share. Each share will carry the right to subscribe to a share of common stock at $21.

From a small importing and jobbing business organized in 1906, the company has grown until average sales during the last four years have amounted to $6,925,993, according to the bankers. The company has connections in practically all European and Asiatic markets and imports a large amount of notions and fancy goods and other popular-priced merchandise which it sells mainly to the five and ten cent and department stores in this country and Canada.

FACTORS THAT HELP THE USE OF RAYON

That the price of rayon will stay at a fairly constant level for a period of years and that production will be greatly increased during the same space of time were the predictions made yesterday by Samuel A. Salvage, President of the Viscose Company, largest American producer of the material. Mr. Salvage pointed out that the present shortage of rayon was likely to continue for some time, but that no attempt would be made to advance prices on that account, since this would tend toward uncertainty in the various industries which have started to use it.

"Our efforts are being directed toward increasing production and keeping prices low," continued Mr. Salvage. "We wish to avoid fluctuations in prices, for the stability of rayon has been one of its strongest points. The manufacturer can place his order and rest assured that in six months its value will be practically the same. On the other hand, manufacturers who place orders for raw wool, cotton and silk do not know what the future will bring them in the way of weather conditions and other factors beyond human control.

"In former years the rayon industry was known as one in which large profits were being made. The tendency is now toward large production and small profits. We are producing at the rate of 34,000,000 pounds annually, as compared with a total of 28,000,000 pounds during 1924. At the end of this year additions to our Roanoke plant will give us 5,000,000 more pounds annually. We are also going to construct a new $10,000,000 plant at Parkersburg, W. Va., which will give us an additional 10,000,000 pounds yearly and a total production of 56,000,000 pounds, or nearly double our last year's turnout.

"Lack of trained hands is one of the chief factors preventing an even more rapid expansion of the industry. For example, during the last fifteen years three forces of labor have been taken out of our parent plant to man new mills. It is necessary for us to train our own men for this highly technical industry, which is a slow process. It is a conservative statement to say that two years are required to get a mill on an operating basis after construction of it has begun.

"The reported entrance of foreign rayon producers into this country is not viewed by us with alarm. It should be remembered that it will take at least two years to get the plants of the newcomers on a producing basis. By that time our production will have been greatly increased, and we will be in a position to compete very efficiently with them.

"We have done little more than scratch the surface of the possibilities of the article. At the present time we are not looking for new fields into which rayon may be introduced, since it is all that we can do to supply the industries that are already using the material. For example, just now we are chiefly concerned with taking care of the women's underwear manufacturers, who have recently become large users. Until we can take care of this trade we shall not look for new fields into which rayon may enter.

"One field that looks especially promising for future development is that of linings. We look upon the use of rayon for this purpose as an entirely logical step, for the price is not too high, and the wearing qualities of the material will be eminently satisfactory. Ultimately, I look for a tremendous use of rayon for the purpose.

"Another possibility is a fabric combining jute and rayon. Such a material would make strong merchantable goods for wearing apparel and other uses. This is a thing of the future, however, as the quantity of rayon available is entirely inadequate for such a step.

"Rayon has established its own position in the world of fabrics. It is, therefore, ridiculous to say that it is hurting cotton, wool or silk. As a matter of fact, rayon is aiding these textiles. An illustration of this is the case of a cotton shirting manufacturer who was asked why he wanted rayon. He replied that by putting a decorative rayon stripe in his goods he was greatly stimulating the demand for them at a very slight increase in cost. Claims that rayon is competing with cotton appear ridiculous, when it is remembered that rayon production last year was less than 40,000,000 pounds in this country, as compared with a cotton production of several billion pounds.

"Similarly, rayon is being used in attractive combinations with other fabrics in such a way as to help the sale of silk and wool. Rayon is not a luxury, but an absolute necessity, at the present time."

FUR TRIMMINGS AS A TRADE TROUBLE

An appeal to retailers to exercise greater consideration and discretion in passing judgment upon the fur trimmings of garments received by them from manufacturers was voiced yesterday by Max Lachman, general manager of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association. Mr. Lachman declared that many controversies, some of a serious character, were being precipitated between manufacturers and retailers by the unreasonable insistence of the latter that the fur trimmings shipped to them be exactly like the furs on the sample garments. He said that a number of the most exemplary concerns were repeatedly penalized by the return of merchandise because of a difference between the furs shipped and those shown.

"It is nothing short of impossible to insure precise duplication of fur trimmings," Mr. Lachman said. "Conscientious manufacturers do all in their power to ship according to sample, but they frequently find themselves unable to do this in the case of fur collars, cuffs and borders. They send peltries of equal value and beauty, when duplication is not possible; but this often fails to satisfy the too fastidious retailer.

"Merchants should take into consideration the fact that fur skins are not manufactured. They represent a natural phenomenon. No man can predict what shade they will be. The manufacturer cannot give any final assurance that the shades of the fur trimmings on the garments he forwards to the retailer will be identical with those on the models he exhibited at the time the sale is made. The most that any producer can be reasonably expected to do is to use furs of equal beauty and value to those originally shown.

"The return of garments to manufacturers for the alleged reason that the fur failed to give adequate wear is a most perplexing phase of the fur-trimming question. Sometimes the garments have been worn for a season, or even two seasons, before the fur deteriorates. Retailers are prone to hold manufacturers responsible for this. As a matter of fact, no manufacturer can do more than purchase his furs from reliable sources and, if he prepares his own skins, to have them dressed and dyed by responsible concerns.

"It is not fair to demand that the manufacturer guarantee the furs, as it is not within his power always to provide peltries that will fulfill such guarantees. It is unreasonable for retailers to expect the producer to accept the return of garments that have given excellent service except in so far as the fur trimmings were concerned. What of the manufacturer's investment in cloth, lining, workmanship and overhead?

"If the price consideration is uppermost in the buyer's mind, neither the manufacturer nor the retailer can hope to obtain fur trimmings that will give thoroughly satisfactory wear to the ultimate consumer.

"In the past two seasons many inexpensive furs have been dyed to resemble the better grade of skins. By reason of the skill of the dyers it is often quite impossible to ascertain what variety of peltry it was originally. Manufacturers and retailers alike should discourage the use of furs of this kind. When properly dressed, American furs, such as skunk, beaver, mink and raccoon, will give reasonable satisfaction.

"The efforts to employ catskins and similar domestic peltries, dyed, of course, beyond all recognition, is a basic cause for disputes between producers and retailers of ready-to-wear. Utilizing nondescript skins of this kind is shortsighted economy and should not be countenanced.

"The lavish use of fur trimmings on all good garments has aggravated the fur problem in the coat and suit industry. It is, indeed, unfortunate that this liberal usage of furs has added another complication to the many that beset our industry. It is the belief of our association, however, that mutual tolerance and forbearance will do much to relieve this situation. The association is now endeavoring to formulate a policy for its members with regard to the controversies arising from this harassing situation.

"We have every reason to believe that when considerate retailers become fully cognizant of the manufacturers' inability to guarantee durability or to ship fur trimmings exactly as those shown, our latest problem will be largely solved.

"The manufacturer who gives assurances to the retailer that his furs are guaranteed as to wearing qualities and exact duplication is creating for himself a condition fraught with danger."

TO HELP STOP PILFERING.

Precautions That Dress Manufacturers Are Urged to Take.

Many thousands of dollars are being lost to the ready-to-wear trades annually because of merchandise pilfered in shipment, thus creating concealed losses difficult to collect in the regular routine of filing claims against the carrier, said David N. Mosessohn, Executive Chairman of the Associated Dress Industries of America, yesterday. Traffic in ready-to-wear is particularly heavy during the Fall months, he continued, and sometimes, in the rush to get shipments out, the packing is not as good as it should be. If manufacturers of dresses and other wearing apparel are to protect the goods they send to customers in various parts of the country they must exercise closer supervision over the packing, marking and selection of boxes to carry the shipment.

"Every manufacturer should ask himself before a shipment is made whether the container was the best that could be had," Mr. Mosessohn went on. "It is much better to know that the container is right before shipment than to learn afterward that merchandise has been stolen from it in transit. Knowledge of the theft does not reach the manufacturer until the retailer advises him of a shortage, and this makes it difficult to recover damages from the carrier.

"Containers should not be loaded beyond their intended capacity. There is a limit to the quantity of merchandise which can be put into any one of them, and to pack beyond that limit invites pilfering. Wearing apparel is particularly attractive loot for the person inclined to steal. It is a good thing for shippers to use a reasonably safe container, properly secured, to remove the danger of pilfering by an easy or quick method. A good box, well tied, glued or otherwise firmly secured and sealed is pretty sure to reach its destination in the same condition as when shipped.

"Packages should be legibly marked, for the marking has a very important bearing on safe delivery. When shipments go astray they are more likely to be tampered with than when they go directly from the shipper to the retailer. Waterproof crayon or stencil should be used. It is the safest and best method.

"Names should be plainly written over the street number and town. Abbreviations of States should be used with caution, and with positive knowledge of their correctness. The shipper's name and address should be shown clearly. Experience has shown that it is safer not to mention on the outside of the box the nature of the contents.

"Retailers should check off the merchandise received against the invoices as soon as it is possible after receipt. Any discrepancies in the shipment should be reported at once to the shipper, who is then in a position to put in his claim for shortage with a minimum of elapsed time. This has an important bearing on the probability of collecting damages on the claim.

"The express company has signified its willingness to cooperate with manufacturers and retailers to the end that concealed losses may be reduced to an appreciable extent. If the manufacturers and the retailers will also cooperate full heartedly to effect efficient, systematic shipment and delivery of dresses and other wearing apparel the annual savings to all concerned would represent quite a huge sum."

RAIL LINE TO RUN BUSES.

Norfolk, Va., to Have a Coordinated Transportation System.

Coordination of electric line and bus service throughout Norfolk, Va., under the management of the Virginia Railway & Power Company, recently purchased by Stone & Webster, is contemplated in an agreement just reached by Norfolk officials and the company. Purchase by the company of all existing independent bus lines and operation of such equipment as can be used along with new buses are included in the plan.

Announcement of the agreement was made here by the American Electric Railway Association. The move was said to be "indicative of the general trend among leading local electric rail line companies." Association officials are urging rapid unification of buses and cars under electric rail line ownership. More than 200 properties are now operating buses supplemental to their car service.

New Classifications for Buyers' Wants and Offerings to Buyers

Beginning Monday, August 3rd, a re-classification of announcements will increase the value of the Wholesale Market Page to readers and advertisers.

Under Buyers' Wants there will be two general captions—"Standard Merchandise which can be re-ordered" and "Close Outs." Each of these will be followed by subheadings: Coats, Suits, Dresses, Cotton Goods, Furs, Silks, Woolens and Miscellaneous.

Under Offerings to Buyers there will be a new general classification of "Manufacturers, Mill Agents and Converters, Standard Merchandise which can be re-ordered." And a new general heading of "Close Outs." Each of these to be followed by the subheads named above.

The purpose of this new arrangement is to separate limited offerings from those of Manufacturers, Mill Agents and Converters who offer standard lines of goods.

A Message to Those Who

Lack Ready Cash To Buy a Home

THE organization making this offer is a group of realty men of strong financial resources, interested in providing "honestly built" all-year homes for city dwellers who are tired of city life and earnestly desire to establish their own home in the same healthful, attractive, accessible residential section usually accessible only to those of large means.

One of Ten Types of Homes to Select From

Boating Bathing Fishing

Because of extensive financing necessary to carry out this plan successfully, we will be able to accept with whom we can co-operate as a group, making possible the building and purchase of the 100 homes at the lowest possible cost and most advantageous terms. By co-operating as a unit these 100 families will get homes built of materials and a class of workmanship to be found only in homes of the best type, costing much more.

$275 DOWN

Assures HOME OWNERSHIP

Every Improvement including Water, Gas and Electricity

This is the Most Amazing Offer to the Man of Moderate Means

A HALF MILLION FAMILIES, at a conservative estimate, solid, substantial families, have dreamed of some day being able to buy a home of their own in a spot where their children and they can live a normal, happy, healthy life, away from the congestion and handicaps of the city, with its high rents and cramped apartments, and yet near enough to their day's work in the city. NO REASON TO PAY RENT NOW.

You, too, can become the owner of a fine home in this popular, restricted, residential community, selected for its convenience and accessibility, where you will be surrounded by worthwhile neighbors, with good Schools, Stores and Churches, where the great outdoors welcomes you to sunshine and fresh air. We offer every opportunity you can ask for to come in on this project early. If you delay it will be due to your own neglect and you have only yourself to blame.

The land owned by this organization is free and clear of all mortgage indebtedness. It is located in one of the fastest growing and most beautiful sections on the South Shore of Long Island, 38 minutes from New York, well within the commuting zone, by fast electric express train service.

JAIL THREAT FAILS TO BUDGE BISHOP

Bishop Adam Phillipovsky, who says he is the head of the Russian Orthodox Church in America, is prepared to go to jail rather than comply with the order of Supreme Court Justice Levy to turn over the Cathedral of St. Nicholas, 13-15 East Ninety-seventh street, to Archbishop Platon Rodzestvensky, a spokesman for the Bishop declared yesterday.

Justice Levy adjudged both Bishop Phillipovsky and his attorney, Maurice Gluck of 9 Church Street, guilty of contempt of court on Friday for their part in the ousting of Archbishop Platon from the cathedral on July 1. The actual work of ejecting the Archbishop and his followers was performed under the protection of policemen of the Bomb Squad under Acting Captain Geegan.

Unless the cathedral was turned over to the Archbishop within five hours after Bishop Phillipovsky and his attorney were served with copies of the order, Justice Levy declared, he would send them to jail for thirty days.

But so far as could be ascertained neither Bishop Phillipovsky nor Attorney Gluck has as yet been served with copies of the order. The Bishop did not attend services at the cathedral yesterday morning. Other members of the clergy said that he was in New York but did not care to make his whereabouts known. Mr. Gluck was not found.

Regards Platon as a Usurper.

A spokesman for Bishop Phillipovsky declared the latter would go to jail for any length of time rather than turn over the cathedral to Archbishop Platon. "Bishop Adam," he said, "deplores this whole trouble. He is perfectly willing to step down if the Patriarch will send over a successor to this country who will be acceptable to both factions. But under no condition will he turn over the cathedral and its properties to Archbishop Platon, whom he regards as a usurper.

"Archbishop Platon has no business in this country. He came here as a visitor, and has since sought to seize control of the Russian Church in this country. The Patriarch has suspended him and ordered him back to Russia to face trial. How can Bishop Phillipovsky turn over the church of which he is the rightful head to this usurper?"

For the first time in several Sundays services yesterday at the cathedral were not interrupted by followers of Archbishop Platon. A dozen uniformed policemen were stationed there prepared to oust disturbers, but apparently the Archbishop's partisans, confident that Bishop Phillipovsky would be ousted before another Sunday arrived, were content to let the services proceed uninterrupted.

There were many American visitors at the service, but a large part of the Russian congregation did not attend. The Rev. Michael Chervinsky officiated. Just before the services began he received word from officials of the Russian Orthodox Mutual Aid Society, whose 400 members have been supporting Archbishop Platon, that they would attend.

After the service, small groups of adherents of both sides gathered outside the Cathedral to discuss the situation. An argument started between members of the two factions and there were cries of "Hamba!" or "shame." In the midst of the argument an old Russian put down a newspaper on the Cathedral steps, knelt on it, and after making the sign of the cross three times began to pray. The crowd leaving the church, including participants in the argument, paused to watch the old man. For about three minutes he knelt in prayer, then got up and without a glance at any one walked away.

The police soon cleared the sidewalks and there was no trouble.

NEGRO ALUMNI PLEDGE $152,158 TO 2 SCHOOLS

Donors in Every State Contribute to $5,000,000 Drive of Hampton and Tuskegee Institutes.

An active response has come from the alumni of Hampton and Tuskegee Institutes in the undertaking to raise $5,000,000 for the two Southern negro institutions, according to a statement yesterday by Chellis A. Austin, Treasurer of the Hampton-Tuskegee Endowment Fund. Gifts from the alumni have come from every State in the country and from every foreign land where Hampton-Tuskegee graduates live.

Of the former students and graduates of Hampton and Tuskegee 2,368 have already made pledges totalling $152,158. The entire number of donors to the fund up to date is 9,200, the alumni thus representing more than 25 per cent. of the givers.

Aside from the alumni gifts, Hampton and Tuskegee students have joined with the Faculties in pledging $61,000 toward the $5,000,000 objective. The student gifts will be paid during the next two years out of money earned by the students in spare time.

Thirty States are represented in the alumni gifts, Indiana leading with $25,000 from four alumni. Virginia, where Hampton is located and where the greater proportion of its graduates and many of Tuskegee's live, follow with $22,556 from 503 alumni of the two institutions; then New York, with $21,867 from 484 alumni. In Illinois 169 alumni contributed $13,243; Florida, 153 alumni, $11,276; Georgia, 100 alumni, $7,136; Pennsylvania, 134 alumni, $6,674; Massachusetts, 59 alumni, $6,012; Texas, 122 alumni, $5,326; New Jersey, 93 alumni, $4,235; Michigan, 106 alumni, $4,160; District of Columbia, 121 alumni, $3,685.

From West Africa an alumnus has sent a pledge for $25.

The Hampton-Tuskegee Fund has passed the $4,500,000 mark. The balance must be obtained before Jan. 1, 1926.

OIL EDITOR HELD FOR LIBEL.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., July 26 (AP).—R. B. Thompson, publisher of The Kevin Review, a weekly issued in the Kevin-Sunburst oil fields, was arrested here yesterday by Federal officers on the charge of printing a libelous and defamatory article concerning J. S. Swenson, a postal inspector.

Swenson was one of the Government investigators in connection with the cases against Gordon Campbell and Senator Burton K. Wheeler and also was associated in the prosecution of Dr. Frederick Cook in the Texas oil fraud case.
